

DEATHS.

After a month's illness with a complication of diseases, during which time she suffered the utmost agony, Mrs. Kathryn Fetterolf passed into eternal rest Tuesday night at her home in Centre Hall. Up until taking her bed Mrs. Fetterolf engaged in the hardest kind of work to maintain her home and when her constitution finally rebelled against the great tasks imposed upon it, her decline was rapid and sure. Mrs. Fetterolf held no fear of death and welcomed the hour that the final summons would come. Her life was one of pure Christian living; a devoted mother, and a sympathetic neighbor and friend, mildly expressing her virtues.

Funeral services will be held in the Lutheran church this (Thursday) morning and burial in the local cemetery, R. V. D. S. Kurtz, her pastor, officiating.

Mr. Fetterolf was born in Snyder county sixty-two years ago and after her marriage to Howard Fetterolf in Millin county, removed to Snyder county, subsequently removing to near Centre Hall and occupying the Huetz farm. Later they moved to this borough where her husband died twenty-six years ago.

Surviving her are five children, William, east of Centre Hall; James and Mrs. Newton E. Emerick, of this place; Mrs. Clarence Weaver, of Pine Grove Mills, and Frank, at home. Also three brothers and one sister, James, John, William and Miss Bezie Krich, of McClure, Snyder county.

Miss Grace I. Bailey died at the Bailey home, at Pine Grove Mills, Sunday morning, of that much dreaded and fatal disease, typhoid pneumonia. She had been ill of typhoid fever for three weeks and was convalescing when she was smitten and both lungs became affected, thus ending a sweet life. Death is doubly sad when it lays its icy hands on one so young and full of promise, just budding into young womanhood. Grace Irene Bailey was born at State College, March 10, 1901, and was the oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Calvin Bailey, who survive, with two brothers and two sisters, Mildred, Doretha, Russell, and William E. Burial was made Wednesday morning in the new cemetery at Pine Grove Mills, her pastor and friend, Rev. E. C. Stover, officiating.

Mr. and Mrs. Ira Wright of Pine Grove Mills, are mourning the death of their oldest son, Charles, who died Friday night after two weeks illness of pneumonia, aged eight years. He was a bright lad and was born at Colville. His parents, one sister and two brothers survive. Burial was made at Myers cemetery Monday morning.

Rev. Michael J. Fanning, the Irish orator, delivered one of the soundest and most powerful lectures on temperance that was ever heard from the local rostrum, on Monday evening. Grange Arcadia was only sparsely filled but his talk was worthy of a crowded hall. To the cynic whose argument that "Prohibition does not prohibit," Mr. Fanning directed a hard blow when he said that the blame for the apparent failure of prohibition was not with prohibition itself, but with the licensed states lying contiguous to the non-licensed states. Be reasonable, he said, and put the blame where it belongs. Mr. Fanning's lecture resulted in a number of pledges for financial aid to the movement in the state being made.

MILLHEIM'S CO-OPERATION NEEDED.

Surrounding Villages and Rural Sections Need Millheim's Support on the Electricity Proposition.

In another column of this issue is reprinted an item from the Millheim Journal stating in effect that the council of that borough had taken action whereby an electric light plant would be installed by the municipality, the cost of which is to be $3425. The writer was informed later that a considerable number of citizens oppose the proposition, and that at the present time the contract has not been made binding. The division of opinion among citizens is some guarantee, provided the council is sane, that ultimately the best proposition will be adopted, for from no viewpoint can borough officials afford to spend large sums of money or bind its taxpayers to contracts not favored by the great majority.

The Centre Reporter is interested in the Millheim proposition largely because of the fact that the conclusions reached by the borough authorities and citizens of Centre Hall is the direct opposite to that attained by the council of Millheim. The towns are so similarly situated and the conditions so alike that to come to diametrically opposite conclusions on the same subject must indicate that either we are radically wrong in Centre Hall or else the Millheim authorities have not made as diligent inquiry as the case demands.

The best information obtained here was that no plant that would give a semblance of satisfaction could be installed in Centre Hall with an outlay of less than $10,000; that the first cost of production per unit would be higher than the cost if purchased by the individual direct from the State-Centre Electric Company at ten cents per k. w.; that this high cost would be on account of the heavy cost of operating, an experienced mechanic being necessary, the depreciation of the plant great; that the cost of meters alone (assuming there were one hundred patrons and the current such as is proposed in the plant Millheim has in contemplation) being $1100; the excessively heavy wire needed where a direct current is used, etc., etc.

Another great objection offered to all plants operated by the small municipalities is that only night service can be furnished. What then about the flat irons, heaters, toasters, day picture shows, cloudy days, dark cellars, fans, vacuum cleaners, motors, power for the larger industries in the future?

A phase of the question never developed but always kept in mind by the Reporter when it was being discussed here was that the installation of a local plant would of necessity debar the whole farming community of the privilege of the use of electricity. It is the country upon which small towns (or for all that many large towns) live, and it is therefore of mutual benefit if expenditures by the municipalities is in such a way that the country surrounding it will be indirectly, if not directly, benefited.

With an investment of $3425, and fuel three miles distant, Millheim certainly does not contemplate accommodations for Coburn, Aaronsburg, Rebersburg and the strictly farming community in lower Penns Valley, and yet without the patronage of Millheim no foreign electric company would ever volunteer to give service in that quarter.

This paper is interested in the development of Penns Valley and it believes that a flow of an electric current through its entire length will do much for the comfort and financial welfare of its people. It is much more interested in a movement that will ultimately result in general good to a large number of people than it is whether or no Millheim borough squanders several thousand dollars for an equipment that in a few years will go to the scrap heap and half service at the best. At present Millheim holds the key to a situation that will give Penns Valley a boost or a "knock."

Which, gentlemen, which?

The Krumrine home on Highland Ave., State College, almost went up in smoke last Thursday. J. A. Decker is the tenant and he had most of his household effects stored in the cellar, where the fire originated, being caused by the electric wire. It had gotten such headway between the studding that holes had to be cut in the wall and the hose turned on. The flames were quenched but not until much of Mr. Decker's goods were burnt or damaged by the flood of water. It was fortunate that the building was saved.

Weaver Piano Adopted By Southern Methodist Assembly.

The Methodist Episcopal Church, South, has spent more than a million and a half of dollars on their Assembly Grounds at Lake Junaluska, N. C. These grounds are located in the heart of the mountains, embrace 1200 acres and a lake of 252 acres that is 2500 feet above sea level. Everything about the undertaking is built for the future, and present plans include an expenditure greater than that already made.

On these grounds is an all steel auditorium, seating 4,000 people, in which a Grand Piano was used in the summer of 1914. During the summer of 1915 a Weaver 57 Upright Piano was used and proved so satisfactory, the Assembly have now purchased it for permanent use in the Auditorium.

The Weaver Piano is justly entitled to its position as the World's Leading Upright Piano. It is everywhere recognized as an artistic triumph. I will be glad to tell you more about this noble instrument.
