

WOMAN HAD NERVOUS TROUBLE

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Helped Her.

West Danby, N. Y.—"I have had nervous trouble all my life until I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for nerves and for female troubles and it straightened me out in good shape. I work nearly all the time, as we live on a farm and I have four girls. I do all my sewing and other work with their help, so it shows that I stand it real well. I took the Compound when my ten year old daughter came and it helped me a lot. I have also had my oldest girl take it and it did her lots of good. I keep it in the house all the time and recommend it."—Mrs. DEWEY SINCEBAUGH, West Danby, N. Y.

Sleeplessness, nervousness, irritability, headache, dizziness, dragging sensations, all point to female derangements which may be overcome by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

This famous remedy, the medicinal ingredients of which are derived from native roots and herbs, has for forty years proved to be a most valuable tonic and invigorator of the female organism. Women everywhere bear willing testimony to the wonderful virtue of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Hatching a Controversy. "During a lull in the conversation it's not a bad idea to put a new record on the phonograph." "Yes?" "For instance, if you can get two music lovers to discussing the respective merits of Caruso and John McCormack, the chances are they won't stop talking till it's time to go home."

Achy Joints Give Warning. A creaky joint often proclaims its state. It may also mean that the kidneys are not filtering the poisonous uric acid from the blood. Bad backs, rheumatic pains, sore, aching joints, headaches, dizziness and urinary disorders are all effects of weak kidneys and if nothing is done, there's danger of more serious trouble. Use Doan's Kidney Pills, the best recommended kidney remedy.

FEAR A NEW CRISIS

WASHINGTON OFFICIALS NOW WORRIED BY GERMANY'S SUBMARINE PLANS.

DEFENSE GUNS THE ISSUE

Administration Also is Deeply Concerned Over Manner in Which Country Will Receive the Terms of Settlement of the Lusitania Case.

By GEORGE CLINTON. Washington.—Officials in Washington fear that under new plans for submarine warfare proposed to be followed by the central powers of Europe, this country may become once more involved in dangerous diplomatic negotiations. Word has come that it is the intention of the central powers to order that merchant and passenger vessels belonging to belligerents shall be sunk without warning in case they carry guns even for defense purposes.

The mounting of guns for purely defense purposes has been recognized as the right of merchant and passenger ships. Of course it is also recognized that if advance warning is given that such vessels shall be sunk, the responsibility possibly may rest with the nations which continue to arm their passenger and merchant ships, even if they are armed for defense purposes. The main danger to the United States, it is recognized, is that if the proposed plan is carried out, some American vessel may be sunk by mistake, and if this is done things are likely to break loose.

The administration just now is deeply concerned over the manner in which the country may receive the terms of settlement of the Lusitania case. Some Washington officials believe that on the answer to this question will depend to a considerable extent Mr. Wilson's strength or weakness in the next campaign. In other words, the manner of the reception by the country of the terms of the Lusitania settlement may have its political as well as its diplomatic significance.

Seemingly, Germany has admitted now that it is vessel to sink an unarmed merchant ship or a passenger ship without making provision for the safety of those on board. Germany did not want to admit that the sinking of the Lusitania was illegal, and so the word "unjustifiable" or one meaning the same thing, has been employed to cover the case. Therefore, according to the administration point of view, the use of this word, or a synonym, is entirely satisfactory provided it is not intended to limit the activities of the word so that they will cover only those vessels which have neutral passengers on board. In other words, the administration believes the proper interpretation of Germany's position is that it is unjustifiable and has been unjustifiable from the first to sink merchant or passenger vessels without providing for the safety of crew and passengers, even if both are composed entirely of citizens of countries with which Germany is at war.

Washington knows the Lusitania case is loaded with politics, while it ought not to be loaded with anything but nonpartisan diplomacy. Politicians here agree that the political campaign next summer partly will be directed along "Lusitania lines." Of course it is recognized by the politicians here that the extent to which the case will figure in the campaign depends largely upon the amount of resentment, or of satisfaction, whichever it may be, to be shown by the country when it has had time thoroughly to comprehend the final terms of settlement of this cause of controversy between the United States and Germany.

Preparedness seems to cover with a sort of cloak the interest in other matters of legislation. The situation in regard to the feelings of members of congress on the subject is just about what it was. It is becoming more evident day by day, however, that the preparedness bill will be put through, but it will go to its passage apparently aided by the votes of the Republicans.

Wilson Willing to Yield. This letter was taken to mean that Mr. Wilson did not think that, because he personally was favorable to the continental army plan, it necessarily followed that the house members were wrong in standing for another plan. In other words, it seemed to be Mr. Wilson's view that if the majority of his party in the house thought its plans were better than his plans he should bow to the majority's judgment.

Regulars Oppose Militia Bill. Nearly all the army officers of high rank are opposed to the measure which would make the National Guard the chief line of reserve strength of the United States forces. It must not be understood that the army opposes the militia because it thinks that the guardsmen cannot give good service. The army would prefer a strong militia to a continental army, so called, and would prefer it because the militiamen are trained, are virtually constantly under arms and know at least the preliminaries of drill, discipline and field service.

What Its Advocates Say. National Guardsmen who are in Washington and the members of congress who prefer the strengthening of the militia to any other plan for preparedness of the land forces, say the Constitution of the United States is specific only along certain prohibitive lines, and that congress can legislate so as to make the National Guard forces virtually a part of the government's army, and that those things which the national government cannot do are immaterial to the case. The people will have to study both sides of this matter before making up their minds as to whether the army experts are right or whether the National Guardsmen and the members of congress are right.

In spite of what army officers say with regard to the means of completely nationalizing the National Guard, Maj. Gen. J. Clifford R. Foster, chairman of the executive committee of the National Guard association and one of the advisers of the drafters of the bill, says the measure "is the most comprehensive piece of military legislation which has been proposed in years. It represents the views and opinions of the National Guard as to what shall be done, and clearly shows the National Guard's willingness to meet any reasonable requirements of the government and its desire to be federalized to the fullest extent consistent with the provisions of the Constitution."

Dear Readers: I appeal to those of you who are bothered with kidney and bladder trouble, that you give up the use of harsh salts or alcoholic medicines and in their place take a short treatment of "Anurie." I have taken many of Dr. Pierce's medicines for the past twenty-five years with good results. I suffered with kidney trouble for some years. I recently heard of the newest discovery of Dr. Pierce, namely, his "Anurie" Tablets. After using same I am completely cured of my kidney trouble. A doctor pronounced me a well preserved woman for my age, all due, I believe, to Dr. Pierce's aid. MRS. MELINDA E. MILLER. If you suffer from backache, lumbago, rheumatism, get "Anurie" now.
