Why is the Dairy Cow Slaughtered in Great Numbers?

"The number of milk cows that have gone to the block in the last few months have been far beyond the average," says L. W. Lighty, farm advisor of the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture. "Cow feed is quoted at $55 to $65 a ton, whereas formerly it was $25 to $35 a ton. The price the farmer gets for milk is almost the same as before these abnormal feed prices. At the end of the month the feed merchant's account is greater than the milk check and what should a business man do? He sells his cows and the butcher offers the best price."
"The dairyman does not want to sell his cows but he is compelled to do so because the organized milk buyers will not pay him the actual cost of production. These milk buyers are bringing a terrible calamity to this country."
"In one year a fairly good dairy cow will yield 600 to 700 pounds of water free digestible food, wholesome and well balanced. She will continue to do this for years. If you slaughter the cow you will get barely the half of this weight water free digestible food, of a far inferior quality besides ending the future production of food."
"The cow not only yields the above great quantity of food in the form of milk, but she reproduces herself every year. Thus in six years she would give humanity two tons of the best food besides increasing the bovine population six times. Kill her and get a patty 300 pounds of food and then no more. The way to keep this wonderful food producer going is to pay the farmer a living price for the milk produced. On an average this figure now is 7 cents a quart."

Try our coal or cement the next time you order. If you are planning to build or make repairs, come in and get our valuable 80-page book, "ALPHA Cement—How to Use It." It tells how to mix concrete and how to make dozens of excellent improvements on the farm or around the home.
