RAISINS AND WINE

Important Products of the Famous Malaga District.

Vines Not Trained on Arbors, but Pruned to Form Bushes Covering About One Square

The two principal varieties of grapes grown in the Malaga district are the muscatel and the Pedro Ximen. Raisins and wine are both made here from the muscatel and wine from the Pedro Ximen, observes a correspondent.

The vines are not trained on arbors, but are pruned to form bushes that cover an area of about one square yard at harvest time. The vines are set out in rows ten feet apart. During the spring and summer they are carefully cultivated and sprayed with sulphate of copper to destroy insects. The grapes begin to ripen about the first of August. Laborers with large flat baskets or trays gather the fruit. It is not all cut out at one time, but the field is gone over periodically and only the ripe clusters are cut from the vine with scissors.

The raisins produced near Malaga are not treated with sulphur, lye, or oil, as is the practice in other parts of Spain. In or near the grape field there is thrown up an earth terrace inclined toward the setting sun. This is divided into sections about ten yards long and twelve yards wide, around which a low brick or stone wall is built, to protect the raisins and to support the canvas stretched over them at night or during inclement weather. The object of this slanting surface is to keep the sun constantly shining upon it. The bottoms of the drying beds are covered with fine gravel to retain the heat.

Immediately after being gathered, the grapes are spread out on the beds for exposure to the burning sun. At nightfall the raisins are covered with canvas to protect the fruit from the heavy dew, and, as stated, the canvas is also spread over them in the event of rain. There is rarely any rain in this section during May, June, July, August and September. During the process of drying the grapes that remain green or become spoiled are carefully removed, and the clusters are turned from time to time in order that they may color uniformly. The drying process takes about three weeks, so that the first raisins of the season are ready for packing about the end of August. Heaviest shipments go forward in September. Before packing the raisins are sorted and graded. After small and imperfect raisins have been cut off the clusters are laid in boxes lined with white paper and containing usually 22 or 25 pounds of fruit. Good fruit which has become detached from clusters through shaking and raisins cut from small and irregular clusters are separated from the rejected fruit and are also packed for shipment. The boxes of raisins are then brought to Malaga by the growers for disposal to the shippers and dealers. The prices realized vary considerably according to the quality of the fruit and the quantity of the crop, also according to the concountries where raisins are produced markets.

Costa Rica's Coffee Exports.

Official statistics of Costa Rica's coffee exports for the past season show shipments totaling 27,044,550 pounds gross-10,089,630 pounds less gets dizzy. than during 1915-16. Of Beneficiado or full milled coffee 24,749,135 pounds were exported, and 2,295,415 pounds of the Pergamino (parchment) grade, these quantities being respectively 91.51 per cent and 8.49 per cent of the total. The United States took 53.16 per cent of the shipments, the United In Use for Over 30 Years. Kingdom 40.14 per cent, and Panama the bulk of the remainder. Some coffee was sent to France, Italy, Spain and Chile. The province of San Jose supplied 46.34 per cent of the exports, Heredia 16.32 per cent, Cartago 13.22 per cent, and Alajuela 12.98 per cent. The estimated value of the coffee exported was 8,128,489 colones. (At normal exchange the colon is worth $0.4653; exchange now fluctuating.) The 1917-18 crop is placed at 30,000,-000 pounds, but the season is not far enough advanced to make any definite estimate.
