H. I. Foust of Center Hill was one of the Reporter's callers last week, and to get the news to his son, John I. Foust, in Maple Park, Illinois, subscribed for the Reporter for him. Mr. Foust is living comfortably in his home purchased a year or more ago and had no fear of receiving a "quit" notice on January 1st.

Miss Laura Mitterling was hostess to a number of young people, at the J. W. Mitterling home, on Wednesday night of last week, when a chicken and waffle supper was served. The following enjoyed the function: Misses Isabel, Verna and Ethel Rowe, Ruth Smith, Messrs. Ray Durst, William Bradford, William Reish, and Carl Auman.

In attempting to keep his sled on the snow which lay only on the side of the road, David H. Reareck, of Georges Valley, upset with a load of live porkers, on Tuesday morning, at the Red Bridge, below Centre Hill. The squealing hogs broke out of their confinement and several landed in the icy waters. With the aid of several men Mr. Reareck rounded up the hogs and finished his journey to Centre Hall in a wagon.

From twenty to thirty New Year's "shooters" from Potters Mills and Colyer invaded Centre Hall on Saturday and started in to kiss the pretty girls, scare the babies and furnish fun and amusement for the older folks. A good fouse or two, a number of riders and the remainder on foot formed the pageant. From here they traveled to Spring Mills where they repeated their antics for the amusement of the villagers of that place. These young men have been furnishing the only show for Centre Hall on New Year's day for a number of years past and they are to be commended for their efforts to add to the joy of living. Come again.

STRUCK BY SPECIAL TRAIN.

Samuel Stover Enjoyed and His Horse Killed on Railroad Crossing near Lemont, Tuesday Morning.

Samuel Stover, a resident of Pleasant Gap, made a narrow escape from death Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock when a special train, carrying students to State College, struck the road cart in which he was, as he attempted to cross the railroad tracks on the local branch at a point where the road makes a sharp turn, between Oak Hill and Lemont. His horse was killed, the cart demolished, but Mr. Stover escaped with a superficial scalp wound, caused, it is said, by receiving a kick from the horse when the animal was struck by the engine. The train was stopped and Mr. Stover was taken aboard and hurried to the Bellefonte hospital where his injuries were treated. He was later discharged and is now at his home.

Mr. Stover was on his way to Boalsburg and upon reaching the dangerous turn in the road where it is impossible to see in an easterly direction along the railroad tracks, found the train upon him before he could move one way or the other. In a last effort he reared the horse on its hind feet but failed to clear the way for the onrushing train, the horse being struck a side blow, resulting in its almost instant death.
Mr. Stover is a man of about thirty-seven years.

THE FARMERS AT SCHOOL.

figure was conservative and was based upon longtime experiments. Translating additional manure loss into figures, Mr. Weaver said Pennsylvania used commercial fertilizers worth six and three quarter million dollars, and that all this money could be brought back to the soil if only one-half of the fertilizing value of manure were saved.

Mr. Weaver explained how farm manure lost its valuable constituents through draining away, fermentation and leaching. He said this loss could be prevented and added to the soil by use of concrete floors in barn yards, by cement pits, and by applying the manure to the field just as soon as possible after it was made.

Earl Runkle, a sturdy youth from the farm, has taken up the stick and compassing rule in the Reporter printing office and is learning to assemble the types and to feed the various presses. He is proving himself an apt pupil.
