It is true that nature and a woman's work was produced the grandest remedy for woman's ills that the world has ever known. From the roots and herbs of the field, Lydia E. Pinkham, forty years ago, gave to womankind a remedy for their peculiar ills which has proved more efficacious than any other combination of drugs ever com-pounded, and today Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is recognized from coast to coast as the standard remedy for woman's ills.

In the Pinkham Laboratory at Lynn, Mass., are files containing hundreds of thousands of letters from women seeking health - many of them openly state over their own signatures that they have regained their health by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound: and in some cases that it has saved them from surgical operations.

KEEP SWINE HEALTHY HANDY AS POTATO MARKER Wheelbarrow Arranged With Pine Scours in Pigs Often Caused By

Improper Feeding.

To Correct Trouble Give Sow Dose of Sulphate of Iron in Her Slop-Keep Young Animals in Dry, Sunny Quarters.

(By A. S. ALEXANDER.) When young nursing pigs begin to scour it is evident that the milk of the sow is disagreeing with them and immediate attention, therefore, should be directed toward improving her rations. Most often the trouble comes from overfeeding on corn, or other in sides, and press- rich food, just after farrowing, and pigs of fat, flabby, cross, nervous, constipated sows are most apt to suffer. Sudden changes of food, or feeding sour swill, or food from dirty troughs also tend to cause diarrhea either in nursing pigs or those that have been weaned, and all such cases should be prevented or removed.

> To correct scouring in nursing pigs, give the sow 15 to 20 grains of sulphate of iron (copperas) in her slop night and morning and, if necessary, slightly increase the doses until effective. Lime water may, with advantage, be freely mixed with the slop as a preventive when there is a tendency to derangement, or after the trouble has been checked, and also is an excellent corrective for weaned pigs showing a tendency to scour on slop or skimmed milk. When, little pigs are scouring severely, each may be given a raw egg and five to ten grains of subnitrate of bismuth twice Jaily in addition to changing the food of the sow and mixing copperas in her slop. In cases which do not respond promptly to treatment, success may follow the administration of a dose of castor oil shaken up in milk.

In system feverish and the muscles and Constipation seldom troubles where hogs are fed laxative foods, such as during the winter season, and in addition are made to take abundant outdoor exercise. In the common disease of young largement, bending and distortion of the bones of the joints and limbs, and fractures of leg bones are not uncommon. The bones of the body in affected pigs lack their normal proportion of mineral material and have an excess of vegetable matter. The tendency to the disease is hereditary and most likely to be seen in closely inbred hogs or those of herds kept under insanitary conditions and long imperfectly nourished upon unbalanced rations. The excessive feeding of corn to generation after generation doubtless induces a weakness of constitution conducive to rickets and the disease may appear as a result of any aggravating circumstance productive of malnutrition.

Strips Hinged to Bottom Center Board Proves Satisfactory. Last spring we had occasion to fit a very stumpy piece of sandy new ground for early potatoes. The one and two horse corn markers would not work because of so many stumps. The wheelbarrow being near with seed up on it a happy thought struck me-this would roll over the rough ground roots, etc., and leave a distinct marl in the soil, besides running easily writes G. A. Randall in Farm and Home.

A half-inch hole was bored through the bottom center board and two pieces, c, of inch pine strips 36 inches long were hinged, as shown, to a cen ter section, e, fastened with a wire through the holes, f, to the bottom board. On the outer ends of these strips a light runner, a, extends to the ground and slants back. These run ners with the wheel in the center make three distinct marks when pushed across the field. In coming to a stump either or both sections are easily folded back until the obstruc tion is passed, then dropped to posl tion again to mark.

Being light and mounted on a center wheel it pushed as easily as a wheel barrow seeder and was extremely easy to guide; marks clear across the field being straight as those made with a In all cases it is important to set line and very distinct. When not ir use for a marker the sections art

Counterfeit Dairy Cow Has No Place on Pasture or in Feed Yard-Discard Poor Producers.

(By ROUD M'CANN, Colorado Experi-ment Station.) The development of the increasing demand for well-bred dairy cattle is that under present production conditions, the counterfeit dairy cow has no place on the pasture or in the feedyard.

During the past few years difficulty of replenishing and starting herds with good animals has confronted the dairy farmer at every turn. High feed bills have demonstrated the futility of expecting satisfactory returns when keeping poor producers, and the wideawake, progressive, businesslike dairymen are centering their demanda on merit, of which there must be a greater supply to meet this demand. Foreign competition has created a well grounded impression that the most effective way of evading it is better products.
