Masher Not Entirely Out of It, If He Would Accept the Situation as It Was.

He was one of those insufferable young pests who patronize restaurants trying to flirt with stenographers and telephone girls who drop in about noon for lunch.

"I beg your pardon, miss." "Well?" interrogated the girl calmly. "Why, er—you see, it is this way. I made an engagement with a young lady whom I have never seen to meet me here. Now, are you waiting for me?"

The girl smiled queerly. "I might be waiting for you," she said.

"Ah! Indeed," responded the masher, delightedly.

"Yes. You see, I ordered lobster and it hasn't come yet."

DISFIGURED WITH PIMPLES

R. F. D. No. 2, Box 46, Matthews, Ga.—For three years or more I was troubled with pimples and blackheads.

At first my face would itch and burn and then the pimples would break out. They looked almost as if I had measles, causing great disfigurement. They would make my face very red and sore. Then they festered and came to a head and large boils would come on my chin and nose.

"I also had dandruff which caused my scalp to itch and burn. It itched and burned so that I had to scratch it until it was irritated. The dandruff scaled off and showed plainly in my hair. It also caused my hair to break off and become very thin. I used several remedies which did not cure and gave but little relief. After I received a free sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment I began using them according to directions. I secured two cakes of Cuticura Soap and two boxes of Cuticura Ointment, which cured me perfectly." (Signed) Miss Willie M. Walker, July 31, 1912.

Gave Hecklers a Chance.

At one time the Republicans of Chicago were out and were fighting Democracy on industrial conditions and the putative helplessness of a situation which did not let the Republicans in. A parade had started off and was well on its way—nearly to the file closers—when a ward boss saw that two lighted transparencies lacked carriers. He looked around hurriedly and noticed that one of his retainers was idle. "Here," he yelled, "shoulder this and get in line." The shanghaied recruit was a gambler who hustled himself in ward politics on occasions, but for the most stuck to his trade when trade was possible. As he hoisted the lighted legend, "Open up the mills and factories," there was a chorus of derisive yells from the sidewalk: "Never mind the mills. Open up the poker games."

Shakespeare and Bacon.

It has not been proven that Bacon wrote the plays known as Shakespeare's. The various attempts at such task have all turned out to be melancholy failures. It has been shown that there are many difficulties in the way of believing that the historical Shakespeare wrote the immortal dramas, but it has not been shown that anybody else wrote them. The Stratford man is still in possession of the glory of their authorship, and if he is not entitled to the honor it is impossible to say who is.

"Their Memory Grows Brighter With the Years"

MEMORIAL day to day, with its wealth of heroic and sacred memories, bears deeper significance to every true American than at any time since it was first promulgated in May, 1868, by Gen. John A. Logan, then commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic.

Think of what is inscribed within the compass of that little unassuming bronze button so proudly worn by the Union soldier, sailor and marine. What a flood of heroic and self-sacrificing memories burst upon us as we beheld it upon one of the great and mighty survivors of the greatest war that the world has ever fought.

That button—and who wouldn't give all that he has, and is hopes to be for the proud honor of being eligible to wear one of them—has inscribed upon it in living characters the matchless and valorous deeds of Grant and Sherman and Lincoln; of Sheridan, Thomas and Logan; of Custer and Meade and Farragut and Porter; the history of the campaigns of the armies of the Potomac, of the Cumberland and of the West; of the march to the sea, of Vicksburg, of Forts Henry and Donelson; of Atlanta, of the Wilderness, of Winchester, of Chickamauga, Corinth and Antietam; of sieges and battles and skirmish lines; of days of daring and nights of waking; of weary marches by day and by night, in cold, and storm, and heat; of parting of lovers and maidens; of farewells of husbands and wives; of prayers and blessings from friends and camp, ascending on high as divine incense; of agony and death, in prison and hospital, of great captains and heroic soldiers; of valor on sea and land; of the proclamation of Abraham Lincoln giving freedom to 4,000,000 slaves and wiping forever from the national escutcheon human slavery; of Gettysburg and Appomattox; of the downfall of the world's most desperate uprising, of a reunited country and the perpetuity of our glorious Union with its unspeakable blessings that are the nation's forever.

This record shall never fade away. It shall grow brighter and brighter as the years go by, scattering sparks of inspiration among the generations as they come and go.

Lincoln, Grant and the Union forces fought for national supremacy, for a greater and enduring nationality and maintained that our Union of States was indissoluble. Davis, Lee and their followers fought for state sovereignty and held that the Union of the states was merely a compact that could be dissolved at will.

Lincoln and Grant believed that this country could not long live and flourish by being half free and half slave. Davis, Lee and all others who fought to destroy our flag believed slavery was kin to a divine right, and that any state should be permitted to maintain and extend barter in slaves if it so wished to do.

These were vital issues in the conflict. These were the issues that divided our nation so bitterly and woefully, and drew forth more bravery, fortitude, hardships, privations, blood carnage and suffering on either side of the conflict than the world had ever seen before, and, may we hope, ever will see again.

Behold our country today! Behold the realization of the prophecies of Lincoln and his valiant host of seers and undaunted patriots. How greatly did they prophesy and labor for the land they held so dear. Truly they wrought greater than they then knew or hoped for. Truly they must have been inspired, guided and protected from on high.

Nation's Dead at Arlington

TO a generation that knows not war it sometimes is difficult to realize that there is love of country so great that men will leave wife and children and parents, leave home and its comforts and business and its promises and endure hardships, suffering and death itself that that country may endure.

That there is such a patriotism a Memorial day spent at Arlington, the National cemetery near Washington, is an impressive reminder. For the men who had that great love and upheld it with their lives lie there in the last bivouac, unmindful of the flowers which strew their resting places.

Arlington, never at any time to be visited without emotions that are felt by the most impassive, is doubly a place for reflection Memorial day. Twenty thousand men who offered their lives for their country are buried there, and on each grave on Memorial day is planted a flag, and at each headstone lies at least one wreath of flowers. Sixteen thousand graves, row on row in military precision, are ranged on a great level plateau called "The Field of the Dead," and the dulcet heart is stirred, the slowest pulse beats more quickly, at the sight of those 16,000 little flags fluttering in the breeze.

At the head of each grave is a simple stone bearing the name of the soldier and his number in the Roll of Honor, the roster kept by the war department of those who died in the service of their country. This Roll of Honor bears 250,000 names.

But not all those who gave up their lives for an ideal have the poor reward of a headstone and a number. Hundreds of bodies, gathered from fields over which the contending armies struggled, were never identified. All of these were laid in one common grave under a massive monument to "the Unknown Dead." On the face of the monument is inscribed:

BENEATH THIS STONE
Repose the bones of 1,111 unknown soldiers gathered after the war from the fields of Bull Run and the route to the Rappahannock. Their remains could not be identified, but their names and deaths are recorded in the archives of their country, and its grateful citizens honor them as their noble army of martyrs. May they rest in peace.

In its effect, perhaps, the most impressive feature of the Memorial day program at Arlington is the placing of a small American flag on each and every grave of this silent camp ground. Uncle Sam provides and stores in the basement of Arlington mansion a sufficient quantity of flags, 10 by 14 inches in size, to provide an emblem for each grave, and these mementoes are put in place by members of the G. A. R. posts and remain in position for a week following Memorial day. There are now about 22,000 persons buried in Arlington and, save in the officers' section, the graves are ranged in long rows, having a precision suggestive of military discipline, so that the spectacle of this vast array of waving flags is bound to be deeply moving to every spectator who has an atom of sentiment in his makeup.

THE SOLDIER BOY.

The man who wears the shoulder straps and has his sword in hand, Who proudly strides along in front, looks good and brave and grand; But marching in the ranks somewhere—just where I cannot see— With his gun upon his shoulder, is the soldier boy for me.

The man who wears the shoulder straps is handsome, brave and true; But there are other handsome boys, and other brave ones, too! When there are heights that must be won, while bullets fill the air, 'Tis not the officer alone who braves the dangers there.

The man who wears the shoulder straps is cheered along the way, And public honor dulls his dread of falling in the fray; But there are heights that must be won, while bullets fill the air, 'Tis not the officer alone who braves the dangers there.

The man who wears the shoulder straps deserves the people's praise; I honor and applaud him for the splendid part he plays; But, back there in the ranks somewhere, stout-hearted, true, is he— Prepared to do and nerve to dare—the soldier boy for me.

—Henry Howland.
