Each man who has left the college for war service will be represented by a star, and his name will be embroidered on the flag.

When completed, the flag, which is probably the largest of its kind in the country, will be unfurled across the front of the pipe organ in the Schwab auditorium. Women students and wives of faculty members are engaged in the task of sewing and embroidering.

THREE GREAT PROBLEMS FOR FARMERS.

main an easy prey for the speculator, gambler and wily politician.

"The third great problem is that of marketing or distribution. Not many realized how antiquated, cumbersome and expensive our market system had become until the present war came upon us. Just how to solve this problem is still a question on which men differ in their opinions. There is but little use in urging the farmer to increase his yield per acre or greatly increase the number of acres of tilled land unless he is assured that the products which he produces can be distributed at a price that shall yield him a reasonable profit. Both our State and National Government has undertaken to solve this problem. Many mistakes will doubtless be made, but in the end we are convinced that much good will come through their efforts. The greatest need seems to be one of a shorter and more economical system of distribution. The Bureau of Markets recently created by an act of Legislature is endeavoring to put the farmer in closer touch with market needs and conditions. Statistics are being filed as to crop conditions, and inquiries from those who have products to sell as well as those who desire to buy are being tabulated and given out to the farmer at his request.

"Farm organizations are being effected, and the farmer is being given much needed assistance in grading, sorting, packing and labeling his products. The machinery has been set in motion, and care of fruit, vegetables, hay and grain are being moved from the farm to the distributor in our market centres.

Politely Searched.

A well-dressed man leaving a Washington theater recently, absorbed in reflection on the performance he had just witnessed, noticed a crowd of theatergoers lingering at the entrance. The W. D. M. did not flatter himself that he was the center of attraction, although he had been somewhat prominent in his home town, and, glancing backward, saw a party leaving the theater, of which the president was the center. This was the cause of all the commotion. At this juncture the W. D. M. lost his equilibrium, stumbled and fell in a heap in the president's path. An alert corps of ever-present secret-service men, instantly on the job, lifted the prostrate W. D. M. to his feet and courteously brushed him off, handing him his hat, cane and glasses. The W. D. M. later confessed to friends that he had a faint suspicion that in the brushing process he had been systematically and incidentally "frisked" for concealed weapons.—Indianapolis News.

How Deaf Mutes Feel Music.

According to teachers of deaf mutes, musical instruction is more important as an educational factor for the deaf child than it is for the hearing, says the Popular Science Monthly.

The parts most sensitive to vibrations are the chest, head, lungs and feet. "An exciting feeling comes up through the floor," is the way one deaf boy describes it. "Without music I would be lonesome," wrote a little Italian deaf mute. "It gives me a strong shock through the feet to the head," stated another. Others, when asked to explain their sensations, said: "I feel it in my temple and in my legs," "I feel it through my whole body," and "I feel it in my chest and lungs."

The Soldier's Prayer.

[Written by Private W. L. Lacey of the 8th Infantry]

A soldier is a nobody,
We hear lots of people say,
They are the outcast of the country,
And always in the way.

We admit there are lots of thoughtless ones
in the army and marines,
But you will find the great majority,
The most worthy ever seen.

Most people condemn a soldier
When he takes a drink or two,
But we do not condemn you,
When you stop to take a few.

The government picks its soldiers,
From the millions far and wide,
So treat him as your equal,
And drop your haughty pride.

For when he goes to battle,
You will cheer him on his way,
And say he was a hero,
When in his grave he lay.

But the hardest battle of a soldier,
Is in the time of Peace,
When people laugh and scorn him,
And treat him indifferently.

Then let us now remember,
The one who'll do his best,
And greet him with a kindly smile,
Before he has gone to rest.

He's Used to It.

It costs a country newspaper money every time it takes a stand on any question. Almost any citizen besides a newspaper man can do it without injuring his business. If the editor advocates improvements all the soreheads go after him and sometimes stop their paper. If he publishes politics the opposition gets into his hair, and if he does not he is charged with being afraid to stand out for his opinion. If he condemns the mail order houses, there are some people who ask him to attend to his own business, as they have a right to trade where they please. If he publishes a mail order advertisement some of the merchants are after his gore. No country paper can come out squarely without making enemies and losing money, and in the run of a year or more will incur some criticism from everybody. The newspaper that undertakes to please everybody will please nobody; if it is honest and sincere and thoughtful the public will respect it.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proved Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system.
