No, Kerluis are not paying 48 cents per dozen for white eggs; this week they are paying 50 cents.

Robert Meyer, a guard at the new penitentiary at Rockview, spent a day last week with his parents at this place.

Progress Grange is preparing a real Thanksgiving supper in their hall tonight (Thursday) and the public is asked to give its patronage.

The ground was covered with a light blanket of snow for several hours Monday morning. Wednesday morning Mother Earth was again robed in white.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel L. Geary of Newport, Perry county, are spending the Thanksgiving season with their son, F. P. Geary, and family, in this place.

Harry W. Potter of Edmonds, Washington, who is visiting his father in this place, left for Watsontown on Wednesday to spend several days with his uncle, T. P. Hyses.

Frank and Rowe Young, two young robust farmers who for several years past have been employed by the farmers in Earllystowr, left on Monday for Akron, Ohio, where they will seek employment in the rubber works.

It is most probable that a fat hen will grace a majority of the Thanksgiving boards where in previous years a turkey was wont to be. The price of the big bird has soared out of reach of the average person's purse this year. Farmers have been unfortunate in raising but small flocks of turkeys where in former years the number was much larger.

On Monday the State-Centre Electric Company began stringing its wires over Nittany Mountain. As soon as this work is completed the wiring of business places and private dwelling houses in Centre Hall will be commenced, manager McManaway having already secured contracts from a number of individuals providing for the furnishing of light.

Wilbur E. Burkholder, a native of Centre Hill, and who for a number of years held the position of assistant passenger agent for the Pennsy at Bellefonte, has been appointed a successor to the late Alexander Pearor, deceased, passenger agent at Phillipsburg. Mr. Burkholder entered upon his new duties on Saturday and will move his family as soon as he secures a home.

George Ishler missed by an inch hitting his foot with a .32-calibre rifle ball, Friday, while preparing to kill a beef for J. W. Mitterling. The gun which he was using was an old one and in order to get the shell in the barrel it was necessary to use extraordinary pressure and this he endeavored to apply by using the hammer of the gun. The shell exploded but fortunately Mr. Ishler had the gun pointed to the ground in close proximity to his foot. The bullet tore a gaping hole in the earth.

As mentioned in last week's issue of this paper, Millheim borough voted favorably on a proposition to erect an electric light plant in their town. The contract was made with L. M. Yoder of Belleville to install a plant in a building to be erected by the borough authorities in the rear of the town hall property, says the Millheim Journal. The plant is to consist of an 80-h. p. boiler, 42-h. p. engine and a 30-kilo-watt direct current Bullock compound generator, with a capacity of 1500 lights of 25-watt size, which was deemed by the council ample for Millheim for a long time. The plant is to be tested for a period of fifteen days after installation and Prof. Kaznerman of State College, who was sought for advice on the size of plant required, will then pass judgement, and if he says the plant comes up to the requirements of the contract the borough will pay the sum of $3,425 to Mr. Yoder.

Hunting Notes.

Rabbit, turkey, pheasants, squirrels, etc., may not be killed after the 30th of this month.

Daniel Bloom, of near Centre Hall, succeeded in killing a young gobbler on Monday morning. The turkey was found on the mountain near the House of Lords.

C. M. Arney came across a flock of twelve wild turkeys in Heckman's old orchard, Monday afternoon. The experienced hunter failed to outwit the birds, however, and before he could get in good shooting range the entire flock raised from the ground and made off to the mountain. A last minute effort resulted in crippling one of the turkeys but not sufficiently to land the prize.

Two game warden, in full hunting garb, passed along Nittany Mountain on Tuesday and accosted several hunters who failed to have their red tags displayed on their coat sleeves. In most instances the hunter had the tag either sewed on the inside of his coat or carried it in his pocket. The wardens admonished them to obey the law in the matter.

It is estimated that between 125 and 150 wild turkeys have been killed in the mountains of Centre county in the little more than three weeks of the season. Of this number not one has fallen to the prowess of a Centre Hall hunter, although since the discovery of a large flock of turkeys last week below town it is possible that in the five remaining days of the season a bird may yet go down in defeat to a local hunter.

Wednesday of next week is December 1st, the opening day of the deer season in Pennsylvania. The law permits the killing of buck deer only with visible horns and only one to an individual. The season lasts two weeks. The Bradford hunting party will leave for their hunting grounds in Stone Creek on Tuesday, so that every detail in the preparation of the camp will have been completed before the opening day, when the eighteen hunters will sail forth with their high-power rifles to slay whatever bucks they might find within a radius of six miles of their camp. The Stone Creek hunting grounds has proven to be a prolific producer of deer in years past and the Bradfords usually bring home with them six or seven bucks as a result of a two weeks' chase.
