MASTER OF THE SITUATION.

New York World

For the time being, the Roosevelt candidacy may seem formidable on paper, but there is no real substance to it.

The man who is master of the Republican situation is not Theodore Roosevelt but Charles E. Hughes. Ten words from Hughes would completely wreck the Roosevelt campaign and drive the grand army of ex-officers holders from the trenches.

If Hughes were to resign from the United States Supreme Court to-morrow and announce his candidacy, Roosevelt's campaign for the Republican nomination, would be ended. Presenting his name to the convention would be a waste of time and words. This may be a humiliating position for the Only Patriotic American to be placed in, but it is the fact nevertheless.

Whatever progress the Roosevelt candidacy makes is due to general uncertainty as to whether Hughes would take the nomination. Roosevelt may succeed in killing off Hughes, as he is straining every nerve to do, but he can succeed only with Hughes' tacit consent. Hughes need not be killed off unless he is willing to be killed off.

The Roosevelt campaign fund is mobilized and in action, but Roosevelt is still considerably further from the White House than the Germans are from Paris. The Republicans who are so vociferously announcing their allegiance to the Colonel represent about one vote apiece, provided they do not play goat on Election Day and forget to go to the polls. Practically none of these are delegates to the Chicago convention, and most of them could not carry their own election districts. A majority of them have acquired their prominence through appointive offices, never having been elected to anything.

To the casual reader their devotion to Roosevelt may seem impressive, but not to the managers of the Republican Party. Four years ago Roosevelt had the Old Guard scared, and if he had had a little more courage he might have been nominated. But four years ago Roosevelt's support came from the rank and file of the Republican Party. His delegates were won in the primaries. Now his support comes from the socially elect circles that have no opportunity of a return to place and power except through Roosevelt and from various corporation interests which confuse patriotism with dividends. The rank and file are not behind him, as every primary vote has shown.

The Republican managers know this, and they know that Roosevelt knows it. They are not the least bit frightened by him. There is no more chance of the Republican convention's stampeding to Roosevelt than to Bryan. Whatever Roosevelt gets at Chicago, if he gets everything, will be the result of a cold, hard, deliberate bargain. The World has always believed that the Old Guard could make a more advantageous deal with Roosevelt than with any other candidate. He wants the nomination worse than anybody else and would give more for it. The only question is whether he would be a asset or a liability to the party, and the common opinion is that he would be a liability. Perhaps before June 7 he can convince the Republican managers that he is worth bidding in.

There will be very little sentiment about the Chicago convention, but the man who can take charge of events is Charles E. Hughes, provided he thinks that a Republican nomination for President this year would not be a permanent blot on his record and reputation. One thing at least is certain. Of all the Republicans whose names have been mentioned in connection with the Presidency, Hughes is the only one who could have the nomination by saying that he would take it.

The committee on the Community Picnic will meet in the Evangelical church, Saturday evening at eight o'clock. All members are urged to be present.

"Too Much Ross" Causes Defeat.

"Too much Ross" spelled defeat for Centre Hall in its first baseball game of the season on Grange Park, on Memorial Day. Score 12 to 8. The game was called at the end of the third inning when the score stood 7 to 1, on account of rain but was resumed after a few minutes.

Samuel Ross pitched a fine game for Linden Hall, handling the wet ball with apparently no trouble. For Centre Hall Auman twirled the first four innings and then William Bradford took up the task. The locals gathered only four hits off Ross while the visitors found the local twirlers for seven bingles.

The score by innings:
Linden Hall—2 3 2 2 0 1 2 0—12
Centre Hall—1 0 1 3 0 0 3 0—8

LANDED A 26-INCH TROUT.

Boys, we will have to remove our hats to Roy Grimes for catching the largest trout ever caught in these streams with rod and line. On last Wednesday while fishing in the narrows a short way from his home he hooked a California trout. Roy knew what he had on his line for he says he was after that lad for three years. After playing the fish for some time and trying to land him in his net which was too small to hold the trout, the only thing to do was to give him a battle with his hands, and this Roy did in the deep water. He finally landed him after the fish had bitten a piece from his thumb. The trout was hurried home and placed in a pond where he may be seen any time. His exact measurement was 26 inches.
