COUNTY FARM AGENT
DISCUSSES FERTILIZER.

Manure Not a Balanced Fertilizer for General Farm Crops, He Says.—Gives Interesting Figures.

The general fertilizer experiments of the experimental station, minor tests and farm practice throughout the state show that for production of general farm crops practically all types of Pennsylvania soils need phosphorus more than they any other fertilizer element.

In the college experiments the application of nitrogen and potash, unless accompanied by phosphorus acid in some form, has always been at a very considerable loss. The use of $18.60 worth of nitrogen and potash figured at normal prices brought an increased crop return of $2.17. At present prices this treatment would cost $58.24 and the increased return in crops would be $4.65. Phosphoric acid applied in connection with nitrogen and potash increased financial returns from $4.65 to $70.38, figuring costs at present prices.

When manure as produced on a farm is used without the addition of any phosphoric containing material, either to the manure or to the soil on which it is applied, the conditions are quite similar to those obtained where nitrogen and potash alone are used. While it is true that manure contains some phosphorus, the amount is not sufficient to insure the utilization of all the nitrogen and potash which it contains.

At present prices the farmer who applies 12 tons average manure is treating his soil with about $55.00 worth of nitrogen and potash only about $5.00 worth of phosphoric acid. At a normal price these values would be $22.20 for nitrogen and potash and $3.12 for phosphoric acid. To insure the complete utilization of the nitrogen and potash applied would necessitate the addition of about 75 pounds of phosphoric acid more than contained in the 12 tons of manure. This would be supplied in an available form by 480 pounds of 16 per cent Acid Phosphate or about twice that amount of finely ground raw phosphate rock. When lighter or heavier applications of manure are made, these amounts should be varied accordingly.

At the Ohio experiment station, the average returns from a ton of open yard manure was $2.93 per year for a period of thirteen years while that from a ton of stall manure treated with 40 pounds of acid phosphate was $5.43 for the same period. Although acid phosphate has increased 40 per cent to 60 per cent in the last few years, crops have more than doubled in value during the same period. The percentage of profit which may be expected from the use of these materials today is greater than the above results.

Therefore to get from the manure what it is actually worth for the growing of general crops, and in order to prevent the waste of the nitrogen and potash which it contains it is imperative to add some form of phosphate.

TEACHERS' INSTITUTE.

More Than 300 Teachers Gathered at Bellefonte this Week.

The seventy-first annual session of Centre County Teacher's Institute opened at Bellefonte at 2 p. m., Monday, 319 teachers out of a possible 323 have enrolled. Prof. J. W. Yoder, of Philadelphia, has charge of the music. Patriotism gushes from the throats of the teachers on nearly every musical occasion.

Institute formally opened with prayer by Dr. Yocum. Dr. M. V. O'Shea, Prof. of Education from the University of Wisconsin, was the first lecturer. He spoke on "Everyday Traits in Human Nature". He talked only from the psychological viewpoint. Dr. F. G. Blair, Supt. of Public Instruction in the State of Illinois, opened his subject of "Waste in Education" which was continued Tuesday morning. The Potters gave a very enjoyable entertainment Monday evening to an appreciative audience.

TUESDAY.

Directors were with the teachers. Dr. MacLeod, of the U. B. church, conducted devotions. Dr. O'Shea then spoke on the "Trend of the Times". He explained the awkward age of 13 to 17, and told the teachers they must not be vexed too sorely over the vigor and energy of this age because nature has planned our lives thus and finally she will restore the boy and girl to a normal condition.

Prof. C. D. Koch, State High School instructor, followed Dr. O'Shea. He requested the teachers to emphasize only the fundamentals in education.

Dr. Blair then said that the most effective way to stop waste in education was to spend more money for educational equipment, and to keep complete harmony among the teaching force.

AFTERNOON.

Dr. Blair discussed the teacher. The gist of his remarks was that as the teacher, so is the school; and as the school and community, so is the teacher. Dr. O'Shea closed the afternoon with an entertaining and instructive lecture on Experimental Psychology Judge Alden, of Boston, filled the evening program. Subject, "The Health of the Nation". He pleaded for purity in the home and the nation and requested the teacher to help make the world safe for democracy, and our democracy safe for the world.

MARRIED FIFTY YEARS.

Mr. and Mrs. George Gentzel, of Spring Mills, Celebrate Happy Event.—Children Plan Festivities.

Mr. and Mrs. George Gentzel, of Spring Mills, were greatly surprised by their children on Wednesday, November 7th, the anniversary of the fiftieth year of wedded life. Mr. and Mrs. Gentzel were entertained by their niece, Mrs. Steward Decker, of Georges Valley for their dinner and in the afternoon by their niece, Mrs. Wesley Gobble, and during their visit their daughter, Miss Carrie, planned and prepared the anniversary supper at home for them. In the afternoon the sons and families arrived: Ambrose Gentzel and wife, from Shamokin; Roland Gentzel, wife and children, from Altoona; when they prepared further for the surprise. When Mr. and Mrs. Gentzel were brought home all went out to meet them with horns, bells, pans, drums and anything to make a noise, and ushered them into the house and into the dining room where a large table was laden with good things to eat. The guests of honor were placed at the head of the table, and the children and grandchildren took their places with them. By their plates was placed as a gift from the children $50.00 in gold.

All the children and grandchildren enjoyed the family reunion.

The following poem was composed and read by their daughter, Miss Carrie:

DEAR FATHER AND MOTHER.

Two-score years and ten have flown,
Since neath the golden of the skies,
You plighted troth.

Two-score years and ten, Oh! can it be?
Since twain as one you launched upon
Life's sea;

The cycle of centuries half has rolled,
Since 'midst Pennsylvania's hills,
There dawned the morning of your
Smiles and tears,
Along the rugged toll-worn path
That leads through fifty years.

You thought not, nor could dream,
When broke the morning sun,
A century's half ago, of what this future
Day might bring;

Nor fleeting time to pierce the veil,
But trusting destiny to God,
You strove to serve the present age,
'And your calling to fulfill;

To labor for the sustenance of man,
Upon the farm your forefathers
Bought near ninety years ago,

And now, with evening shades around,
With twilight kissing lock of gray,
The mission of your lives spread like a scroll,
You've lived and walked the walks of
men,
Your lives a beacon star,
To guide those lives entrusted to your
care in paths of righteousness,
And now, with those you've nurtured
well,
To bless your twilight days,
So with one accord, children and children's children
Rise and call you blessed.

And though trials and mistakes have come,
The faltering times and fears, your light reflected from the light of the world,
The sun of righteousness,
And shines on undimmed by years.
Ah! Well you've lived and wrought,
Ye builded better than you knew,
No earthly crown of great fame, you'er
shall wear,
But greater riches of faith you hold,
With God to guide and love to lead.
Then in that kingdom not of men,
On your brows the king will place the diadem you've won,
The greatest crown, eternal life,
Within the crown, "Well done."
