

REBERSBURG MAN IN TRAINING.

Edwin A. Ziegler leaves Position as Head of Forestry School to Receive Training at Fort Niagara.

Penn and Brush Valley resident who know Prof. Edwin A. Ziegler, who for a number of years has been director of the State Forest Academy at Mont Alto, will be interested to learn that he has entered into the service of his country at Ft. Niagara, New York, where he will take the short intensive training course which qualifies the students for positions as officers in the army.

Prof. Ziegler is not yet thirty-seven years of age, being born in Rebersburg, Sept. 20, 1880. He was graduated with the degree A. B. at Franklin and Marshall college in 1902 and in 1913 was awarded the degree of A. M. After graduating from college he became an instructor at the Rebersburg high school. That year he entered the United States forest service as student's assistant and in 1894 was promoted to assistant forest expert. The following year he was made forest agent and the year succeeding that was promoted to assistant forest expert. He gradually rose to still higher distinction in the United States forest service. While delivering a course of lectures on forest mensuration at Pennsylvania State College he was advanced to the position which he now temporarily vacates to go to the front.

He is the author of a number of valued text books on forestry and has made some extraordinary and useful compilation on forest growth and timber computations. He holds membership in various state and national organizations pertaining especially to forest conservation. While at the head of the State Forest Academy at Mont Alto he has taught forest economic, forest static, forest finance, surveying roads, general economic and trigonometry.

Prof. Ziegler married Miss Rebecca J. Moyer, who at one time taught school in Centre Hall, on December 27, 1905. Mrs. Ziegler, while her husband is in training, is visiting her sister, Mrs. H. R. Kreider, in Toledo, Ohio.

MORE OR LESS AN ESTIMATE

How the Census Bureau Arrives at What It Calls the Center of Population.

In locating the center of population it is first assumed to be approximately at a certain point. Through this point a parallel and a meridian are drawn, crossing the entire country. The product of the population of a given area by its distance from the assumed parallel is called a north or south moment, and the product of the population of the area by its distance from the assumed meridian is called an east and west moment. In calculating north and south moments the distances are measured in minutes of arc; in calculating east and west moments it is necessary to use miles on account of the unequal length of the degrees and minutes in different latitudes. The population of the country is grouped by square degrees—that is, by areas included between consecutive parallels and meridians—as they are convenient units with which to work. The population of the principal cities is then deduced from that of the respective square degrees in which they lie and treated separately. The center of population of each square degree is assumed to be at its geographical center, except where such an assumption is manifestly incorrect; in these cases the position of the center of population of the square degree is estimated as nearly as possible. The population of each square degree north and south of the assumed parallel is multiplied by the distance of its center from that parallel; a similar calculation is made for the principal cities, and the sum of the north moments and the sum of the south moments are ascertained. The difference between these two sums, divided by the total population of the country, gives a correction to the latitude. In a similar manner the sums of the east and of the west moments are ascertained and from them the correction in longitude is made.

DECIDE ON FRUITS' RIPENESS

Experts Have Settled Question Which Has Long Been a Matter of Serious Moment.

When is an orange ripe? Uncle Sam has been puzzling his experts with this query for some time and finally the bureau of chemistry has decided, anyway, when an orange is unripe. According to the finding, which applies both to Florida and California fruit, oranges are considered "immature if the juice does not contain soluble solids equal to or in excess of eight parts to every part of acid contained in the juice, the acidity of the juice to be calculated as citric acid without water or crystallization." The same applies to Florida grapefruit, except that the ratio of soluble solids to the acid must be some to one, or better. The decision was necessary because of the alleged practice of growers of picking the fruit green and "steaming" it yellow either in warehouses or in transit to market. In many instances the fruit contained so little sugar and so much acid that it was injurious to digestion, especially to the digestion of children.

An old lady who lived alone outside a small English village was nervous of Zeppelins, so she made careful inquiries as to her best course.

"I don't think there's much to worry about," replied the vicar in answer to her questions, "but, if you like, you can do as some folk are doing—sleep in the cellar."

With profuse thanks, the old lady went on to alter her domestic arrangements. But in half an hour she was back again, anxiety once more wrinkling her brow.

"The cellar's all right for Zeppelins, sir," she said, "but suppose one of them there submarines comes instead?"

Mark Twain "at the Case."

Mark Twain's connection with the printing industry is interestingly described in the "American Printer" from the days when he was an itinerant typesetter (his first job when his wanderings brought him to New York city, it is stated, was in the composing room of Gray & Green, the predecessor of the William Green corporation, the present printers of The Outlook), to the time when he was the financial head of the firm of Charles L. Webster & Co. As a compositor he was glad to earn $5 a week; when publisher his firm paid to Mrs. Grant, from the profits on General Grant's "Memoirs," $450,000.

Head Held in Oyster Can.

No cat was ever caught tighter in a salmon can than was fifteen-month-old Hilda Knaub of Windsor, when her elder sister, Dorothy, slipped a tin oyster pail over the baby's head in play.

An offset inside the bucket held the child's head as in a vise. After a futile effort to get it loose, Mrs. John Knaub, mother of the children, sent for the nearest plumber, who came with his shears and cut the pail. The child was badly frightened, but unhurt.—York (Pa.) Dispatch Philadelphia Record.

Reducing Tuberculosis Mortality. Lord Rosebery, in a London address on tuberculosis, said that preventive measures had reduced the mortality from consumption in London by 33 per cent between 1901 and 1911, and by 14 per cent in England and Wales for the same period.

NOW, please don't say, "Oh, just another one of those tire-fillers," and let it go at that! ESSENKAY is a tire-filler, but not the kind you probably have in mind. It is nothing like the ones that have been tried and found wanting, but is a wonderful discovery that has at last solved the problem of a real substitute for air.

MONDAY

OH, that dreaded wash day! Isn't there some way to do it easier—some way to avoid that terrific kitchen heat, the back-breaking job of toting wood, shoveling coal and cleaning out ashes? Yes, madam, there is.

NEW PERFECTION OIL COOK-STOVES.

have chased this wash-day bugaboo away to stay. With a Perfection in your kitchen you won't have heat all the time, but just when you need it. The water gets hot—off goes the heat, fuel expense stops, the kitchen cools off. You save money, time and work.

And the Perfection will bake, boil, fry or roast at a minute's notice. Just light a match and it'll begin to "do things up brown."

Your dealer will explain its many fine points, such as the fireless cooker and the separate oven.

THE ATLANTIC REFINING COMPANY Philadelphia and Pittsburgh

Your Perfection, or any other oil-burning device, simply can't give best results unless you use Rayolight Oil. It burns without sputter, smoke or smell. And it doesn't cost a penny more than the ordinary kinds. Always look for this sign:
