Lutheran—Centre, morning; Georges Valley, afternoon; Centre Hall, evening.

LOCALS

District S. S. convention will be held at Tusseyville, Friday, November 2nd.

Wednesday morning the ground was covered with snow, the first of the season.

H. G. Strommeler, the marble dealer, swapped his Ford car on a Chevrolet.

Which would you sooner do, loan our government money at four per cent., or pay the war debt of Germany in the form of taxes?

The Perry County Times has been reduced from an eight-page to a four-page paper. Editor Lebo says it was necessary to reduce expenses or raise the subscription price.

Buying a liberty bond is about the least service that one with a spare "fifty" can give. While others are offering their lives the man with money is only asked to loan it to the government at a fair rate of interest.

Ladies Toggery Shop wishes to announce that in connection with the tailored to individual measure coat suits, separate coats, separate skirts and corsets, they will have a stock of ready to wear coats, waists, and corsets, along with Switzerland embroidered wool and silk georgette crepe in dress patterns for both evening and street wear. Governor's Appointments Held.

The Dauphin county court decided that the Governor of Pennsylvania has the right to appoint to office after the final adjournment of the legislature the same men that occupied the position previously. President Judge Kunkel wrote the decision, which upholds Governor Brumbaugh at every point. Auditor General Snyder had refused to pay salaries because the Legislature had failed to confirm the appointments.

The men directly concerned are Banking Commissioner Lafean, Secretary of Agriculture Patton, Printing Superintendent Long and Fish Commissioner Buller. Three other men—Compensation Commission Leech, Industrial Commissioner Wm. Young and B. Frank Meade, examiner of expert accountants, are also included. Of these men Commissioner Young has died since the question was pending.

Pasture conditions have increased and are now rated at 65 per cent. by the farmers of the State.

CAPTURED BUCK FAWN.

Little Deer, Chased by Dogs, Sought Refuge on Grange Park.—D. W. Bradford Has It in Charge.

Scores of people visited the barn of D. W. Bradford, in Centre Hall, on Tuesday and Wednesday, to get a glimpse of a live deer. Sure they had seen lots of them, but only after a hunter's bullet had laid them out. The beauty, innocences and native "spunk" can only be appreciated in a live deer. The deer in question was captured by Mr. Bradford on Grange Park early Tuesday morning. It had been run by dogs and sought the enclosed grounds as a place of refuge. Mr. Bradford chanced to discover the animal—a buck fawn, old from spring, and not yet of the age to be within the law for killing in deer season—as he was on his way to the fields lying west of the picnic grounds. The little beauty was lying on the ground at the upper end of the park. Mr. Bradford first thought it was a goat, but closer investigation proved it to be a fawn. It had evidently been lying on the ground for some time, for a pool of blood was about the deer, which came from wounds on the nose and mouth, caused, no doubt by striking on the fence. It is presumed the dogs were chasing the mother deer and the little fawn ran in another direction.

Mr. Bradford attempted to pick up the deer, which weighs about seventy-five pounds, but although very weak, it ran towards the fence and was soon fast in the woven wire. He released it and soon found that to attempt to take the deer home was more than he himself could do. He then went for aid and with the assistance of W. F. Keller and D. Geiss Wagner, the deer was carried to Mr. Bradford's barn, but only after a chase over the enclosed park and after the animal had again become tied up in the wire fence.

Upon making inquiry of a State constabulary Mr. Bradford was advised to keep the fawn until it gathered sufficient strength and then to release it in the mountains.

Those who ventured near the deer in the stable to give it a kind touch were given a sample of the force it carries in its front legs and its short horns. It charged several who came too close and is surely full of "pep" for a little wounded animal. As it nestles in its warm bed amidst the hay, it presents a picture so pure and innocent that we feel constrained to say that the species should be free from the huntsman's rifle and be permitted to roam in the mountain fastnesses unmolested.

27 Called Out of 100 Men.

The following is a summary of the work of the Exemption Board of Centre county on the 100 men called for examination last week:

Letter From Ford Motor Company.

The following letter was received from the Ford Motor Co., and explains thoroughly the situation on Ford cars this year:

To All Agents: If you are one of the numerous agents who has on file a large number of unfilled orders for Ford cars, disregard this letter. If you are one of our few agents who has only a few orders on hand, kindly regard this as a notification that from now on we will not ship you cars unless you have regular bona fide orders on hand so that you can immediately deliver cars to owners.

You will remember on Dec. 19th, 1916, we notified all our agents that during the winter that was then on us, we would positively deliver no cars to agents unless they had them sold in advance. Some agents thought they could not sell during the winter and some prospective purchasers thought we were bluffing, but there are thousands and thousands of people in these United States who now know that if they had taken advice of our agents and accepted delivery of a car at any time it could be delivered, even if the snow was deep, that they would have had a car now, instead of being without anything at all or riding around in something whose first cost was considerably more than the first cost and upkeep of a Ford for several years.

Our fiscal year ended July 31st, 1917, and at that time the Ford Motor Company closed its book with 80,000 unfilled orders. The Company to-day is now building 3300 cars a day, and some of our agents are delivering this month, orders taken 1st April and May.

In looking over our list we find agents with anywhere from 50 to 178 unfilled orders. If you doubt this statement, we will be more than glad to show you the actual figures the next time you are at this Branch. Our total of unfilled orders this month is over 2500 at this branch only. Isn't it fair, therefore, that we should hand the cars out to the agents who have the orders instead of those that feel they can sell a car load of cars if we ship it into their territory?

As you know, we have changed our plan of distribution somewhat this year and each agent is getting a certain number of cars every month, so if you have orders you are bound to get some cars each month and should be able to estimate about when you could make delivery to your customers.

The price of the Sedan, Coupelet and Town car has just been raised, but the Touring car and Runabout price, except for the addition of the war tax just declared, remains the same. We haven't any means of knowing when we may be forced to raise the price on all models. Just as last year, it cannot be considered that there is a shortage of Ford cars, but simply that there is an increased demand and the man who puts off buying a Ford car until spring, will, from present indications, either have to buy something else or go without altogether.

Last winter you will remember that on positive instructions from Detroit we had to ship 1000 of our cars South. We had hardly gotten started on these shipments before all our agents were awake to the situation and crying for the car, but it was too late. If we can show by our demand at this Branch that the Ford cars are needed in the Pittsburgh territory, we have a very good chance of getting more than our allotment during the next few months.

It will, therefore, be up to all agents to get very busy right away and keep orders on file ahead of the quantity we are shipping from this Branch each day, or our production will be delivered elsewhere. As it is, we shall simply divert from one point in our territory, where there are no orders, to those points that have orders, so make it plain to your trade that they had better place that order to-day and take delivery of the car any time that we can get it to you, instead of putting it off and running the risk of their going without altogether or paying a higher price later for some other make.

Keep this letter with you. Show it to your prospective customers—give them time to read it. If they won't believe you and us in spite of the well known experience of last season, you had better forget them and sell your cars to someone with more foresight.
