The Root Standard of Loyalty.

A portion of Elihu Root's Chicago address is reprinted below, and should be carefully read. The Root standard is a good standard. If you are debating in your mind, or otherwise, the question whether or not the United States should have entered the war, be careful you do not permit a traitorous feeling to develop. Here is the Root standard.

"A nation which declares war and goes on discussing whether it ought to have declared war or not, is impotent. A democracy which cannot accept its own decisions, made in accordance with its own laws, but must keep on endless discussing the question already decided, has failed in the fundamental requirements of self-government. And if the decision is to make war, the failure to exhibit capacity for self-government by action will inevitably result in the loss of the right of self-government.

"The men who are speaking, writing and printing arguments against the war now, and against everything that is being done to carry on the war, are rendering more effective service to Germany than they could render in the field. The purpose and effect of what they are doing is so plain that it is impossible to resist the conclusion that the greater part of them are at heart traitors to the United States and willfully seeking to bring about the triumph of Germany and the humiliation and defeat of their own country.

Mr. Bryan's Role of Patriotism.

There is no better rule of patriotism for the guidance of all pacifists, conscientious objectors and sticklers for the rights of free speech than that laid down by William J. Bryan in an address in Chicago.

After asserting that the citizen who insists upon criticizing the war policy of the Government is "a promoter of anarchy," Mr. Bryan said:

I don't know how long the war will last, but I know that the quickest way out is straight through. Any division or discussion now would simply prolong the war and make it more costly in lives and treasure.

No man hates war more bitterly than Mr. Bryan, but war has come in spite of everything that was done to avoid it. Mr. Bryan's way of ending it is to beat Germany as soon as possible. That is the way all men who see straight, and Mr. Bryan is doing a great public service in bringing the issue into the open.

Sugar to be Six a Pound.

Beet sugar producers in conference with the food administration at Washington, on Thursday, reached a unanimous agreement by which the stable retail price of sugar will be about eight cents a pound. They will sell to wholesalers at eastern refining points at seven and one-fourth cents a pound, cane basis, and the retail price, it was stated, normally would be not more than three-fourths of a cent higher.

American cane sugar representatives, it is believed, will take action similar to that of the beet sugar men within a week. Most cane producers already have agreed to a seven and one-fourth cent price, or its equivalent, but this is not regarded as final until the decision is unanimous. The new sugar price will become effective in the west October 1, and in the east about two weeks later.

"World War Talks" in Grange Arcade, Thursday evening, October 4th, 7:30 o'clock.

MR. RHONE DEAD.

Death Came Tuesday Night at 9:45 O'clock, After an Illness of Two Weeks.

Centre Hall's most distinguished citizen, Hon. Leonard Rhone, died Tuesday night at about 9:45 o'clock, at his home in Centre Hall. He had been ill for a little over two weeks, having taken his bed at the headquarters of the Grange Encampment and Fair at the opening of the exhibition. From his bed he directed the management of the most successful exhibition held in a number of years. He refused to leave the camp ground headquarters until the close of the exhibition on Friday, when he was removed to his home a short distance away. From that time to the time of his death Mr. Rhone grew gradually weaker, and while his friends greatly regretted his condition and did all for him possible, there was little hope entertained for his final recovery.

Mr. Rhone gave almost his entire life to the advancement of the interests of the agricultural class. He was absolutely unselfish, he lived to help others. Through the organization of the order of the Patrons of Husbandry Mr. Rhone endeavored to uplift financially, socially and morally the farmer. He wielded a wide influence in Grange circles, and whether as a Master of the State Grange, member of the legislature, or citizen, the purpose of his heart was to aid and comfort others.

Interment will be made at Centre Hall, by the side of his wife, Saturday morning. The beautiful rites and ceremony of the Grange will be used at the funeral, and will be performed by officers of the State Grange. The public is invited.

[A more elaborate notice will appear in further issues of this paper.]
