

DEATHS.

Mrs. Harriet Johnson, wife of Albert Johnson, died in Altoona on Friday night, and Saturday the remains were brought to Boolsburg, and on Monday interment was made in the cemetery at that place, the funeral having been held from the home of the deceased's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Woods. The services were conducted by Rev. J. I. Stonecypher.

A week previous, Mrs. Johnson's infant child died, and it was also buried at Boolsburg.

The deceased is survived by her husband and four children, her parents named above and these sisters and brothers: Mrs. Anna Kilinger, Boolsburg; Mrs. Ada Reed, Mifflin county; Mrs. Margaret Kreamer, Aaronsburg; John Woods, Boolsburg; and Joshua Woods.

Reading's President Dead.

George F. Baer of the Reading system, noted lawyer and scholar, and the man who above all others was responsible for the great growth of the railway lines and coal corporations embraced in what has been known as the "Anthracite Coal Trust," died Sunday evening. He was seventy-two years old.

Merchant W. A. Odenkirk performed a good deed when he cut down the large poplar trees at the side of his store and dwelling house. His example ought to be followed by a number of others who are tolerating the growth of this species of trees along the street. Monday afternoon George W. Bradford returned from Chester county where he spent several days with his son William Bradford, and daughter, Mrs. Jerome Aman, both of whom live near Phoenixville. Mrs. Franklin Long, accompanied by her three handsome little children, was an arrival in Centre Hall on Monday afternoon from her home in Washington, D. Although coming from the city the little Longs have the appearance of being in perfect health.

It is thought that the notorious Hohl, the man who got away with nearly $3000 from an Altoona bank and later wriggled through a six inch opening in a window in the Blair county jail, is Walter B. Verner, who was employed in Yeager's mill, Yeagertown. From January to May of last year Verner got away with a $1000 in the Yeager mill, and was guilty of other depredations. J. O. Yeager, the proprietor of this mill, says the photographs of Hohl very much resemble Verner, and he believes that Hohl and Verner are one and the same extremely sly, polite and shrewd chap.
