WOMEN SUFFERERS NEED SWAMP-ROOT

Thousands upon thousands of women have kidney and bladder trouble and never suspect it.
- Women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease.
- If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition, they may cause the other organs to become diseased.
- You may suffer a great deal with pain in the back, headache, loss of ambition, nervousness and may be dependent and irritable.
- Don't delay starting treatment. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a physician's prescription, obtained at any drug store, restores health to the kidneys and is just the remedy needed to overcome such conditions.
- Get a fifty cent or one dollar bottle immediately from any drug store.
- However, if you wish first to test this great preparation, send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.
- A Surprise.
- "The doctor has just told me," said the friendly neighbor, "that your husband cannot recover."
- "Oh!" shrieked the troubled wife.
- "Now, my dear, the question is: shall we break the news to him or let death come as a surprise to him?"

HE FORGOT ETHICS LEVYING NEW TAXES

But the Doctor Understood Boys, Which Was More Important.

His Talk of the Old Fishing Hole and the Summer Camping Trip Succeeded Where Medicine Failed.

The doctor walked slowly upstairs. The little boy's illness was not yielding to treatment as he would have wished. He had been doing all that medicine would do for the boy, but the delay in calling him had given the sickness such a start that he had made little progress in checking it. So he went upstairs with a heavy heart. Jimmie smiled as the young doctor came into his room. Jimmie was the smiling kind, though he had found it hard to be cheerful.

The doctor had many other calls to make, and he left soon with the promise to call again that night. When he came again the little patient was worse, though he probably did not realize it. The doctor took his pulse and his temperature and asked the usual questions of his mother. Then he did a highly unethical thing. But he understood boys and especially the one before him.

"Jimmie," he said, "you and I are going to fight hard to get you well, but we are going to get you well." The boy smiled; the doctor had touched the right chord. "Nobody but you and I can do it. Mother can't help you; neither can sister or brother or father. I am going to come to see you twice a day. We have got to get you in good shape so that you will be all ready to go camping this summer with the rest of the boys."

"You remember that little red eye hole down by those willows where I stopped to watch you fish when I came by in the automobile? Well, I drove past there last week and it looks to me like it is going to be better than ever. A big log has floated down there and you can sit on it in the shade of the willows and never get a bit hot, even in July. But before you go fishing you will have to get well. I think we can have you out of bed in two weeks."

The little chap in the bed looked hard at the doctor. He was only ten years old, and it is hard for ten-year-old boys to lie in bed. He hid when the doctor swam across a wide, swift river, he knew the doctor could lift him with two fingers; he knew the doctor liked little boys and liked to help them all he could. In his boy mind the doctor was a hero. "Yes, sir (the boy was speaking), if you say we have to fight, I'll do just what you say. It is hard not to get to play after school (a tear rolled down and lost itself in the sheet near the boy's ear), but I can put my clothes on, can't I?" The doctor nodded, and, forgetting about medicine, plunged into another story of next summer. He talked for almost an hour to the boy. Which was also not exactly ethical. But when he rose to go he noticed a new light in the young eyes.

"I think we will have Jimmie out playing in about two weeks," he said to the anxious mother. And as he threw his car into "high," a listener might have heard him humming softly as was his habit when his heart was not heavy.—Indianapolis News.

Days.

Days are said to resemble the hairs of our heads to the extent of being numbered. The only other resemblance is that they get sticky in hot weather. Days are still within the reach of all and no costlier than heretofore, but big nights always did come high. The present day is the only one of any real use, but as we look about us we see that it is the least valued. This proves that humans are somehow superior creatures to the brutes. The weather is the garment of the day and most of us take a neat dresser. But days are something like people and occasionally one whose personal appearance might be improved is yet able to make us happy.—Detroit Journal.

Two Ideals in Statuary.

One scarcely realizes, until he comes into personal contact with South American institutions and people, the difference of traditional ideals with which North and South America were founded. While through our parks and commons in New England we find statues of the early Pilgrim fathers with a staff in his hand and the Bible under his arm, here in these republics we find in the parks the mailed warrior with lance and sword, the emblem of the Spanish adventurer who first came to drive out the Indians from his possessions, to loot his gold and to place upon the country and its inheritance the stamp of his ruthless ambitions.—Christian Herald.

Transformation.

"Does Claude Algernon recite poetry?"
"Yes," replied Miss Cayenne.
"I'll keep away. I don't care for poetry."
"Oh, I'm sure you'd approve of him. It doesn't sound a bit like poetry when Claude Algernon recites it."

Reopening an Argument.

Wife—I could find but one pencil about the whole house, and, of course, the point was broken off. But I managed to sharpen it, with much effort.

MOST IMPORTANT PROPOSITION BEFORE CONGRESS.

Matter of Raising Immense Amount by Unusual Means Is of Vital Interest to Entire Country—Equitable Spread of Income Tax.

There is no legitimate discussion in the proposition to supply the government with all the money necessary for carrying on the war. Congress by an overwhelming majority in each house having declared war can be trusted to vote all the funds the emergency calls for. It understands popular feeling on the subject, and will accept it as a command.

But there is legitimate discussion in propositions as to where the money shall be found, and all such propositions should be well examined.

Particularly is this true because of the fact that the amount to be raised by taxation is large. We are setting pegs in that direction, as in some others. What we have in hand cannot be supported by usual means. Hence congress must look about with wide and wise eyes for unusual means.

The income tax, properly laid, is a just tax. But it should be laid so as to apply without marked favor or marked disfavor. That is to say, it should not be assessed against only a small portion of the people. Let large numbers pay it according to their earnings.

All luxuries are properly assessable, and particularly such as are under a sort of ban. It is when we get beyond the things now under tribute that the difficulty arises. Suggestions without number are offered. Not only the members of the house who will prepare the new bill, but all other members and all senators are busy receiving and digesting information as to what should be done.

The whole proceeding is being followed with interest by the country.

Only One Party.

The eloquent words which Elihu Root spoke in New York when expressing his opinion that while there need be no coalition government, there is need of practical coalition among all the political groups of the country in support of the government, were followed the next day by the visit of Colonel Roosevelt to the White House.

That visit was a visible expression of the idea behind Mr. Root's speech. No two men in the United States have been more vigorous in the disapproval of the president than the former president and his former secretary, but there is no room or place for the old partisanship now. Leadership must be in the direction of solidarity, and in this direction these men are leading and their example is good for the men of all parties.

Raising War Revenue.

Congress should not only raise revenue, it should conserve the normal processes of American business. Clumsy radicalism means disaster at home and abroad. It means failures, the closing of factories, the destruction of legitimate business enterprises, the throwing of men and women out of work.

When the danger line in taxation is approached there should be a resort to borrowing. Excessive bond issue is drastic taxation. America can stand a great deal of taxation if sensibly imposed, and has a tremendous borrowing capacity. But let us pray that caution, moderation and common sense guide the financial measures of the government in this difficult time.

Duty Before American Farmers.

Every full day's labor you do helps to shorten the struggle and bring us nearer victory. Every idle day, all loafing, lengthens the struggle and makes defeat more possible. Therefore, in the nation's honor, heed: Acquit yourselves like men, and as workers on the land do your duty with all your strength.—Lloyd-George to the British farmers.

The American farmers are not raising crops to save their own countrymen from starvation, but they can do their bit in the war by increasing acreage and acquitting themselves like men too. Everybody at work! No shirking!

All Must Prove Patriotism.

Every American must do his bit in this war. Those who shirk fall in their duty as patriots. They retard the country's cause and thereby they in effect aid the enemy. There will doubtless be some "conscientious objectors," opposed to war in general, and particularly for one reason and another opposed to this war. Their failure to do anything, to lend a hand anywhere, can be readily understood. But for those who recognize the right and the duty of this country to join issue in conflict with Germany there will be no excuse for a failure to help, in however humble a way, to promote the American cause.

Ships in Wartime.

The control of United States shipping must be centralized in one strong board or bureau of the government. That is the manner in which Great Britain after most costly delay corrected one of her costliest mistakes and made her shipping resources efficient for war and for feeding the population. By acting promptly the United States can avoid costly mistakes involving losses of commerce with neutral countries, failure to support the army and navy, neglect of the coast patrol and other blunders.—Washington Herald.

Kidney & Co.

(BY DR. J. H. WATSON)

The kidneys and the skin work in harmony. They're companions, the skin being the second partner. If we are anxious to keep well and preserve the vitality of the kidneys and, also, free the blood from noxious elements, we must pay special attention to a good action of the skin and to see that the kidneys are flushed so as to eliminate the poisons from the blood.

Sweating, by hard work or in a bath, at least once a week, helps to keep the skin and kidneys in good condition. Flush the kidneys by drinking plenty of pure water with meals and between meals. Occasionally obtain at the drug store Anuric, double strength, which will help flush the kidneys and the intestines. You will find that Anuric is many times more active than lithia and that it dissolves uric acid as hot does sugar.

HOME FOLKS TESTIFY

Finksburg, Md.—"I want to say in reference to Anuric that I think it is wonderful. My back was so bad when I stopped for a few minutes I could scarcely straighten up. I don't think it was more than two days after I began taking Anuric until I saw it was helping me. After using one box I was completely cured, that's saying a great deal for it, as I am over 60 years of age."—MARRION J. LEISTER.
