

LOCALS.

Protected game of all kinds cannot be sent by either express or parcel post.

December is almost half over, and Christmas comes six days before the end of it.

Lessor or lessee, no matter which, are preparing for the official notice on January 1st.

Farmers are not a bit alarmed about the high cost of living when automobiles are cheaper than ever and gasoline the same price as before wheat got to $1.75.

The bazaar of the Ladies Aid of the Methodist church, will again be opened on Saturday afternoon and evening of December 16, in the Bartholomew store room.

Three dwelling houses are in the course of erection in Centre Hall. There ought to be a good many additional homes built here next summer if Centre Hall wants to keep on growing in the right direction.

George F. Potter, of Phoenixville, is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George W. Potter, south of Old Fort. Since leaving Penna Valley four years ago, Mr. Potter has been having good success in farming in Chester county.

Ralph D. Robb, of the firm of Balsbach and Robb, proprietors of the Bellwood Bulletin, is the husband of a former Centre Hall girl, Miss Lulu Shultz, daughter of Rev. J. F. Shultz, formerly pastor of the Evangelical church in this place.

Mrs. J. B. Spangler, of Tusseyville, while attending the funeral of Mrs. Mary Fortney, whose body was interred at Lancaster, took a severe cold which later developed into pneumonia. Her condition during the middle part of last week was quite serious.

Homer R. Treaster, after three years farming on the old homestead near Potters Mills, will quit the farm next spring and take up the saw and square with W. D. Steinbach and Son, of Yeagertown. Mr. Treaster is a skilled carpenter and can command a good figure at his trade. He has selected Thursday, March 1st, as the day for holding his sale.

J. M. Moyer, the genial boniface of the Potters Mills hotel, was a caller at this office last Thursday. He reported that the bucks were being killed in big numbers in his locality, the best luck appearing to be with the Potters Mills youths who leave home in the morning and return at night, and do not camp as is the custom of other parties. Before the season was a week old the boys had killed four deer.
