Banner Wheat Yields in State.

Twenty-six counties show an average production above the general State average of 18.8 bushels to an acre for the wheat crop of 25,070,600 bushels on the farms of Pennsylvania during the past season.

According to figures just compiled by the Bureau of Statistics of the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, Berks and Philadelphia counties carry off the highest average honors for the year with a record of 24 bushels to an acre. Berks had a banner wheat crop of large proportions.

The general average does not reach the mark of 19 bushels set a year ago but splendid crops were reported from many counties and some individual reports of yields of from 30 to 40 bushels to an acre have been received.

Lebanon county closely follows the honor wheat counties with an average of 23.5 bushels to an acre while the mark for Northampton is 23 bushels and for Lancaster county 22.9 bushels. Chester shows an average of 22.7 bushels, Delaware, 22.5, Montgomery 22.4, Fort Myer 22.0, Luzerne 21.8, Lehigh 21.7, Susquehanna 21.6, Bucks 21.4, Elk 20.8, Allegheny 20.4, Carbon 20.2, Pike 20.0, Somerset 19.9, Monroe 19.8, Sullivan 19.5, Westmoreland 19.4, Clinton 19.4, York 19.0, Northumberland 18.9, Cumberland 18.8, Union 18.8.

The smallest average to an acre was reported from Fulton county at 14 bushels while Juniata and Venango counties showed 15.5 bushels as the average yield for the district.

LIQUOR LICENSE SIGNERS' NAMES TO BE PUBLISHED.

Centre county W. C. T. U. Will Again Spread Broadcast List of Names.—To Favor Business "Men on" White List.

The Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Centre county again announces that the names of all signers to liquor license petitions will be published and distributed broadcast throughout the county this year as formerly. Names may be removed by permission of the Court.

"WHITE LIST" OF BUSINESS MEN.

At the forty-second annual convention of the Pennsylvania Woman's Christian Temperance Union, held at Wilkesbarre October 5th to 10th the following resolution was adopted:

"Resolved that each county's officials furnish a list of all temperance hotels in their respective county, such list to be prepared as soon as possible after license court, published in the next issue of the Bulletin and offered to the Blue Book for publication. Also that same officials prepare a list of business men who do not sign liquor license applications or contribute in any way whatever to the liquor campaign and request all our people to patronize these business men."

This will be more drastic and far-reaching in its effects on the organized liquor traffic than at first glance it might appear to many.

When one takes into consideration what it would mean for more than forty-three thousand women in Pennsylvania alone—practically all of them housekeepers—to band together and agree to bestow their trade and patronage only upon those grocers, butchers, clothiers, dry-goods merchants and other business men who will not sign liquor license applications, nor in any way aid the liquor traffic it becomes easier to grasp the significance of this action of the great mass of women in our state, who form a part of the largest and best organized body of women known to the world to-day.

In the first paragraph of the resolution a long-felt need is being satisfied. In traveling and motoring about this country of ours many are the inquiries for a temperance hotel at which to lodge or take a meal, where especially in the smaller places, one need not be subjected to the unpleasant and often disagreeable features almost invariably connected with a licensed house. Especially trying are these features to women traveling alone so it will be a veritable godsend to thousands of respectable people to have a list of temperance hotels available.

This growing and insistent demand for temperance hotels goes far to prove the fallacy of the old worn-out argument that a license is a "necessity" for the traveling public. No such "necessity" exists to-day. Our nation is fast becoming too enlightened to be beguiled much longer by any such be-nighted and out-of-date ideas. The demand of the sane and sober "traveling public" is an insistent now as the clamoring of the baser element and in the end shall prevail.

Degree Work for Local P. O. S. of A.

The degree team of the State College Camp P. O. S. of A. exemplified the degree work before the new Camp at Centre Hall, last Thursday night, in the Arcades, more than fifty members being present. A class of ten candidates were given their initiation and the splendid manner in which the State College team rendered the work was an inspiration to all members. The team was made up of the following: W. D. Custard, district president; Charles Taylor, vice president; J. H. Paswaters, master of forms; Perry Kunes, conductor; J. C. Eisenbuth, past president; Harry Woome and Boyd Homan, sentinels; Jeff Hubler, inspector; Dr. W. P. Winters, organist.

Following the degree work and close of business, a well prepared lunch was served in the auditorium of the hall.

Among others present were George B. Jackson, Ed. Erb, Prof. Dietrich, H. Eitner, of State College; M. I. Gardner, of Bellefonte; Arthur Reigel, of Salons, district president of Clinton county.

Less Dogs—More Sheep.

Plans to draft a new dog license law designed for protection of sheep were made last week at a conference in the capitol of state officials, representatives of agricultural and other organizations interested in extension of sheep raising. It was stated that probably 30,000 unregistered dogs will be killed in the state this year, but that if sheep raising is to be revived better protection is essential. A committee was named to draft the bill cooperation with the attorney general's department.

William T. Cressy of Bloomsburg, representing the State Grange, said there is no animal on the farm that will yield so much profit as the sheep. He thought that the banks should encourage the industry in all sections and that the judges of the county courts should see that the assessor and constables enforce the present law.

At the request of a number of farmers who desire to purchase sheep in the western markets, Secretary of Agriculture Charles E. Patton will send Dr. R. M. Staley, of the State Livestock Sanitary board, to Michigan next week to inspect ewes which will be brought to Pennsylvania.
