A Picture.

Col. Henry W. Shoemaker, owner of the Altoona Tribune, and author of recognized ability, writes an interesting article under the above caption in a recent issue of the Tribune. Big game sportsmen especially will be interested in the article, which follows: Recently the writer was asked if he had ever seen an old photograph taken in the late sixties of Governor Curtin and a party of friends at the camp of Aaron Hall, "The Lion Hunter of the Juniata," in the Allegheny mountains near the borders of Blair and Centre counties. The picture is said to have been taken by a Bellefonte photographer, and represents the War Governor standing beside the mighty Nimrod, while on the cabin roof are hung the hides of nearly a dozen panthers and bears. Other persons in admiring attitudes are grouped about the Governor, and the "Lion Hunter." If any copies of this remarkable photograph are in existence, there are many who would appreciate seeing them, as they would be a perfect picture of the wilderness life in the Alleghenies, which now has almost entirely passed away.

When Coleman Sober, the world champion rifle-shot, who is still living first visited Aaron Hall's camp, about the same time as the described photograph was taken, he relates that the hides of eleven huge panthers hung on the walls, and that in front of the door stood two huge mounted black bears in erect positions, with their mouths propped open to show their fierce white teeth, their general effect being most terrifying. On that occasion, Hall stated that he would admit Mr. Sober to his camp if he proved himself no "tenderfoot." Mr. Sober consented to give the proofs which in this instance were to be an impromptu bear hunt on snow shoes. After a twenty-three mile tramp over the roughest kind of mountains, Bruin was rounded up, and Mr. Sober admitted to full membership in the camp.

A contemporary of Hall's has relating the occasion of the War Governor's visit. A number of distinguished lawyers and politicians were discussing big game hunting at the recently constructed Bush House in Bellefonte, and Governor Curtin said that within a comparatively few miles of that county seat was the camp of the greatest hunter in all Pennsylvania. A unanimous desire to see the great hunter and his camp was expressed, with the result that sleighs were ordered and the party was soon sweeping up Snow Shoe mountain in the direction of the headwaters of Rock Run. The War Governor and his friends were hospitably received by the great Nimrod, who treated them to a dinner of bear meat.

What a pity that those wonderful days before Nature's resources became exhausted are beyond the sight of the present generation. We can only have a picture, and if not a photograph, must see it in the "Mind's Eye."

DEATHS.

Mrs. Nancy Krise, wife of Prof. W. A. Krise, passed away at her home in this place on Wednesday noon of last week, as briefly mentioned in this paper last week. It was on the 30th of October last that Mrs. Krise suffered a paralytic stroke which affected her right side. For a few months her condition remained unchanged and on January 28th, the fifty-fifth anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Krise's wedding, she suffered severe convulsions which marked the beginning of the end. The many convulsions which occurred in the intervening time reduced her vitality and she finally succumbed at the time stated, fully prepared to meet her Maker.

The Problem of The Aged Clergymen.

Since so many churches think a clergyman crosses the dead line at fifty years, they cannot expect him to make provision for old age. The average age of ordination is about twenty-eight years, which gives him an earning capacity of less than twenty-five years. As expenses increase and cost of living grows higher, his salary remains the same.

Congregations say they must have a young man to hold the young people. There is some truth to this claim. Many clergymen become prematurely old from losing the play spirit in their absorption in spiritual interests.

Martin Luther, fond of music, took every occasion to surround himself with young persons and entertain them with song and instrumental accompaniment. He was an expert at playing the bowle, a favorite pastime in his day. The common recreation of humanity will keep any clergyman in touch with young life.

But even with every effort to keep young, many clergymen find their last years pathetic and impecunious. The churches who shelve them at the age when other men reach the height of their power are much like ungrateful children who do not care to personally look after their destitute parents when they grow old. Vehemently denounce such incarnation of ingratitude.

Beware churches, that you do not make a serious mistake in not caring for the ministers when you force him out into the cold world with no visible means of support.

The Central Pennsylvania Synod of the Lutheran Church in this vicinity is endeavoring to secure a Permanent Endowment for this purpose just now. The campaign began Maron 4th and will continue to Sunday, March 25th.

USE GAS TO PRESERVE FOOD

French Process is Especially Adapted for Milk Powder—Operation Declared Simple.

A method has lately appeared in Europe for preserving various food or other products, and especially milk powder, the idea being based upon placing the substance in a sealed vessel or packing case with inert gas, so that this latter prevents the usual spoiling of contents by the action of the air. In the French patented process, the milk powder is packed in metal boxes of convenient size which are entirely sealed except for a pin-hole that is left at the top. A number of such boxes is put in a chamber and the air is exhausted by means of an air pump. When this operation is finished, valves are opened which allow nitrogen to enter the chamber and fill up the several boxes. Then, opening up the chamber, the boxes are quickly removed and the pin hole soldered before an appreciable amount of air has time to enter. In this way the contents of the boxes are kept in an atmosphere of inert gas, and the process is most practical from an industrial standpoint.—Scientific American.

Found Roman Amphitheater.

A Roman amphitheater has been discovered during the construction of a railway from Rome to Naples. The building had been first buried in its own debris and later by a volcanic eruption of unknown date. Recently the Minister Barzilai, accompanied by Professor Spinazzola and others, was taken to see the ruins, and was able to descend the upper range of steps. There were also to be seen the upper apertures of entrances and exits and pieces of the beams which had supported the awnings. Fragments of gilded and colored stucco were a proof of the once magnificent decorations of the edifice. From the steps a fine view was obtained of Pozzuoli, once the port of ancient Rome, so rich that she could boast of two amphitheaters. The one just found is the older in date and evidently the more glorious.

New Ocean Steamship Line.

According to an announcement which was made recently at Madrid, a new steamship line is about to be established between Spain and the United States. The plans call for steamers to ply directly between Vigo and New York. King Alfonso, it is said, has given the enterprise his support and New York capitalists are furnishing financial backing. The new line will provide a shorter route between the two countries than any now in operation. The distance is a little more than 2,800 miles. While the commerce and industry of Spain are feeling indirectly depressing effects of the war, the commercial awakening of that country which has been in progress for some time has not been materially checked and steady advancement is being made along various lines.
