

Official Vote in Districts.

The following shows the official figures of the vote cast for congressional and senatorial candidates in the various counties comprising the districts:

For Representative in Congress.

Centre county—Tobias, D, 2953; Rowland, R, 3689; M-yo, W, 573; Rittenhouse, S, 171; McLauren, P, 172. Clearfield county—Tobias, D, 4691; Rowland, R, 4202; Mayo, W, 1606; Rittenhouse, S, 840; McLauren, P, 438. McKean county—Tobias, D, 1482; Rowland, R, 1859; Mayo, W, 2169; Rittenhouse, S, 283; McLauren, P, 216. Cameron county—Tobias, D, 213; Rowland, R, 653; Mayo, W, 229; Rittenhouse, S, 10; McLauren, P, 23.

The total vote cast in the district for all candidates was 26,571, of which number Rowland received 10,403, and Tobias 9339, the Republican winning by a plurality of 1064. The vote by parties is as follows: Democratic, 9339; Republican, 10403; Washington, 4574; Socialist, 1304; Prohibition, 951.

For State Senator.

Centre county—Patterson, D, 3010; Miller, R, 3357; Multhrop, W, 799; Multhrop, P, 149; Johnson, S, 153. Clearfield county—Patterson, D, 3707; Miller, R, 3929; Multhrop, W, 2381; Multhrop, P, 756; Johnson, S, 896. Miller's total in the district is 7286; Patterson's total is 6716, the Republican candidate having a plurality of 569 in the district.

Successful on First Day's Hunt.

Harry Auman, a member of the railroad section crew at Coburn, on the first day killed a nice buck. He was hunting by himself in Little Poe Valley. William H. Homan, a member of the Potters Mills "Regulars", gets credit for bringing down the first buck in his party. It was killed on the first day and it is said to be a fine specimen. The Green Brier party, below Coburn, killed two on the first day. The Woodland party, in the Narrows, have one deer.

Electric Chair Installed.

The electric chair was installed in the death house at the new western penitentiary, at Rockview, on Monday. Penitentiary officials would not say when the first execution would take place, but it is said the chair would probably be used for the first time within a month. The death house is built entirely of steel and concrete and has cells for six condemned prisoners.

LOCALS

Sheridan Garis and Herbert Garis are working as extras on the local section crew.

John Martz is considering the matter of giving up his work on the railroad as a section hand and devoting his time to the shoemaking trade.

W. Harrison Walker, Esq., and Harry Fenlon, the insurance agent, represented Centre county as return judges in the congressional and senatorial districts, respectively. The judges met in Clearfield on Tuesday.

George W. Erhard has given up the idea of moving to Nebraska next spring and instead will move from the Bradford farm at Old Fort to the John Strerret farm, located two miles east of Milroy. The farm contains one hundred and sixty acres and is at present tenanted by Howard Ripka.

Aaronsburg.

Miss Sally Gulsewite is at present under the doctor's care.

Mrs. Henry Foster and daughter left for their Buffalo, N. Y., home. Quite a few from town were to Millheim Saturday evening and enjoyed the entertainment, "The Minister's Honeymoon".

Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Mingle returned from a pleasant visit with Mr. and Mrs. George McCormick at Potters Mills.

Mr. and Mrs. James Lenker and daughter Sarah from Lemont came in their car and spent Saturday with Mr. Lenker's mother and sister.

Mr. and Mrs. John Hackenburg and two children from Milton were welcome guests of their cousins, Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Stover.

Mrs. Jane Decker will spend the winter months at Woodward with her brother Al, who was brought home from the Bellefonte hospital.

Harry Homan and lady friend from Madisonburg were entertained by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Homan, one day last week.

Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Ardry, Mrs. Carson from Bellefonte and Mrs. Merrill from Philadelphia autoed to this place Thursday and spent a short time at the George Weaver home.

OLD HATS PUT TO GOOD USE

Discarded Headwear Finally Finds Up in Homes for the Aged and Unfortunate.

A man wearing a derby hat went into a New York hat store the other day to purchase a hat. When he had selected one that suited him he handed the clerk the money for the new hat, together with the derby.

"Here, take this," said the purchaser. "I have some bundles to carry home and I do not want to add anything to my burden. Give me a check and I will call in for the hat on Monday."

The clerk gave a check to the man and then remarked to a customer who had overheard the conversation:

"He will never return for that old hat. It is so old that he wouldn't be bothered carrying it home, so he decided to leave it here, excusing his act by declaring that he had other bundles to carry. Giving him a check was just a mere formality; that's why we made up the checks out of cheap material."

"Men must leave a large number of old hats here in a season?" inquired the customer.

"Yes, they do," responded the clerk, "but we have a method of disposing of them."

"How?" inquired the interested customer.

"Well, we hold all the hats left over until the end of the season. Then we send them to old men's homes, where there is always a demand for such headgear. The officers of the institutions divide the old hats among the inmates, who are delighted to get them. Isn't that a better plan than throwing them in the waste heap?"

SHIRK THEIR NATURAL DUTIES

Females of Many Species Leave Their Mates the Work of Rearing the Young.

It is the male stickleback who builds the nest; then goes out and drives the female in to lay her eggs, then straightway drives her out to prevent her eating them; then puts himself on guard to protect them from their other enemies, until the young shall hatch and be able to swim away by themselves, declares a writer in the Atlantic Monthly.

It is the male toadfish (Ostracochelys) that crawls into the nesthole and takes charge of the numerous family. He may dig the hole, too, as the male stickleback builds the nest. I do not know as to that. But I do know that I once raised a stone in the edge of the tide along the shore of Naushon Island in Buzzard's bay, to find its under surface covered with round, droplike, amber eggs, and in the shallow cavity beneath, an old male toadfish, slimy and croaking, and with a countenance ugly enough to tie a prowling eel into a hard knot. I have done this scores of times. The female deposits the eggs, gives them fast with much necty to the under surface of the rock, as a female night, and finishes her work. Departing at once she leaves the coming brood to the care of the male, who from this time, without relief or even food in all probability, assumes the role and all the responsibilities of mother.

Reading.

"Our bodies are what we eat," asserts an evening newspaper, and continues: "Our minds are what we read."

An exaggeration like this may serve to emphasize the importance of eating wholesome food and reading clean books. Scientifically, it is valueless. Mastication and digestion are processes as essential to getting the full value out of literature, as they are to getting the full value out of dinner. A thoughtful man benefits more largely from reading James Oppenheim or Leonard Merrick than a fool does from reading Meredith and Shakespeare. A discriminating mind puts one issue of this paper to a better use than a slovenly mind can do with 75 monthly magazines. We don't need to read more half so much as we need to read more intelligently.

Settled Knotty Law Point.

Law Notes reports a case before a justice of the peace in Oklahoma City in which opposing counsel were engaged in a spirited argument as to whether a certain objection to the introduction of testimony should be sustained by the justice. The justice tried to induce the attorneys to come to an agreement on the question, and one of them replied that it was impossible and insisted that the court rule on the objection. The question was then repeated to the witness, and the justice, after pondering the matter for some time, turned to the objecting attorney and said, "To save further argument I will let the witness answer the question, but I will not consider his answer."

Individualism.

A condition of society that will permit the individual to acquire the full measure of reward for labor, be it done with brain or brawn; that will restrain the strong from impinging on the weak; that will nurture a kindly humanity for the helpless and afflicted; that will not coddle in indolence the degenerate progeny of worthy parents; that will assure to the thrifty the necessities and a fair share of the pleasures of life, and yet permit of an accumulation to this end; and that they may provide for themselves and their dear ones against the time of the lengthening shadows, when the day's work shall have been done.—John F. Miller.

Too Much Athleticism.

"As guardians of the public health, it is time for us to make a stand against this athletic craze," writes a medical correspondent. "The swinging of ponderous clubs and dumbbells, rowing heavy machines, pulling up weights, walking 15 or 20 miles a day chasing a golf ball, etc., are needless and injurious to anyone. As physicians, we prescribe moderate exercise for lymphatic and obese patients of torpid temperament, and a few indicated movements to straighten up a deflected spine or round shoulders, etc., but we are careful to guard against fatigue. Such exercise is a very different thing from the severe and senseless efforts required by teachers in gymnastics and exercise fiends.

"If people would live long and healthy," says the correspondent, "they should take their exercise under the advice of a common-sense physician. The wrenching of muscles, tendons, ligaments, joints, nerves and bloodvessels," he proceeds, "is giving us all kinds of puzzling conditions, traumatic neuroses, dislocated viscera, etc., traceable to overexercise, if we only knew where to look for it."

Had Two Good Reasons.

Upton Sinclair said the other day in New York:

"Everybody is jumping up and saying that poverty, bitter and grinding poverty, has nothing to do with making girls go wrong. Well, for my part, I think that such assertions are too charitable toward modern social conditions, too charitable toward modern employers.

"Such charity reminds me of the young lady who asked:

"Did pretty Tottie Footlites marry the septuagenarian Gobba Golde for love or money?"

"For both," the young lady answered charitably, and she added, "Lottie loves money, you know."

Peculiar Japanese Frog.

The Japanese frog is a creature measuring between fifteen and twenty-five inches. The skin of its back is pale blue and by night looks dark green or olive brown. The frog remains motionless during the day, with eyes sheltered from the light and with belly up, clinging to its support by adhesive cushions and by its belly, which is provided with a sticky covering, and it is hardly distinguishable from the objects that surround it. At night-fall it begins its hunt for the mammoth crickets on which it feeds, making leaps covering seven feet of ground.—Harper's Weekly.

Shall He Still Be King?

I ask you to sign my next petition, because I am the mightiest king that ever lived. Other kings have yielded to me as a child to his sire, even have I laughed at all the gods of every land from Osiris to Jehovah.

With my breath have I wiped whole nations from the face of the earth.

For me have men discarded honor and women virtue. I destroy ambition, ruin statesmen—and still they love me.

I fill insane asylums and prisons, house my subjects in hovels and feed them on husks. Still they love me.

Fathers give me their sons, mothers their daughters and maidens their lovers and beg me to stay.

With one touch I have ruined great industries. Judges yield to my power and lawyers forget under my spell to plead.

I burn cities. With one touch have I sunk navies and destroyed great armies.

I never sleep.

I turn gold into dross, health into misery, beauty into caricature, and pride to shame. The more I hurt the more I am sought.

I, by turns, raise a man to highest heaven and sink him to deepest hell.

I am Satan's right hand man. I do his work free by, cheerfully and without pay, yet he is ashamed of me.

My name is Rum. —Adapted.

REAL ESTATE AT PRIVATE SALE.
