

5heVALIANTS of VIR SV HALLIE ERMINIE RIVES ILLUSTRATIONS OF LAUREN STOUT

SYNOPSIS.

John Vallant, a rich society favorite, suddenly discovers that the Vallant cor-poration, which his father founded and which was the principal source of his wealth, has falled. He voluntarily turns over his private fortune to the receiver for the corporation. His entire remaining possessions consist of an old motor car, a white buil dog and Damory court, a neg-lected estate in Virginia. On the way to Damory court he meets Shirley Dand-ridge, an auburn-haired beauty, and de-cides that he is going to like Virginia im-mensely. Shirley's mother, Mrs. Dand-ridge, and Major Bristow exchange rem-iniscences during which it is revealed that the major. Vallant's father, and a nan named Sasson were rivals for the band of Mrs. Dandridge in her youth. Sasson and Vallant fought a duel on her account in which the former was killed. Vallant finds Damory court overgrown with weeds and creepers and the build-ings in a very much neglected condition. with weeds and creepers and the build-ings in a very much neglected condition. He decides to rehabilitate the place and make the land produce a living for him. Valiant saves Shirley from the bits of a snake, which bites him. Knowing the deadliness of the bite. Shirley sucks the poison from the wound and saves his life. Shirley tells her mother of the incident and the latter is strangely moved at hearing that a Valiant is again living at Damory court. Damory court.

CHAPTER XVI-Continued.

The major nodded, "Ah, yes," he said. "The Continental prison-camp."

'And just over this rise there I can see an old court-house, and the Virginia Assembly boiling under the golden tongue-lashing of lean rawboned Patrick Henry. I see a messenger gallop up and see the members scramble to their saddles-and then, plin' et." Tarleton and his red-coats streaming up, too late."

"Well," commented the doctor deliberately, "all I have to say is, don't materialize too much to Mrs. Poly have you lecturing to the Ladies' Church Guild before you know it."

"I hope you ride, Mr. Valiant?" the latter asked genially. "I'm fond of it," said Valiant, "but I have no horse as yet." "I was thinking," pursued the ma-

for. "of the coming tournament." "Tournament?"

cock-a-doodle-do which gives the young bucks a chance to rig out in silly tog- he retired with the tray. "Ah gwinegery and prance their colts before a lot | ter put er fence eroun' dat ar baid 'fo' of petticoats!"

"It's an annual affair." explained the hood is not unaware of the splendid other disregarded it. "Confound it, sah, it was to be expected of a Valiant. Your ancestors wrote their names in capital letters over this country. They were an up and down scendant of those bullies and swasa- took from the shelf the morocco case. lot, but good or bad (and, as Southall bucklers, as you call them. And I The old shiver of repugnance ran over says, I reckon"-he nodded toward the wish from my heart I thought we now him at the very touch of the leather. great portrait above the couch-"they adays, could hold a tallow-dip to In the farthest corner was a low comweren't all little woolly lambs) they | them.' did big things in a big way."

Valiant leaned forward eagerly, a question on his lips. But at the moment a diversion occurred in the shape of Uncle Jefferson, who re-entered, bearing a tray on which set sundry jugs and clinking glasses, glowing with white and green and gold.

"You old humbug," said the doctor, "don't you know the major's that polsoned with mint-juleps already that he can't get up before eight in the morning?

"Well, suh," tittered Uncle Jefferson, "Ah done foun' er mint-baid down below de kitchens dis mawnin'. Yo'all gemmun' 'bout de bigges' expuhts in dis yeah county, en Ah reck'n Mars' Valiant sho' 'sist on yo' sam-

"Sah," said the major feelingly, turning to his host, "I'm proud to drink your health in the typical beverage of Virginia!" He touched glasses with Valiant and glared at the Gifford when you meet her. She'll doctor, who was sipping his own thoughtfully. "Poems have been written on the julep, sah."

"They make good epitaphs, too," observed the doctor.

"I noticed your glass isn't going begging," the major retorted. "Unc' Jefferson, that's as good mint as grew in the gyarden of Eden. See that those lazy niggers of yours don't grub The doctor cut in. "A ridiculous | the patch out by mistake."

"Yas, sah," said Uncle Jefferson, as sundown."

The question that had sprung to held on a part of this estate-perhaps he said to the major. "Which of my

"Good!" said the doctor belligerentgenerosity which is responsible for ly. "Me? I don't! I said people now It was the doctor who spoke at last, ing. the present lack of which you speak." were no better. As for the men of in a silence that to the man in the Valiant put out his hand with a that time, they were a cheap swagger- doorway weighed like a hundred atlittle gesture of deprecation, but the ing lot of bullies and swash-bucklers. mospheres.

When I read history I'm ashamed to be descended from them." "I desire to inform you, sah," said the major, stung, "that I too am a dy-

"You refer, no doubt," said the acctor with sarcasm, "to our friend Devil- the angle, hiding it from view. John and his ideal treatment of his wife!"

"No, sah," replied the major warmly. "I'm not referring to Devil-John. There were exceptions, no doubt, but for the most part they treated their women folk as I believe their Maker air of warmth and creature-comfort. shapely arms from wrist to shoulder. made them to be treated! The man who failed in his courtesy there, sah. Along this highway he had rattled in | ly, but I didn't realize I was on primajor; "a kind of spectacle. For Valiant's lips now found utterance. "I was called to account for it. He was Uncle Jefferson's crazy hack-with vato property till I passed the bedge many years, by the way, it has been saw you look at the portrait there." mighty apt to find himself standing in her red rose in his hand. The musky there." the cool dawn at the butt-end of a-' He broke off and coughed. There in his pocket seemed to be all about was an awkward pause in which he him. set down his glass noisily and rose and stood before the open bookcase. in the air. It came on the scarce-

What He Had Drawn From the Shelf Was the Morocco Case That Held the Rusted Dueling-Pistol!

do it!" exclaimed the former. "And the first time I ever heard you admit in that single exclamation the major treading on a path of rose-leaves. let me say, sah, that the neighbor- that much good of your ancestors." seemed to have exhausted his vocabu- down which the increasing melody lary. He was looking at the ground.

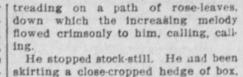

"No!" he said bluntly. "Certainly not. What put that into your head?" When he was alone in the library Valiant opened the glass door and mode. He set the case on this and moved the big tapestry screen across the candles in their brass wall-sconces blinked back from the polished par-Leaning against the newel-post, Va-coming! He began to walk up and down the passed into the unlighted dining-room. On the sideboard set a silver lovingdrags at the side-line.

But the memory evoked no thrill. Instead, the thought of her palely-cold. passionless beauty called up another mobile thoroughbred face instinct with quick flashings of mirth and hauteur. Again he felt the fierce clutch of small fingers, as they fought with his in that struggle for his life. Each line of that face stood before him-the arching brows, the cameo-delicacy of profile, the magnolia skin and hair like a brown-gold cloud across the sun.

He stepped down to the graveled drive and followed it to the gate, then, bareheaded, took the Red Road.

This had ended abruptly and he was looking straight up a bar of greenyellow radiance from a double doorway. The latter opened on a porch and the light, flung across this, drenched an arbor of climbing roses. making it stand out a mass of woven rubles set in emerald.

He drew a long sigh of more than delight, for framed in the doorway he saw a figure in misty white, leaning to the gilded upright of a harp. He knew at once that it was Shirley. feet muffled in the thick grass. He stood in the dense obscurity, one the fingers straying across the strings, melody of Shelley's "Indian Serenade" -touching the chords softly and ten-The serenade died in a single long note. As if in answer to it there rose particular score had been made, Kath- moment, with head held to one side. arine Fargo had sat in one of the then sprang up and came through the door and down the steps.

He hesitated a moment, then a single stride took him from the shadow.

CHAPTER XVIII.

Beyond the Box-Hedge. As he greeted her, his gaze plunged deep into hers. She had recoiled a step, startled, to recognize him almost instantly. He noted the shrinking and thought it due to a stabbing memory of that forest-horror. His first words were prosaic enough:

"I'm an unconscionable trespasser." he said. "It must seem awfully prow-

First Mational Bank. Penns Valley Banking Company Centre Hall, Pa. DAVID K. HELLER, Cashier Receives Deposits . . . @ Discounts Notes . . 60 YEARS EXPERIENCE TRADE MARKS DESIGNS DESIGNS COPYRIGHTS & A Anyons sending a sketch and description ma lickly secertain our opinion free viseter a vention is probably patentable. Communic-ons strictly confidential. Handbook on Patenti Scientific American. handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest an migdon of any scientific journal. Terms, 60 ear: four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers MUNN & CO. 361 Broadway. New Yor * Jno. F. Gray & Son

ATTORNEYS.

WALFER

ING. J. BOWER

OTH IN ORVIA BOWRE & ORVIE

WAJ-PA-YENEOTCA

ATTORNET-AT-LAW

ATTORNEYS AT-LAW

ATTORNEY-AT-LAW

ATTORNEY .AT-LAW

Office N. W. sorner Diamond, two dooms

sional burness promptly attacked

BELLEPONTA M

BELLEFORTA SA

W. B. 6

ELGLE BLOOM

BELLEFONTE. St.

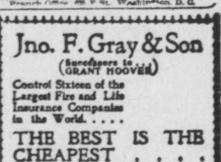

BELLEFONTEPA

BELLEFONTE, Pe.

S. PORTATY

HARRIGON

CLEMENT DALE

No Motuak

D. G.BPTIS TATTA BOWER & SEREY Consultation in Englah and German. B. SPANGLER N. Practices in all the courts. Consultation in English and German. Office, Oridar's Exchanged Buliding.

In the great hall at Damory Court Holding his breath, he came closer, his quetry and the shining fire-dogs, fill- hand gripping the gnarled limb of ing the rather solemn gloom with an a catalpa, his eyes following the liant gazed about him. How different the bending cheek caressing the it all looked from the night of his carved wood. She was playing the floor, teasing pricks of restlessness derly-and his lips moved, molding urging him. He opened the door and themselves soundlessly to the words. cup that had arrived the day before a flood of bird-music from beyond the in a huge box with his books and arbor-jets of song that swelled and knick-knacks. He had won it at polo. rippled to a soaring melody. She He lifted it, fingering its carved han- heard it, too, for the gracile fingers dles. He remembered that when that fell from the strings. She listened a you will have no objection to its use this season ?--- and at night there is a dance at the Country Club. By the way, you must let me introduce you tude. "That," he said, fixing his eyethere-tomorrow. I've taken the liberty already of putting your name up."

"Good lord!" growled the doctor. aside. "He counts himself young! If I've heard the name." I'd reached your age. Bristow-"

"You have," said the major, nettled. "Four years ago!-As I was saying. Mr. Valiant, they ride for a prize. It's a very ancient thing-l've seen references to it in a colonial manuscript In the Byrd Library at Westover. No doubt it's come down directly from the old jousts."

"You don't mean to say," cried his hearer in genuine astonishment, "that Virginia has a lineal descendant of the tourney?"

The major nodded. "Yes. Certain sections of Kentucky used to have it. too, but it has died out there. It a curious thing that the old knightly meetings of the middle ages should survive today only on American soil and in a corner of Virginia."

Doctor Southall, meanwhile, had set his gaze on the litter of pamph'ets. He turned with an appreciative eye. "You're beginning in earnest. The

The Other Got Up and Stood Before the Mantel-Piece in a Napoleonic Attitude.

Agricultural Department, And the tree, They were just passing under Congressional frank."

"I'm afraid I'm a sad sketch as scientist," laughed Valiant. "My you know. The bolt glanced from the point of view has to be a somewhat tree and struck him between the two practical one. I must be self-support- slaves without harming either of ing. Damory Court is a big estate. them. It killed his horse, too. That's If my ancestors lived from it, I can, nobody can separate fact from floslowly, "I want to make the most of worse than the rest o' his neighbors the place for its own sake, too. Not -not excepting the parsons. 'Other only of its possibilities for earning, times, other manners."" but of its natural beauties. I lack the even remotely resembling what it once | ish whiskey-straight." was, I'll not spare either."

ancestors is it?" The other got up and stood before the mantel-piece in a Napoleonic attiglasses, "is your great-grandfather, Devil-John Valiant." "Devil-John!" echoed his host. "Yes.

The doctor guffawed. "He earned

At, I reckon. I never realized what a sinister expression that missing optic gives the old ruffian. There was a skirmish during the war on the hillside yonder and a bullet cut it out. When we were boys we used to call him 'Old One-Eye.' "

"It interests me enormously," John Valiant spoke explosively. "The stories of Devil-John would fill a mighty big book," said the major. "By all accounts he ought to have lived in the middle ages." Crossing exists now only in this state. It's room. "I thought I remembered. The portrait over the console there is his wife, your great-grandmother. They say he bet that when he brought his bride home, she should walk into Da-He made the wager good, too, for when she came up those steps out there, there was a row of ten candles burning on either side of the doorway.

each held by a young slave worth a thousand dollars in the market.

"Some say he grew jealous of his wife's beauty. There were any number of stories told of his cruelties to her that aren't worth repeating. She died early - poor lady - and your grandfather was the only issue, Devil-John himself lived to be past seventy. and at that age, when most men were stacking their sins and groaning with the gout, he was dicing and fox-hunting with the youngest of them. He always swore he would die with his boots on, and they say when the doctor told him he had only a few hours leeway, he made his slaves dress him completely and prop him on his horse. They galloped out so, a negro on either side of him. It was a stormy night, black as the Earl of Hell's riding-boots, with wind and lightning, and he rode cursing at both. There's an old black-gum tree a mile from here that they still call Devil-John'

it when the lightning struck it. Lightning has no effect on the black-gum,

It's not only that." he went on more tion. Possibly he wasn't so much onds."

"They weren't any worse than the resources I once had, but I can give present generation," said the doctor it thought and work, and if they can malevolently. "Your four bottle men bring Damory Court back to anything | then knew only claret: now they pun-

The major buried his nose in his The major smote his knee and even julep for a long moment before he the doctor's face showed a grim, if looked at the doctor blandly. "I agree transient approval. "I believe you'll with you, Bristow," he said: "but it's which he could hear his heart beat. and another chap that used to be here pounds it was gathered and eaten.

"I envy you this, sah," he said with felt breeze, a heavy calling perfume. somewhat of haste. "A fine old col- He walked on, keeping the road by the lection. Bless my soul, what a curious misty infiltrating shimmer of the volume!"

As he spoke, his hand jerked out a ing than of walking. It occurred to nesses and haunting moods. With her heavy-looking leather-back. Vallant, him that if, as scientists say, colors answer, however, this gravity seemed who had risen and stood beside him. saw instantly that what he had drawn possess a music of their own: the laughed lightly. from the shelf was the morocco case honevsuckle fragrance, maybe-soft that held the rusted dueling-pistol! In mellow fluting as of diminutive windthe major's hands the broken box instruments; the far-faint sickly odor opened. A sudden startled look darted of lilies-the upper register of faery across his leonine face. With smoth- violins; this spicy breath of rosesered exclamation he thrust it back blending, throbbing chords like elfin between the books and closed the echoes of an Italian harp. The fancy glass door.

Valiant had paled. His previous finding of the weapon had escaped his it an under-music, like a ghostly harpthe library, he looked into the dining- mind. Now he read, as clearly as if ing. it had been printed in black-letter across the sunny wall, the significance that this was no mere fancy. Someof the major's confusion. That weapon had been in his father's hand when was being played. He paused and lis- me! Oh, I know! But for you, I must he faced his opponent in that fatal mory Court between rows of candle- duel! It flashed across his mind as the sound. The rose scent had grown sticks worth twenty-thousand dollars. the doctor lunged for his hat and stick stronger; it was almost in that heavy been bitten. But don't let's talk of it." and got to his feet.

> tably. "Your feet will grow fast to the floor presently. We mustn't talk a new neighbor to death. I've got to see a patient at six."

CHAPTER XVII.

John Vallant Asks a Question. Valiant went with them to the outer door. A painful thought was flooding his mind. It hampered his speech and it was only by a violent effort that he found voice:

"One moment! There is a question would like to ask."

Both gentlemen had turned upon the steps and as they faced him he thought a swift glance .assed between them. They waited courteously, the doctor with his habitual frown, the major's hand fumbling for the black ribbon on his waistcoat.

"Since I came here, I have heard" -his tone was uneven-"of a duel in which my father was a principal. There was such a meeting?"

"There was," said the doctor after the slightest pause of surprise. "Had you known nothing of it?"

"Absolutely nothing." The major cleared his throat. "It was something he might naturally not have made a record of," he said. "The two had been friends, and it-it was It has grain lands and forest as well. the story. To be sure at this date a fatal encounter for the other. The doctor and I were your father's sec-

> There was a moment's silence before Valiant spoke again. When he did his voice was steady, though drops had sprung to his forehead. "Was there any circumstance in that meeting that might be construed as reflecting on his-honor?"

"Good God, no!" said the major explosively. "On his bearing as a gentleman?"

scent of the pressed leaves in the book

The odor of living roses in fact, was stars, with a sensation rather of glidemit sound-tones, scents also should ther."

pleased him; he could imagine the perfume no / in the air carried with

It came to him at the same instant where in the languorous night a harp tened intently, then went on toward air, as if he were breasting an etherial She shivered suddenly. "Come, Bristow," said the latter Irri- sea of attar. He felt as if he were

DROVE THE CAT TO SUICIDE | noticed that cat acting queerly every Representative Probably Did a Little Thinking After He Had Heard Policeman's Story.

"Alfalfa Bill" Murray, representative from Oklahoma, made a tour of Washington a short time ago with a party of friends. In due time they reached the Washington monument, and the Oklahoma statesman told at length of the beauties of the shaft. At the close of his peroration, Alfalfa Bill mopped his brow and turned love mushrooms will long for a time genially to a minion of the law nearby. in the Austrian Tyrol, where real "How about it," asked he; "isn't mushrooms grow. A traveler writing that some little talk on this ancient of the region says: Bordering the pile of masonry?" "You forgot about the cat," replied that official, imperturbably.

"What cat?" "The brindled cat of 1896."

Representative Murray. "Oh, nothing," replied the guard, evasively. "See here," said Mr. Murray, sternly, "I demand to know about this cat."

There was a hiatus this time in lived in the monument. Well, sir, me when it reached the weight of six

As her hand lay in his, a strange fancy stirred in him: in that woodmeeting she had seemed something witch-like, the wilful spirit of the passionate spring herself, mixed of her aerial essences and fungle wildernesses; in this scented lim-lit close she was grave-eyed, subdued, a paler pensive woman of under ... alf-guessed sadto allp from her like a garment. She

"I love to prowl myself. : think sometimes I like the night better than the day. I believe in one of my incarnations I must have been a pan-

They both laughed. "I'm growing superstitious about flowers," he said. "You know a rose figured in our first meeting. And in our last-"

She shrank momentarily. "The cape lessamines! I shall always think of that when I see them!"

"Ah, forgive me!" he begged. "But when I remember what you did-for have died."

"But for me you wouldn't have

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

H. G. STROHMEIER. CENTRE MALL Manufacturerief and Dealer in HIGH GRADE ... MONUMENTAL WORK in all kinds of Marble AND Granite. Bush for to get my per ROALSBURG TAYERS AMOS KOCH. PROFRIET well-known h opping at 'Oak' H ate the tra OLD PORT HOTEL EDWARD ROYER RATES PA dations firstmjoy an evening given special a for each constitute prepared on all ways prepared for the transient to

Location : One mile South of Contra Hall.

DR. SOL. M. NISSLEY.

VETERINARY SURGEON

A graduate of the University of Peine Office at Palace Livery Stable, Hel foute, Pa. Both 'phones, ----

Italian chestnut trees, so large that it took frem three to five of us to span the trunks of most of them. Under one of these one evening I saw "Well, what about him?" queried crouching what I took to be a small, dark gray kitten. Stooping, I found that it was not a kitten, but a mushroom. Our good peasant neighbor. hurrying toward me, begged that I would not disturb it, saving that she "It ain't much of a story," replied depended on this every year. After the guard. "Your talking there re- a few days of rain, what had seemed minded me of it. Y'see this here cat a kitten now looked a stately cat and three-quarters of an hour along this line, when blamed if that there cat didn't run all the way up 500 odd feet of steps and commit suicide by jumping off the top of the monument."-Washington Post.

Some Mushroom.

Epicures in the United States, who road that led up the mountain were time a party came along and was told about the beauties of .'this vast pile of masonry,' as you was saying. "Then one day along came a gent with some friends and talked for