VOCATIONAL SCHOOL FOR SPRING MILLS NEXT FALL.

The First to Be Established in Centre County.—Three Teachers Will Be Employed.

A vocational school, the first in Centre county, is to be established at Spring Mills the coming term. Vocational schools, while comparatively a new institution, are already established in thirty of the agricultural counties of the state, and are proving a great success.

The State department of agriculture has been agitating the movement for the new school for the strictly rural communities, and that a vocational school is to be established at Spring Mills is due to the unqualified endorsement given by many of Gregg township's citizens in the form of a petition which was presented some time ago to the state department.

In a thorough going vocational school there are three teachers—a director and two supervisors, one over agricultural studies for the boys and another who looks to the interests of the girls along the line of household economics.

Two of the three teachers have already been elected for the new vocational school. Prof. W. V. Godshall, the present principal, will become director; Prof. W. W. Ritz, a Penn State graduate, who for several years has been in charge of the agricultural department in the schools at Mercer, will have charge of the same department at Spring Mills.

Friends of Forest Miller, of Linden Hall, are congratulating him on his success in winning the Pennsylvania State College scholarship, awarded to the State College High school student showing the highest marks in scholarship and deportment, as well as the need for aid in furthering his education.

Brown, Millheim. Harriet R. Heller Loganton. H. Ray Wilson, Elwood City. Myra P. Yeager, State College.

John H. Knarr is exhibiting the warning end of a rattlesnake which measured three and a half feet, and which he killed on Monday in the vicinity of the slaughter house. The tailpiece holds eight rattles and the button.

Plans are maturing at the Pennsylvania State College for carrying out in every detail the Summer Session program as previously announced. The advance enrollment gives assurance that in spite of the disturbed conditions existing in the schools of the state a large number of the teachers will be on hand at the opening of the sessions Monday, June 25th.

In order to meet the needs of teachers who desire to engage in some form of patriotic services a number of emergency courses including First Aid Work, Dietetics, Military Drill, and Home Gardening will be offered in addition to the regular scheduled courses.

As special features there will be held a war-time conference of public school men of the state, and a conference of rural church workers will be inaugurated.
