Letter from Freeport, Ill.

Guy W. Grove, son of B. Gardner Grove, east of Centre Hall, writes the Reporter under date of December 9th, as follows:

"I am still in Freeport, but have changed work. I am now with the Hanover Bakery and like my job very much. Others no doubt would not desire my working hours—from 12 o'clock midnight until ten next morning. This leaves the afternoon for hunting, concerning which I will write a few lines:

One forenoon two of us took the 10:30 train for Dakota; started to hunt at 12 o'clock. We got into one small timber of about four acres. We had no dogs or ferret. The timber was nothing but under brush. One stood watch at one end and the other chased through it. We did this until we had 19 rabbits and a hawk which measured 4 feet 2 inches. We returned to Freeport on the 4:40 train that afternoon.

On Thanksgiving a young Homan from State College and I went to Stockton where we shot 13 rabbits, 2 quail, and 1 squirrel. I shot one of the largest rabbits on that day that I ever saw. It dressed 5 1-2 lbs. So far I have 37 rabbits and 15 squirrels, besides other game, but no hunting here like in Pennsylvania; nothing but small game here. Last week in four days there were four hunters shot; two fatalities were on Sunday. We have two more months for rabbits; I don't know what I can do in that time.

The weather here is certainly fine. It seems like spring now.

I don't know if Pennsylvania is like Illinois now or not. Everything here is sky high in price. Every farmer is holding mostly all his grain, etc. If not he, then the railroads have tracks or siding standing full, which is claimed to be the cause of the high cost of living.

I heard it said the other day that shoe sole leather was $2.00 a lb. now.

I have been in and around Freeport for almost nine months now. Freeport is a booming town. Everything seems to be running good. On Thanksgiving at Hanover Bakery we baked 7000 loaves of bread and close to 250 doz. rolls, besides cakes, etc.
