Bordeaux Mixture for Potatoes.

A Pennsylvania potato grower wrote to State Zoologist H. A. Surface, Harrisburg, asking for detailed information for making Bordeaux mixture. He especially wanted to know if quick lime was to be used, and if it will injure the vines. As Bordeaux mixture is now recognized as the best possible material for spraying potatoes and grapes to keep them free from diseases, as well as to repel certain kinds of insects, this reply contains information that should be applied on every farm in this state. It is as follows:

"Bordeaux mixture consists of nothing more nor less than quick lime or freshly burned lime, and bluestone or copper sulfate. It has been recently proven that this is the best possible material for spraying grapes and potatoes, and that its use will greatly increase the potato yield, even when no pests are present. It appears, from experiments recently performed and published, that Bordeaux mixture greatly increases the vigor of the potato plant, and promotes its ability to form carbohydrates and to store up starch in the tubers. Sprayed vines live longer and produce fewer culls or small potatoes than do those unsprayed, even when blight or insects do not occur.

For potatoes and grapes use four pounds of quick lime and three pounds of bluestone in fifty gallons of water. This will not injure the vines. Dissolve the bluestone in any kind of vessel excepting metal by using hot water.

Slake the lime in another vessel, and add enough water to make it thick, so you can pour it. Fill your spray barrel half full of water, and pour in the milk of lime, and the bluestone without mixing them together until after one or the other is diluted. In other words, do not put together your strong solution of bluestone and your thick lime mixture, but dilute one or the other or both first before mixing them. Then if you have potato beetles or flea beetles that you wish to kill add one pound of dry arsenate of lead, or two pounds of arsenate of lead paste to the fifty gallons of Bordeaux mixture. This makes Bordeaux an arsenate of lead. The Bordeaux is to prevent the blight and the arsenate is for the beetles."

Weaver Pianos Endorsed By Sacred Heart Academy, Lancaster, Pa.

"After a careful investigation and thorough test we purchased two of your high-grade, upright Weaver Pianos, in September, 1901. We are pleased to report that the pianos have more than met our expectations. We find the actions carefully adjusted and the pianos capable of the finest shades of expression. The tone is of a substantial character and there is a pleasing absence of any metallic tendency. The tone gives immense volume when demanded and is just as pleasing in the pianissimo effects.

We are convinced that the pianos are instruments of the highest class and we take pleasure in recommending them.

Yours very truly,
Sister Superior,
Sacred Heart Academy

12 COMMANDMENTS OF HEALTH.

It Carried Out Would Reduce World's Death Rate Fifty Per Cent. Says Centennial.

Twelve commandments of health which, he claims, if followed would reduce the world's death rate fifty per cent. were given by Dr. R. N. Foster at the New Jerusalem (Swedenborgian) church in Chicago. Dr. Foster, formerly a member of the faculty of Hahnemann Medical college, is nearly eighty-two years old. He attributes his longevity basically to the dozen rules of right living which he outlined to his adult Bible class at the church.

The commandments follow:

- I. Do not eat too much. One hundred die before their time from overeating to one who dies from starvation.
 - II. Do not drink too much, especially of intoxicating beverages; they have slain their millions.
 - III. Do not work too hard or too many hours daily; be moderate.
 - IV. Do not be always in a hurry; a walk at two or three miles an hour may be prolonged to twelve hours or more daily without tiring.
 - V. Do not work too little; this ruins more human beings ten times over than does excess of labor. Better that a man should work all day for nothing than to be idle.
 - VI. Do work, no matter how simple, that links itself up with the common good, not with decadence; this relationship makes all work dignified and worthy; all other is destructive.
 - VII. Take just what sleep experience shows best maintains your health and strength; no more, no less.
 - VIII. Do not indulge in recreation for its own sake but for refreshment and renewed vigor for the serious duties of life.
 - IX. Dress primarily for use and comfort; secondarily for show and ornament, not vice versa.
 - X. Avoid excess of care, excitement, or anxiety; they enfeeble both mind and body.
 - XI. Shun all trespasses against the plain physiology of your existence and your reward will surely be your maximum of health, comfort, joy, and life.
 - XII. And, finally, this lays the surest external foundation for the life of the spirit here and hereafter.
- The members of the Bible class range in ages from 25 to 85.
