- Ellis L. Orvis, 67.

The Result in the Borough.
The vote in the borough was well recorded, 104 out of a possible 110 Democratic voters having expressed their preference. Only a portion of the local ticket was filled in by petition, the most important blank being for council, and for this office about thirty persons were voted for. The candidates having the larger number of votes cast for them are recorded below:

The Republican vote in the borough was thirty-eight. The following ticket was named:

Roseman; high constable, W. A. Henney; school director, C. F. Emery, 4 years; F. J. McClallan, 6 years; E. F. Bitner, 6 years.

Auto Hits Flock of Sheep.
An automobile carrying five passengers drove into a flock of sheep which were being driven home by J. C. Goodhart on Monday evening, killing one and badly injuring another. Mr. Goodhart had purchased eight sheep from William Markle and they were delivered to the O. D. Fort from which point Mr. Goodhart started to drive them to his home at Centre Hill. Upon reaching the hollow between Old Fort and the hill at George Potter's, an automobile was seen to come toward the flock. Owing to the darkness and the auto's bright lights Mr. Goodhart was unable to distinguish any of the party or tell immediately what damage had been done. He saw, however, that at least one sheep had been injured and as the car passed him he apprised the party of the fact. The driver undoubtedly thought the matter of little consequence and never stopped to ascertain the extent of the damage done. Mr. Goodhart thinks that he will be able to learn the identity of the reckless driver and cause him to pay dear for his trick.

GREAT WRITER A REAL BOY

Charles Dickens, Like the Average Youngster, Had His Dreams of Becoming a Pirate.

The English boys of years ago—there never was any doubt as to American boys of that or any other period before or after—had romantic ideas as to becoming ruthless robbers by land or pirates on the high seas is shown by a recently discovered speech made by Charles Dickens and reported in the London Times of April 13, 1864, from which the following quotation from the London Dickensian is taken: "Mr. Dickens said his first recollections of the northwest of London (this was in 1824, when he was twelve years old), were connected with a certain waste plot of ground used almost exclusively for beating carpets. The only ornaments of the locality, were a piece of stagnant water, a few straggling docks and some stunted greens. With it, however, was associated the romantic story of the 'Field of the Forty Footsteps,' according to which a duel had been fought there between two brothers, the forty dreadful paces over which the victor pursued his victim being marked by the withering up of the grass in forty distinct places. Dickens had often gone there, he said, accompanied by an adventurous young Englishman, aged eleven, with whom he had intended going to the Spanish Main as soon as ever they could amass sufficient wealth to buy a cutlass and a rifle."

The University of London afterward was erected on this site. Dickens as a boy in April, 1827, saw the cornerstone laid and "the ceremony of laying the first stone of a new and splendid public building" of which Mr. Pecksniff was the architect, as narrated in "Martin Chuzzlewit" was a reminiscence of this event.

WHITES POOR PEARL DIVERS

Tried in Australia, but All Engaged in the Business Are Either Dead or Paralyzed.

Efforts have recently been made to employ white men as pearl divers off the coast of Australia, and legislation for the purpose has been adopted, in order to more fully open that industry to Europeans.

But it now appears that the experiment has been by no means satisfactory. A very interesting statement on this subject has recently been made by Captain Talboys, who has had wide experience of pearling on the Australian coast. He says emphatically that white divers are an impossibility.

He had hoped that the white man would have proved a successful diver, but he says that, after a very lengthy experiment, the idea had been abandoned.

The divers, six or eight of them, who were brought to Australia by the master pearlmen, from Messrs. Stebe, Gorman & Co., and Messrs. Henkle & Co., submarine engineers, about two years ago, were all either dead or paralyzed.

In view of the further facts alleged, there appears to be no scope for white pearl divers in Australian waters. For, as the result of a year's diving, says Captain Talboys, the best returns of the white divers did not exceed a ton, whilst the average yield of an Asiatic's work was between four and five tons.

Besides, the Asiatic worked for $10 to $15 per month, plus a commission on the shell raised, while the white man received $70 per month, with a similar commission, in addition to which the cost of keep for the white man was about three times that expended on the Asiatic.—Far East, Tokio.

Dignifying the Oyster.

Mr. Justice Darling has defined a sheriff as something which is half-way between an oyster and a lord mayor. But Thackeray anticipated the judge in attributing human intelligence to oysters. "I was walking with him one evening from the club," writes Edmund Yates, "and, passing a fish-shop in New street, he noticed two different tubs of oysters, one marked 'Is a dozen,' the other 'Is 3d. a dozen.' 'How they must hate each other!' said Thackeray, pointing them out."

Mrs. Wm. Bachman is at the home of her grandmother, Mrs. Susanna Spangler, in Centre Hall. It is four years since she was last in her old home town. She now lives in Lebanon, and is here for a brief rest. Mrs. Bachman will be recalled as Miss Kate Barger. She spent her youth here, having been a member of the Spangler family.
