Seven Wonders of the World. We have no indication of the existence of a cycle of seven wonders until about the end of the second century B. C. Then appears in an epigram of Antipater of Sidon an enumeration of seven great works, which prove to be rendered the play at Centre Hall, on Kidder farm near Boalsburg, and the very ones later appearing as the Saturday evening, received a cordial George, Ralston will move to the farm seven wonders. They are (1) the walls of Babylon, (2) the statue of Zeus at Olympia, (3) the hanging gardens of Semiramis at Babylon, (4) the Colossus of Rhodes, (5) the pyramids of Memphis, (6) the mausoleum of Halicarnassus, (7) the temple of Diana (Artemis) at Ephesus. Within the next century Varro, by his leisurely allusion to the septem opera, betrays that the saying had already assumed current proverbial form. Diodorus; in the second half of the same century (first B. C.), speaks, too, of "the so called seven works," and Strabo, a little later, uses the very

Most of the songs that have made history were written by men who had no other claim to immortality. The "Marseillaise" is the only production of Rouget de Lisle which has survived, and "The Wearing of the Green" was the work of an anonymous purveyor of ballads for the street hawkers of Dublin. Max Schneckenburger, an obscure Swabian merchant, who never published anything else, composed in 1840 some verses of which the burden was thus translated:

Dear fatherland, no danger thine, Firm stand thy sons to watch the Rhine. Little was heard of these until thirty years later, when the Franco-German war gave them an enormous vogue. Funeral services were held at the They were then adopted as the national anthem of United Germany, and a year ly pension of 3,000 marks was conferred on the composer of the tune to which they were set .- London Chroni-

Magnetism of the Horse.

"There is a side to the value of the pony which I believe is not fully understood." writes George H. Dacy in Suburban Life. "There is about the norse a magnetism, a strong physical presence, that is imparted to one coming intimately in contact with him, as in riding. As is well known, the horse is immune to many diseases to which mankind is susceptible. I believe that the horse, being immune to such diseases as diphtheria, intestinal disor-Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ennist and ders such as typhoid, cholera and dysentery, as well as scarlet fever, smallthe bubbling over point of vital force, animal spirit or magnetism, imparts more or less of this to his rider or companion and more particularly to little ones who are not in robust health. Repeatedly delicate children have been known to obtain rugged health and to develop rapidly when given a pony."

Chinese Inns Ideal In Theory. At the better class Chinese inns the proprietor receives his guests at the outer gate, ushers them into the courtyard and shows them to their apartments. Then he retires and leaves them to their own devices. The traveler is attended by his own servants; his cook buys and prepares his food, of the same quality and cookery as he would enjoy at his own home table; the boy unpacks his master's bed, the iron frame, mattresses and all, even to the mosquito netting. The master's own linen is spread, having been washed by his own servants. Folding chairs, table-in fact, everything which one may wish-is arranged and all without a word.
