BUT HE MET THE GREAT MAN

Insurance Agent Had Something to Brag About, Even If He Didn't

Get Any Business. A well-known insurance official said the other day in Chicago: "In the beginning of my career, when I was only a humble insurance agent. I gained access one morning to the august and formidable presence of J. Pierpont Morgan."

"No!" "Yes," the official insisted: "yes, it's a fact. Don't ask me how I did it, though, for that's a secret. But at ten o'clock one morning, behold me, a young insurance agent, standing before the desk of the great J. Pierpont. with my big envelope of life-and-death statistics, twenty-year endowments and so forth in my hand. I was, I have since learned, the first and only insurance agent who ever managed to meet Mr. Morgan face to face.' "Well, what happened?" "'Mr. Morgan,' I began, hurriedly. 'you ought to carry more life insurance. You see, sir-"And lucidly and cogently I laid my insurance proposition before the great

'He listened in silence. Those flerce blue eyes of his bored me through like lances. When I stopped at last, all he said was:

'How did you get in here?' 'I walked in' I answered "'Well,' said he, 'walk out.'"

AND HONEY STILL IS THERE

Californian's Attempt to Rob Hive Re sulted in His Losing Fourteen Chickens.

Arthur J. Holmes, a Beresford (Cal.) farmer, whose establishment is near the summer lame of Antoine Borel, was not cut out for a bee fancier. Some time ago while pruning some trees on his farm, Arthur was overjoyed to discover a colony of bees ensconced in a hollow limb, busily engaged in making honey. Recently he decided that the time was ripe to sample this unexpected luxury, so he proceeded to the tree and began operations by poking in the hole with a large stick. Then things happened. The bees, alarmed and angered at this treatment, came forth to do bab tle, and in a trice Arthur was hitting the high spots for home, followed by the buzzing swarm. An hour later he thought it safe to come out again, and cautiously approached the bee tree, which was near the chicken pen-Stark and stiff in the inclosure lay fourteen newly hatched chickens. The bees, having lost their human prey, had wreaked their vengeance upon the seless chicks.

Aviation Inspires an Opera. Aviation the most up-to-date branch of science has excelled all other modern-achievements in that it has inspired grand opera. This, however, is not surprising for a classic theme lay to the hands of libertist and composer in the Greek tragic story of rus, who was killed while attempting a flight, and it is on this ancient legend that the aviation opera, which was produced at Nice recently, was based. The author of the libretto, M. Henri Cain, shows learns in the center of the mase constructed by his father, Dacdalus. Despising the allurements of nymphs and naisds, the youth makes a pair of wings with the feathers of an eagle and tries to fly from the top of a citif. In the final scene, in which leasus dies from his fall, the gentus of science appears and in a vision shows him the final uest of the air.

To show how the opera is identified with modern aviation it may be added that the music was composed by M. Henri. Deutsch de la Meurthe, the wealthy Frenchman who was one of the first to have an airsing built for

It is estimated that there are about 9,000,000 apple trees in Pennsylvania.

Therefore it is that I believe, that as plants, trees and animals and all things that have life are seen to be by Nature sufficiently clothed and covered to defend them from the injuries of the weather, so were we; but as those who by artificial light put out that of the day, so we by borrowed forms and fashions have destroyed our own. And 'tis plain enough to be seen that 'tis custom only which renders that impossible that otherwise is nothing so; for of those nations who have no manner knowledge of clothing, some are situated under the same temperature as we are, and some in much colder climates. And besides, our most tender parts are always exposed to the air, as the eyes, mouth, nose and ears. Had we been born with a necessity upon us of wearing petticoate and breeches there is no doubt but Nature would have fortified those parts she intended should be exposed to the fury of the seasons with a thicker skin, as she has d the finger ends and the soles of the
