DEATHS.

The Reporter last week briefly mentioned the death of George Corman, a native of Rebersburg, who was killed by the railroad cars near Freeport, Illinois, Sunday a week ago. Because of the many friends and rela-these inquiries come from the owners tives of the decessed living in this county the circumstances surrounding opposed to dogs, and for the benefit of his death are given. The Freeport both, I quote the Law in so far as Daily Bulletin, date of Sept. 5, says:

Starting on a walk to the home of his daughter on Sunday afternoon, amended by the Act of April 15th, George Corman, a prominent farmer 1915, P. L. 133, which reads as folof Harlem township, walked on the railroad track of the I'linois Central, instead of going his usual course over the highway, and was run down and killed by an Illinois Central train. His partial deafness is said to have precluded the possibility of hearing the engine whistle as it neared the Bentley crossing, where the accident occurred, although there is a likelihood that he heard it, as he was observed by the fireman to step from between the rails, but be was not sufficiently outside the ties to prevent being struck by the beam of the pilot, ex- master, and the game pursued must tending three feet on either side, not be injured.
