A FOOD DRINK

Which Brings Daily Enjoyment. A lady doctor writes: "Though busy hourly with my own affairs, I will not deny myself the pleasure of taking a few minutes to tell of the enjoyment obtained daily from my morning cup of Postum."

"I began to use Postum 8 years ago; not because I wanted to, but because coffee, which I dearly loved, made my nights long, weary periods to be dreaded and unlifting me for business during the day."

"On advice of a friend, I first tried Postum, making it carefully as suggested on the package. As I had always used 'cream and no sugar,' I mixed my Postum so. It looked good, was clear and fragrant, and it was a pleasure to see the cream color it as my Kentucky friend always wanted her coffee to look, 'like a new saddle.'"

"Then I tasted it critically, for I had tried many 'substitutes' for coffee. I was pleased, yes, satisfied with my Postum in taste and effect, and am yet, being a constant user of it all these years."

"I continually assure my friends and acquaintances that they will like Postum in place of coffee, and receive benefit from its use. I have gained weight, can sleep and am not nervous."

Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

Postum comes in two forms: Regular Postum—must be well boiled. 15c and 25c packages. Instant Postum—is a soluble powder. A teaspoonful dissolves quickly in a cup of hot water, and with cream and sugar makes a delicious beverage instantly. 30c and 50c tins.

Both kinds are equally delicious and cost per cup about the same.

MANY BALL PLAYERS WASTE THEIR TIME

President John K. Tener of National League and Clark Griffith, Manager of Washington Nationals.

That the ball player of today does not make the most of his opportunities is the opinion of Malachi Kittredge, the old time catcher, now engaged in business in Cleveland.

"The big league ball player," says Kittredge, "has the easiest job there is. He does not even have to pack his uniform. That is done for him at the clubhouse. His hand baggage is taken to the train for him. He rides in a lower berth. Arriving at another town, he is met by a taxicab while his baggage is taken to the hotel in a wagon. He does not even have to write his name on the hotel register. He finds his room and a good one with bath reserved for him."

"He has nothing to do except to report at the grounds at 2 p. m., practice and then take part in the game. His evenings are his own as are his mornings, except at home, when some clubs have practice sessions. He has more idle time upon his hands than any man engaged in any other profession, yet he fails to take advantage of it by fitting himself for some other profession or business to take up when his baseball days are over."

"The average player when on the road mornings, takes walks, plays cards or sits around the hotel lobbies fanning. Evenings you can find him either at some theater or playing pool, billiards or cards. If he were to devote some of his time to study, he would be preparing himself for the future. Of course, he cannot study too much and run the risk of injuring his eyes, but an hour a day would not hurt him and when he quits baseball he would find himself well advanced on some other profession."

Then Kit shifted the topic of conversation. He does not relish the oftprinted story that the old-time baseball player was a rough-neck, not to be compared to the college-bred player of today.

"I guess they forget about the famous old Chicago White Sox," says Kittredge. "Of that team, John K. Tener became governor of Pennsylvania and president of the National League; Anson was county clerk of Cook county, which means Chicago; Mark Baldwin is a famous surgeon in Pittsburgh; Ad Gumbert was sheriff of Pittsburgh; Hutchinson, the great pitcher, is a railroad official out West; Walter Wilmut is a banker in Minneapolis, and Clark Griffith is pretty well up in the baseball game."

"And the White Sox didn't have them all, either. Take your Cleveland team here. Chief Zimmer did well in business. So did Jim McAlleer. Patsy Tebeau has been successful in business in St. Louis; Cy Young acquired a small fortune, well invested, while George Tebeau and Jesse Burkett have stuck to the game as magistrates and done well. In fact, I think if you would investigate you would find that the majority of the old-timers have done well since quitting the game, indicating that they were not the rowdies the later day writers would have the public believe."

Whitted May Succeed Paakert. What's this we hear? George Whitted may succeed Dode Paakert in center field for the Phillies. How that Whitted boy is growing! He wasn't good enough to be a substitute with the Cardinals, then George Stallings got him and put a new spirit in him, and now he's counted better than one of the best outfielders in the National League.

IS STAR SOUTHPAW TWIRLER

"Rube Benton of Cincinnati Reds began His Professional Career With Class D Team.

J. C. ("Rube") Benton, the big southpaw twirler of the Cincinnati National League club, was born in Clinton, N. C., June 27, 1890. He began his professional career with the Macon team of the South Atlantic league in 1910, and proved a sensation. Several clubs bid for his services, but he finally went to the Reds for $7,500, an unusual price at that time for a Class D player. The Rube lacked experience and was sent to Chattanooga in 1911, where he was not only a leading pitcher but outclassed the league heavies in striking out batsmen. He returned to the Reds in the fall and has been with them since.

Summer of 1913 he was injured in a motorcycle accident and was suspected for the balance of the season, as an object lesson, as he had apparently forgotten the fact that he was being paid for playing ball and not for joy riding every night. Benton stands six feet one inch in height and weighs 185 pounds.

FASTEST MEN IN BASEBALL

Fritz Maisel of Yankees Given Credit for More Speed Than Ty Cobb, Hans Lobert or Milan.

From first to second or from second to third, Maisel is the fastest man in baseball; a full step faster than Cobb or Lobert or Milan. "If I ever hit 300," says Fritz, "and don't steal 120 bases I'll eat my leg."

"Which is the hardest to steal, second or third?" he was asked. "Third."

Fritz Maisel of Yankees.

was his reply. "It's just a matter of walking down and stopping at second base."

Asked what percentage of steals he was able to put over—that is, the number of times he was able to arrive safely out of a certain number of starts—Maisel said: "The only time I kept track was through two weeks, when I started sixteen times and stole fourteen bases, which is fair enough."

NOTES OF THE DIAMOND

The Memphis club of the Southern league has taken on the veteran Orville Woodruff.

The release by Little Rock of Pitcher Charles Case marks the passing of one of the Southern league veterans.

Pitcher Alfred (Red) Nelson has found another berth. News comes from Den Moines that he has signed with Frank Iabel.

Apparently a major league season can't be run without an O'Connor behind the bat. The Phillies have a youngster of the name.

Cleveland's slogan is "the Sixth City," and the Cleveland ball club seems to be trying to keep them at that stage or below it.
