

YOUNG AND OLD ARE CALLED.

William Confer, 84, and Mrs. Eliza Smith, 74, Answer Final Summons.—Other Deaths.

Death came suddenly and unexpectedly upon Mrs. Eliza Smith, widow of Adam Smith, at the home of her son, L. R. Smith, at Centre Hill, Monday morning at eleven o'clock. Death resulted from a complication of diseases incident to old age. Practically all last winter she had been ailing and in the spring she went to Dillsburg, York county, to the home of her son George, hoping that the change would prove beneficial. Two weeks ago her condition became serious and it was necessary to bring her back home. There appeared a change for the better in her condition until a very short time before the death angel entered the home.

Deceased was Eliza Miller and practically all her life was spent in and about Potters Mills. Born October 13th, 1841, she was in her seventy-fifth year. She was a consistent member of the Lutheran church and a woman of kindly nature and tender sympathies. Nine children survive her, as follows: Robert, Mrs. Albert Allen, Centre Hill; Mrs. J. C. Vonada, Red Mill; Mrs. N. W. Smith, Emma Smith, Mrs. Gertrude Bowersox, of Emporium, Kansas; Jennie Smith, Philadelphia; L. R. Smith, Centre Hill; George Smith, Dillsburg. Also two sisters—Mrs. Sarah Fye, of Manchester, N. H.; and Mrs. Henry Dreese, of the state of Oregon.

Funeral services will be held this Thursday morning, 10:30 o'clock, and burial made at Sprucetown, Rev. D. S. Kurtz officiating.

Hint to the Tax Gatherer.

The difficulty Mr. Lloyd-George has had in deciding what to tax and what to leave untaxed in this year's budget recalls the story told of an earlier chancellor of the exchequer who was reduced to despair in similar circumstances.

Finally he decided to consult a friend who had on several occasions helped him to find fresh sources of revenue and having written to this friend he waited hopefully for his reply.

The friend's suggestion came by return of post. "Put a tax on umbrellas," he wrote, "and make the bishops order the prayer for rain to be read in all the churches!"—Pearson's Weekly.

SEEMS TO HAVE REFORMED

Billingsgate, Once Unfavorably Known for Bad Language, Given Clean Bill of Health.

"Billingsgate" is synonymous for language that is not exactly of the type that is heard in polite society. Billingsgate itself is the name of the famous fish market in the heart of London, England, the biggest fish market in the world, and Billingsgate language is language full of uncouth expressions and strange oaths such as are supposed to be used by fish hawkers. However, according to the present lord mayor of London, Sir David Burnett, Billingsgate as a name for wild expressions, promises to become a misnomer. Recently he paid a surprise visit to this market within his jurisdiction, and like Haroun Al Raschid of old, he went in disguise; that is to say he did not go in his mayoral robes, but wore a bowler hat, so that he should not be recognized.

During the whole time he was there he testifies that he never heard a profane word. Everywhere, too, when fish porters came running along with loads that might have damaged his clothes they gave the warning cry "By your leave, sir." His lordship came to the conclusion that the good temper displayed in the carrying out of their arduous labor would have been a credit to any body of men.

LOOKED INTO GOLDEN FUTURE

Proof That Moore Was Right When He Indulged in Rhapsodies Over "Love's Young Dream."

A little girl in Linwood is just about old enough to have a beau, and she is perfectly crazy about any popadoured, green-hatted, bare-necked, tall, skinny lad that—well, let us tell our little incident without adding adjectives.

The maiden's lovely boy friend went out of town for a week, but he wrote letters. And the maiden's sister started kidding.

"What?" exclaimed she, "another letter from Rob? When do you expect to marry him, dear?"

"Oh, very soon!" cried the little one, encouraged by such a display of sympathy. "Robert has only two years more in the preparatory school. And then he will go to Harvard and be graduated with the highest honors. After he gets his degree he will go out west and make his fortune, and then we shall be married. Oh, all seems so beautiful!"

"Dream on, kid!" exclaimed the older sister, tenderly. "Do you want to go to another picture show with me this evening? There's a long time to wait, and we've got to put in the time somehow."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

German Emperor Fond of Theater.

Emperor William of Germany shows his belief in the system of national theaters by contributing lavishly toward their support. As king of Prussia, William II. is the owner of the Konigliche Schauspiele, of which there are six—three in Berlin and one each at Wiesbaden, Cassel and Hannover. The Prussian ministry of the interior sets aside yearly $625,000 for the royal theaters in Berlin alone, which sum is made up to $737,500 out of the privy purse. Even so, however, there is generally an annual deficit of above $75,000, and this the emperor makes good as well. His imperial majesty takes most interest in the Berlin opera house, which is but a stone's throw from the castle, so that he can easily run in and conduct rehearsals. It is entirely owing to his efforts that the productions here have attained their present pitch of perfection in everything that concerns mounting.
