If You Want White Clover.

Most of the clovers are biennials or perennials, but not so white clover. It is annual and propagates itself only by seed. Therefore if one wishes white clover in the lawn he must not cut it so short that no ripe heads will be formed to provide seed for the following year. Some people are always sowing white clover in their lawns and wondering why they have to repeat the process every year.

"Do you enjoy grand opera?"

"Very much," replied Mr. Cumrox.

"If I had it to do over, I'd be a grand opera singer myself."

"But you can't sing."

"That's why I'd choose grand opera. I can't carry a tune very well; but I can holler like everything."

"A superwoman, son? Let me see. Ah! I have a definition. A superwoman is a female of the species who could trace her ancestry back to royalty, but doesn't."

Not Exactly Comforting Scripture.

At the anniversary meeting of the Bible Reading Association Rev. W. Y. Fullerton of the Baptist Missionary Society told a story of illustrate the fact that some people needed guidance in the selection of their Bible reading. According to the Westminster Gazette, the story was a reminiscence of Mr. Fullerton's mission days, when a man came to one of his meetings and told of his efforts to comfort his wife as she lay upon the sickbed.

"I read to her every night," he said.

"What did you read to her?" asked the missionary.

"Well," said the man, "I began at the first chapter of the Book of Proverbs, and when I had finished the book she died!"

GANG RUPTURE GOOD FOR STATE

Penrose's Anti-Vare War Gives Democrats Hope

FACTIONS' FIGHT IS BITTER

Senator Promises Independents to Remedy Handicapping of State from Political Contractor Rule.

Indications are numerous and strong that the opportunities offered to the Democrats of Pennsylvania on account of factional strife in the Republican camp will be unusually good in the campaigning of this year. The Democrats are alert in regard to this prospect and will probably acquire every possible gain from it. They have not for many years beheld their political foes so hopelessly factious or so bitter against one another as they are just now, and as they are likely to remain for an unprecedentedly long time, for there is no sign that the wounds which have been inflicted by each Republican faction upon the other can be healed this year—not even by the desire, cherished by these warring elements in common, of electing a Republican President next November, as Woodrow Wilson's successor. The factional charges and counter charges are of so grave a nature as not to be ignored or forgotten in the brief time during which, ordinarily, a factional row lasts or its effects are felt. The bitter, almost savage, crimination and recrimination are of a kind unpardonable even by the class of politicians who usually will swallow any "medicine" in order to keep their "main chance" in view and accomplish their partisan or selfish purposes. From every viewpoint of the malignant Republican dissensions there is a suggestion of their very long duration, if not of their continuing until one set or the other of the Republican machine bosses shall be exhausted to the degree of helplessness or driven entirely out of politics.

It became evident recently that no outcome of the primary election of May 16 would materially affect these Republican factional conditions so far as the bitter personal antagonisms between the leaders of the warring elements were concerned. The troubles have not been of a character that might permit them to be settled by "deals" or other planning for next November's election, nor by such arrangements as might be contemplated for a Presidential inauguration if the Republicans had any hope of preventing the re-election of President Wilson. In each Republican faction the leaders have committed themselves to the task of annihilating the other fellows, and they have assured the people that their labors in that direction will be unremitting until the job shall be neatly done. When Senator Penrose solemnly promises the independent Republicans, as he did at the recent dinner in Philadelphia, that he and his friends will carry on to the finish their war against "government by political contractors," and when the Vare brothers, who personally that kind of government, defiantly respond that their side also can play at that game, and that they are not going to let Penrose destroy them, Democrats know that this civil war in the Republican camp is going to last until at least one of the factions shall be wiped out or suppressed, if both of them shall not be led to the fate of the Kilkeny cats. Even if the Republicans were united and working harmoniously together their campaigning in the state and nation this year, so far as making any headway against President Wilson is concerned, would be a dreary labor at its best, but in view of the cut-throat sayings and doings of each Republican faction against the other it is impossible to forecast conditions favorable to their party or unlikely to result advantageously for the Democrats.

To Destroy Their Power.

The full significance of the United States Senator's resolve to destroy the power of the Vares will be appreciated by all who understand that political allegiance is given to Contractor Edwin H. Vare and his brother, Congressman William S. Vare, by the mayor of Philadelphia, Thomas B. Smith, and the governor of Pennsylvania, Martin G. Brumbaugh. Smith and Brumbaugh allow nothing to Penrose or his political partner, Contractor James P. McNichol, but grant practically everything to the Vares. Aiding and advising the Vare contracting firm, Penrose points out, is the paid attorney (Francis Shunk Brown) of the Philadelphia contractors, who is, quite conveniently, the attorney general of the state in the present administration and the general engineer of the Utility Commission of the state, so far as that body can be made of professional or political advantage. Responsibility for the factional warfare, Penrose declares, rests upon the street cleaning contractor element (the Vares). The most high-handed and obnoxious methods have been resorted to, he says, and there are few more discreditable chapters in the political history of our state than this spectacle of the most important offices in the state and city being used to promote the political as well as business fortunes of a Philadelphia firm of street cleaning contractors, aided by an attorney general with his own personal purposes, who, combined, are seeking to strengthen their hold in Philadelphia and extend it to the state. Penrose adds that the influence of contractors or contractor government in Philadelphia has long been a subject of reproach among Republicans of Pennsylvania and throughout the United States. It has been a handicap to the Republican party in the state. Pennsylvania stands alone bearing the commercial brand of contractor influence, largely on account of the situation in Philadelphia.

So Penrose declares his readiness to co-operate with both stalwart and independent Republicans in the elimination of the particular influence, which he has described, and he adds, "I emphatically declare my opposition to the practice of street cleaning contractor rule in particular, and to contractor domination in general." Referring to his opposition, in 1911, to William S. Vare as a candidate for the Republican nomination for mayor, Penrose says that the Vare contracting firm was, of course, pre-eminently dependent upon the office of mayor. He adds that it is even now openly announced that the same Vare candidacy for the office of mayor of Philadelphia is to be pressed at the close of the present mayor's administration, and it is even quite boastfully proclaimed that the present administration is pledged to it. Penrose, therefore, serves notice that should such candidacy be revived it will again meet with all the opposition at his command. In this connection Penrose throws out a hint of the possibility that the next State Legislature may clip the wings of the Vare mayor (Smith) by remedying the too great concentration of power in his hands. Some change in the municipal form of government of Philadelphia must be made, Penrose says, but whether it shall be a commission form of government or some other modification, is a matter which he leaves to the people.

Blame for Wilson's Election.

Congressman Vare, in retorting against Penrose, declares that the latter, more than any other individual, was directly and deliberately responsible for what happened in the Chicago convention in 1912. "Penrose," according to Vare, "knew when he was helping to manipulate the convention, that its result would mean certain Democratic victory." Vare remarks that "Governor Tener let Penrose have his way. Governor Brumbaugh stood for the people and against Penrose. Senator Penrose has no use for a governor who stands for the people instead of for Penrose." Vare would like to know why the United States Senator does not direct some of his wrath against another city contractor, James P. McNichol, who gives political aid and comfort to Penrose.

And so the Republican cat and dog fight goes, from the Democratic standpoint, merrily on. Each machine faction is enlisted "for years or during the war." Neither can recede—at least, their leaders, Penrose, McNichol and the Citizens' Republican League on the one side, and the Vares on the other, cannot. Penrose's latest promises against political contractor rule were made at the big dinner attended largely by independents, who help this Citizens' League along. This league gives strong aid to the Penrose forces against the Vares. Already the effects of the machine factional warfare are felt out through the state, and there is no doubt that the Democrats in the November campaign will make the most of the opportunities suggested to them by the extraordinary dissensions of the "gang" forces.

DEMOCRATS ARE GLAD OF IT.

The removal of Attorney General Francis Shunk Brown from his position, Congressman Benjamin K. Focht says, is demanded by up-state county leaders as the first step toward harmony in the Republican ranks. Senator Penrose is intent mainly upon eliminating the Vare brothers from politics. Brown is the Vares' attorney and their dependence upon him in state matters at least, is such that if he were down and out from Harrisburg, so would be the Vares. But the harmony of which Focht dreams is not in sight. Many Democratic leaders say they believe—and, of course, the fact pleases them—that harmony in the Republican organization of this state is impossible while the factions retain their present leaders, each of whom is resolved never to surrender.

BUSINESS HIGH TIDE

Sure Indications of the Country's Industrial and Business Prosperity.

The New York Herald says that everyone must be gratified by the figures which indicate the present high and rising tide in the country's industrial and business prosperity. The country's production of iron at present exceeds 107,000 tons a day—nearly double what it was a year ago. Railway earnings and bank clearings are both about one-half larger than a year ago. Exports of breadstuffs recently have somewhat decreased but this is more than offset by increased shipments of munitions and other manufactures. Our exports in the last six or seven months have exceeded imports by a billion dollars. Since the war began we have given foreign nations about a billion dollars in the way of loans and credits and at the same time added enormously to our stock of gold not only by retaining our domestic production of the precious metal but by importing nearly half a billion dollars of it.

HAD HER BEAU IN CLOSET

Girl's Statement Alarmed Mistress Somewhat, But Developments Made Everything All Right.

Ring Lardner colloquialisms of the middle West take queer shoots sometimes. A servant who had had several beaux about whom she talked a great deal was asked by her mistress about one Henry, who of the mild blue eyes and fair skin.

"Where is he now?"

"Him? Oh, I got him up in my room, locked up safe enough in a closet," replied Mary.

"Locked up—Mary, you don't mean to say you've got a young man in your room?"

"Oh, yes, ma'am. He's handsome, Henry is. Come, I'll show you."

They went upstairs. Mary marched to a closet and threw open the door. The mistress stepped backward expecting she knew not what. All that happened was that Mary opened a trunk, and from beneath a pile of clean handkerchiefs took out a photograph.

"There," said she, "that's Henry. Ain't he just handsome?"

THE WHEAT YIELD TELLS THE STORY

of Western Canada's Rapid Progress

The heavy crops in Western Canada have caused new records to be made in the handling of grains by railroads. For, while the movement of these heavy shipments has been wonderfully rapid, the resources of the different roads, despite enlarged equipments and increased facilities, have been strained as never before, and previous records have thus been broken in all directions.

The largest Canadian wheat shipments through New York ever known are reported for the period up to October 15th, upwards of four and a quarter million bushels being exported in less than six weeks, and this was but the overflow of shipments to Montreal, through which point shipments were much larger than to New York.

Yields as high as 60 bushels of wheat per acre are reported from all parts of the country; while yields of 45 bushels per acre are common.

Thousands of American farmers have taken part in this wonderful production. Land prices are still low and free homestead lands are easily secured in good localities, convenient to churches, schools, markets, railways, etc.

There is no war tax on land and no conscription.
