RESTORE FIRST CAVALRY.

Scattered Men of Pennsylvania Back Under Old Colonel.

An order from the War Department on Monday saves the First Pennsylvania Cavalry, that recently was scattered to various units at Camp Hancock when the 53rd Depot Brigade was abolished by the department.

The new designation of the cavalry is the 101st United States Cavalry. Under the new order all the old officers will go back to their places, as well as the men, and will be under their old colonel, John P. Wood.

The men had been scattered badly, going to the engineers, artillery and a few to infantry regiments. The order came as a surprise to the men, and they are happy to get back in their old positions.

Officers believe that the new order is caused to some extent by the recent splendid work of Italian cavalry, and now believe that they will go across as cavalrymen, instead of engineers, artillerymen and in other arms of the service.

This is the cavalry of which Troop L, of Bellefonte, is a unit.

"Beyond."

A Poem BY MRS. MABELLE GUTHRIE Dedicated to the Memory of Mrs. Rose DeWoodie

"How beautiful to be with God." To enter the dark shadowy vale— Having no dread of the rider so pale; "How beautiful to be with God." "How beautiful to be with God." To bask in the gleam of His face, The narrow way I gladly tread— With joy I enter my place.

"How beautiful to be with God." To long to kneel at His feet, His love, His mercy to laud, To feel—in Him—life is complete.

"How beautiful to be with God." Beyond life's troubles and cares, His unending joy no sorrow know, No sleepless nights of sighs and tears, But a life immortal unmarked by years.

"How beautiful to be with God." Beyond the chilling waves of Jordan's river, Beyond life's babbling turbulent stream Beyond life's lowering clouds forever.

No aching hearts are there, No cheeks grown pale; No tear-dimmed eyes, No spirits crushed beneath The woes they bear.

"How beautiful to be with God." No sad farewells to loved ones spoken; No dark remorse; no harsh or cruel words; To grieve the broken hearted.

"How beautiful to be with God." No mortal eye hath seen the glories Of that home beyond the river, Its crystal lights, its streams of living water, Its fadeless flowers around the throne forever.

"How beautiful to be with God." To mortal ear hath heard the songs of praise, Within its shining portals; No human heart hath ever dreamed What joys belong to that blood-washed throng immortal!

"How beautiful to be with God." Life's sorrows and trials all past, Hark! Angel voices are sweetly singing, I hear the echo of glad news bringing: See, the strange bright scene expanding! On the Jasper threshold Christ is standing; Oh! 'tis heaven at last— "How beautiful to be with God."

TO FEED PENNSYLVANIA WITH PENNSYLVANIA CROPS

Public Safety Food Department Starts "Home-Growing For Home Consumption" Campaign to Make Counties Self-Supporting in 1918 — Curb Market System Will Provide For Local Distribution.

To feed Pennsylvania with Pennsylvania crops is the purpose of a campaign which has been undertaken by the Food Supply Department of the Pennsylvania Committee of Public Safety. Every agricultural district in the State has been asked to produce, in 1918, enough farm, garden, dairy and meat products, poultry, eggs and orchard fruit to feed itself.

A food survey is now in progress to determine the maximum home-growing capacity of each county. This survey will show which counties are capable of feeding themselves and contributing to the food supply of other neighboring counties. It will also list the counties which are unable to raise sufficient food for home consumption.

By stimulating the home-growing, home-feeding movement, far-reaching conservation of resources will follow. One benefit should be a big saving to communities by the elimination of costs in the handling and shipping of farm produce and in incidental transportation and commissions. With the State curbsystem in full swing next season distribution of all local products will be comparatively easy.

Food chairmen have been given an outline of the Committee's plan which may save millions of dollars to consumers and at the same time make the State self-supporting in many food staples. Instructions to the chairmen make this argument:

"It is imperative that the food production of 1918 follow those definite lines which will enable us to help solve the world's food crisis and win the war. This means a large dependence upon and use of farm and garden produce with a saving of meats and staples. It means that each district must produce those supplies which it can consume, so that the movement of food may not interfere with the movement of troops and supplies and the cost of food may not include unnecessary freight, handling and commission charges.

"The organization of food production in various districts cannot be accomplished by guess work. Every city and town in Pennsylvania is bringing in from a distance in unbelievable quantities, food which should be produced nearby. Home-grown food is frequently being shipped away at the same time that other supplies of food are being imported.

"In order to plan intelligently for the food supply for cities and towns in your district next year, you must have definite information covering the kind and quantity of food you are importing and which you should produce largely, and also of the kinds and quantities which are wasting and because of which you need help to find an outlet.

"The time to get this information is today, while the experience of the past harvest is fresh in your minds, so that the campaign for food production may be started well in advance of the planting season, and organizations for distributing may be prepared in advance of the pressing problems which always accompany the marketing of perishables.

"1918 may be the crucial year of the war. We dare not fail at this time. In years to come also the food problems will be more acute than ever, so that our work at this time must be thorough and permanent."

Land for Returned Soldiers.

A quarter of a million acres of land has been set aside by the government of New South Wales for the benefit of returned soldiers. The lands will be made available for homestead farms, which can be taken up by payment of a nominal deposit. An exemption from paying rent for the first five years can be obtained by settlers effecting improvements to an equivalent value. In addition, arrangements are being made to advance settlers pound for pound on all improvements as they are effected on crown tenures, such as homestead farms. By this means it is expected settlers with but limited means will be enabled successfully to occupy and work the farms.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only Constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.
