Socrates' Wise Advice.

Get not your friends by bare compliments, but by giving them sensible tokens of your love. It is well worth while to learn how to win the heart of a man the right way. Force is of no use to make or preserve a friend, who is an animal that is never caught nor tamed but by kindness and pleasare. Excite them by your civilities, and show them that you desire nothing more than satisfaction; oblige with all your soul that friend who has made you a present of his own.—Socrates.

SATIN IS USED IN WIN

More Seasonableness in Headgear Is Shown This Season Than Last.

The fact that the milliners have taken up satin for several shapes in the new millinery will contribute toward more seasonableness of headgear ing fabrics.

which black velvet dominated, but there has never been anything to equal the last six months. At any forgathering of women, the black velvet background. hat was as seemingly necessary to the costume as the steel helmet to the soldier. Shapes differed, ornamentation varied, but the hat was black velvet, and on this fabric were rung the slight changes that the milliners invented.

Women do not tire of black velvet hats any more than they tire of blue serge suits and frocks. They are the bread and water of fashions. The only time that the velvet hat grows wearisome in the eyes of the average woman is when the first snows fall and the fashionables turn their attention to the pines. Then the average If she will be fashionable at the cost woman wants to discard velvet and get of her appearance, let her take her anything she can as a substitute; and courage in both hands and defy opintoday, satin is wisely offered as a lon; but if she will compremise with mer millinery.

There are also satin hats in all the shades that hature gives to a dahlia, for America, as well as France, has up the brim, she can frankly line a decided that these purplish tones are wide, transparent brim with a double with excellent effect.

The brilliant purple that was advocated at the beginning of the season has been coldly greeted, but the deep purples that are almost on blue and black are found to agree with every kind of gown and coat worn.

The shapes of the new hats reveal no long-disguised secrets on the part of the millinery. The Russian turban in its original form is abandoned, but there is an undoubted suggestion from the Muscovite turban in the new hat that is a reversal of the old-meaning that the high point of the brim in front is now turned to the back, and instead of the ornament being placed against this part of the brim, it is kept in front.

The national Russian headdress has been worn a bit threadbare in some of the cheaper hats, but its original from under the heels of the man who glory is retained by the brides who are arranging these crowns with the point in front, as a setting for the tulle

The main points to remember in the new hats are the tightness of the light and dainty as a glove silk, but headband in all turbans, the even line has the elasticity of the jersey weaves, which is carried out around the head, which makes it admirable for lingerie, the elimination of more than one or- There is flesh color, pink or pale white, nament and the tendency to hold to made up into vests with bodice tops or Slavic ornamentation instead of any ribbon straps, suits, bloomers and summer.

The Chinese mandarin turban which has come into first fashion along with the Chinese fabrics and ornaments imported to this country to fill the place of the European importations, is strangely in keeping with some of the Russian shapes, and even the colors of the Chinese ornament which hangs from the button at the top, closely resemble those used by the New Ones Are Made of Cloth of Silver Slavs. Well, there were days in the formation of the races on this planet when the Mongolian and the Russian were closely mingled. > These brims are transparent. Car toonists used to draw amusing pic tures of women using brims of hat as a substitute for veils, and the idea was considered capricious and attrac tive; and, suddenly, it is taken seriously. Metallic net and bullion lace are used for these wide brims, and the hat is tilted so far forward over the eyebrows that it is an easy mat ter to look upward through the fabric The fashion has also led to women doing up their eyes a bit in the Oriental manner, so as to make them more significant and expressive under the half-concealing metal tissue.

The crowns of these large evening hats are made of crystals, of closely crushed roses and of heavy metal embroldery on tulle or satin, but there are no feathers. The much-vaunted ostrich feather, which was taken up by the best of the French designers in September, did not gain a place in the affections of the public, and the musketeer hat that Talbot revived, with its sweeping plumes and its likeness to those worn by the women of the eighteeenth century in England, was taken up only by the individual who wanted something different from her neighbor.

It may be safely said that in choosing an evening hat or one for the aft. ernoon, if you have the social opportunity to exploit so ornamental an article, it is wise to just look into the metallic fabrics and go no further. The straight sailor of cloth of silver or gold is not used for the evening. but is kept for the street, strangely enough, and is sometimes worn with severe black velvet gowns in the aft-

Makes Alluring Picture.

It is at its very best in the latter setting. The woman who can wear a simply cut, medieval frock of black chiffon velvet, with its slightly open neck, absence of collar and full sleeves caught in with an embroidered band at the wrist, and a straight Reboux sailor of oxidized cloth of silver, is sure of turning herself into an alluring picture.

Across the back of the brim there is a wide, eighteenthcentury bow of blush pink velvet.

All of these evening hats are worn with low gowns more often than with half-high ones, but so far they have not been adopted at the theater, for few women are willing to go back to the inconvenient days of holding a large hat on their laps, or, failing in the attempt to hold it, spend most of their time frantically grabbing it to keep it from slipping, or picking it up goes out between the acts.

MAKE EACH DAY PROFITABLE

Excellent Formula for Life That It Will Be Found Hard to Make Improvement On.

Charles Kingsley has given this formula in one of his books and as a certain and safe prescription it can scarcely be improved upon.

"Make it a rule," he said, "and pray God to help you keep it, never to lie down at night without being able to say: 'I have made one human being at least a little wiser, a little happier, or a little better this day." At first thought it does not seem as though this should be a very difficult course to pursue. The important thing is to make up your mind to live a matter of living one day at a time, one day of thoughtfulness, one day of helpfulness, one day of closer companionship with those who are near and should be dear to us .- Anon.
