LOCALS.

Miss Helen Luse, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Luse, is confined to her bed on account of a slight sickness.
Mrs. Mary Goss, of Lewistown, is at the home of Mrs. Eliza Stump and daughter Mrs. Samuel Stump, near Centre Hall.
William Bailey, who holds the exalted position of "pinner's devil" on the Reporter, spent the "Fourth" with his friend, Riley Stover, at Boalsburg.
Clyde Horner is enjoying a change of work from the Altoona shops to the hay and grain fields on the farm of his uncle, John Horner, near Tusseyville.
Roofing and spouting sold by the square or foot at my shop, or put right out your roof. Call and see the goods and get prices.—T. L. Smith, Centre Hall.
Mrs. John McMullen, of Beaverdale, visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Shoop for a few days last week, and now Mrs. G. A. Hinton, of Altoona, is being entertained at the new Shoop home.
Charles Geary, Misses Minnie and May Geary, Flossie Huston, and Anna Everhart, all of Newport, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Geary, in Centre Hall. They made the trip in an auto.
D. Wagner Geiss and son George, of Bellefonte, have been in Philadelphia since the beginning of July, and are stopping with the Misses Geiss, who are conducting an apartment house at 1702 Green street.
Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rice and son Clifford were at the Centre Hall hotel where they spent a portion of their vacation. Mr. Rice is the senior member of the firm of Rice Brothers, general merchants in Reedsville.
The second McClellan-Fleisher reunion will be held Thursday, August 7th, at the McClellan homestead. Dr. Spangler, of Yesgertown, will give a talk on his trip through the Holy Lands. All friends and neighbors are cordially invited.
John D. Meyer, of Altoona was in Centre Hall for a few days. He is kept pretty busy as cashier of the Second National Bank and treasurer of the Altoona Tribune, but finds time enough to come to the old home town occasionally, where he is always warmly greeted.
Installation of officers of the Knights of the Golden Eagle took place in the Millheim lodge Thursday night of last week. Those from the local order in attendance were: Messrs. W. F. Colyer, James Lingle, William Bradford, Clyde Bradford, Milton Bradford, Paul Bradford, Willis Weaver, and Robert Glasgow.
Snakes! That's what the trackmen on the L. & T. say when they are working in the vicinity of the hill below the Stover farm, near Spring Mills. The snakes are of the water sort, but the man who hates snakes hates the water snake kind, too. While working in that locality recently, J. W. Whiteman, a railroad man, declares he counted at one time twenty snake heads protruding from the rocks.
The representatives to the Odd Fellows Orphans' Home at Sunbury held their semi annual meeting Tuesday, 8th instant. The representatives from Centre county who participated in the meeting were Messrs. Joseph Lutz, Centre Hall; E. S. Ripka, Spring Mills; I. G. Burkett, Stormstown; C. L. Gramley, Rebersburg; M. E. Clevensine, Bellefonte; T. L. Rudy, State College; A. Luckenbaugh, Bellefonte. Mrs. T. L. Moore was the only Rebekah representative from this county, and was there in the interest of the Centre Hall lodge.

His Jag.

While a young American was on a trip abroad he visited the country home of a friend, and among the other guests was a prominent Englishman. During their visit he and the Englishman became good friends. One day the American's curiosity was aroused as he heard his friend refer to an umbrella repeatedly as a "jag."
Upon inquiry the Englishman remarked: "Why, that is an American word. I picked it up when I was in New York last winter. I am positive that I have the correct meaning of the word, because the boys often remarked when they saw James coming down the street when it was raining hard. 'Here he comes, carrying a large jag.'—Harper's Magazine.

A Prerogative of the Pulpit.

Dr. Bacon, a New England clergyman of long ago, was reproached by a friend with some pronunciation which was not "according to Webster." Webster lived in his parish, and the doctory old divine was not disposed to be snubbed with the dictionary. "What right has Webster to dictate my pronunciation?" he demanded haughtily. "He is one of my parishioners and ought to get his pronunciation from me and not I from him."

The Amateur Farmer.

"Yes," said the sealer; "I have cows to sell. What kind of a cow do you want?"
"Oh, I don't know," said the amateur. "I guess one with four legs and a couple of horns will do."—Harper's Weekly.

Dazed Him.

Mr. Sapleigh—I find it dooced hard to collect my thoughts, you know.
Miss Keen—Father says it's always difficult to collect small amounts.—Boston Transcript.

meeting was a very enthusiastic one which shows the people of our community are always alert for those things which count for progress and advancement. A light committee was appointed consisting of T. D. Boal, L. E. Kidder, H. C. Rothrock, W. H. Stuart and J. M. Wieland for the purpose of organizing a company to furnish light and power to Boalsburg and vicinity. This committee met Friday evening at the home of T. D. Boal steps were taken to secure a charter and procure the necessary financial backing. It was decided to issue stock to the amount of $1800, one hundred and eighty shares at par value of $10 per share. Those interested will wait on Mr. Stuart at once as nearly all of the stock has been subscribed for.

The syndicate that has in charge

the construction of the new water line from Galbraith's Gap to Boalsburg expects to begin active work by August 10th.

Liquids We Consume.

According to a recent statistician who has been computing the amount of liquids consumed in the United States in one year, we drink enough tea, coffee, wine and other popular forms of liquid refreshment in a year to cover an area of land ten miles square and ten feet deep, which is a large enough lake to float a navy. And the amount of alcoholic beverages alone which seemed to be necessary to satisfy the national thirst would fill a canal 100 miles long, 100 feet wide and 10 feet deep.—Chicago Tribune.

Prince Consorts.

The last century was more fertile in female sovereigns than the present. In the forties three young queens occupied the thrones of England, Spain and Portugal—Victoria, Isabella and Maria da Gloria. Their respective consorts were Prince Albert of Saxe-Coburg, the Infant Francis d'Assise and Prince Ferdinand, another Saxe-Coburg. The last two were granted the nominal title of king, to which Prince Albert never aspired.—Pall Mall Gazette.

A Man of High Principles.

Scotsman (up to London for the week end, who has been asked by his friend to go to a music hall—Na, na, mon! D'ye no ken I never visit a music hall on th' Saturday, for fear I should laugh in th' kirk on th' Sawbath?—London Opinion.

These Bills.

"Yes, indeed, it's really astonishing how many people call to see me when I am not at home," remarked Mrs. Trife.
"It's always that way on the first of the month," replied the lady from next door.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Source of a Sort of Continuous Performance Conflagration.

Fires are much in fashion in the city of Manila. Conservatively estimated, 1,000 houses are destroyed annually. Perhaps two or three times that number of people are made homeless each year. The conflagrations are not due, as might be supposed, to lack of adequate protection in fire fighting equipment—at least, not since the United States took charge.
The fault lies in the style of building or, rather, in the materials used. All the business houses in old and new Manila are built of concrete, stone or hard woods, sometimes of all three. The wealthier natives and most foreigners have houses of stone or fine hard woods, but the districts occupied by the working class are invariably built up of nipa (a dried grass) and bamboo.

Both of these materials, especially nipa, are extremely inflammable. And, as frequent destruction of these shacks or huts means increased business for the nipa dealers, feudalism is rampant during the dull season. Naturally the dull season is in dry summer, when the leaves cure and when fires flourish.
Tondo, an endless tenement quarter, is composed almost solely of nipa huts, a single square block containing anywhere from 100 to 400 houses, according to size. The houses in most instances are so solidly built as to afford room only for pedestrians to pass between them. The Paco and San Nicholas districts are much the same.—Engineering.

THE RED SQUIRREL.

He is a True American, With All the National Traits.
If the red squirrels do not have an actual game of tag they have something so near it that I cannot tell the difference, writes John Burroughs in Harper's Magazine. Just now I see one hot pursuit of another on the stone wall. Both are apparently going at the top of their speed. They make a red streak over the dark gray stones. When the pursuer seems to overtake

CRATER LAKE'S HUGE RIM.

All That is Left of a Once Mighty Volcano in Oregon.

The highest mountain in Oregon is Mount Hood, 11,225 feet above sea level. Compared with Mount Whitney, to the south in California, and Mount Rainier, to the north in Washington, each rising well above 14,000 feet, Mount Hood does not appear as a skyscraper.
However, according to the geologists of the United States geological survey and other authorities, Oregon had at one time, probably before the dawn of life upon the earth, a great volcano which towered as far above Mount Hood as does Mount Rainier, possibly even several thousand feet higher. This was the great Mount Mazama. But thousands of years ago this mountain disappeared into the bowels of the earth, and all that is left today is the huge rim around Crater lake.

Crater lake is the caldera of this extinct and collapsed volcano and is nearly six miles in diameter. The inside walls of the rim of the ancient mountain are in places nearly 4,000 feet high and almost perpendicular. The lake itself is in places 2,000 feet deep, and parts of the wall rise above its waters another 2,000 feet. A restoration of the mountain in fancy, using as a basis the angles of the lower slopes, which still remain, shows that the apex could not have been far from 15,000 feet in height, so that Mount Mazama was one of the most lofty and majestic peaks in the United States.

Catching the Eye.

The manager of one of Philadelphia's largest department stores is my authority for this business maxim: "You've got to get the people's eyes before you can reach their money."

He illustrated his meaning by telling me of a personal experience in his own great establishment. A certain commodity of standard make and fashion had piled two counters for some weeks without moving. The owner of the store himself was finally attracted to this dead weight merchandise. At once he diagnosed the trouble.
"Put those goods," ordered he, "upon a special counter four feet nearer the aisle than they are now." This was done, and in less than a day the entire lot of goods had been sold. "All that was needed," said my informant, "was to get the eye of the women. They didn't hesitate to give us their money."—Philadelphia Ledger.
