be killed, otherwise the slaughter of deer would be immense. Hunting parties in the past few years, upon their return from camp, have told amusing incidents of how the does have come up and looked into the gun barrels, and have refused to be chased. The bucks, on the other hand, are wily, and the hunter of sufficient prowess to bring down one with his rifle, covers himself with glory.

The most successful party in Penns Valley, or in this sec ion of the state, beyond a doubt, is the Bradford party, a loc l organization.
