Don't Expect the Children to Do It All.

Owing no doubt to the good work of those hustling, keen young boys and girls who have so generously given of their time and their pennies to the thrift campaign, the impression has been created in the minds of many that War Savings Stamps are for children only.

Let us stop to consider the matter at a moment.

The Congress authorized an issue of $2,000,000,000 W. S. S. to be sold in 1918. The purpose of the Stamps was twofold: (1) To get money for the Government for war needs; (2) to instill the habit of thrift in the American people and by the practice of thrift save labor and materials for the Government.

Can we expect the children, splendid workers that they are, to account for $2,000,000,000 of stamps.

Do we consider that the children alone of all our population need to be inculcated with the thrift idea? Are they the only spendthrifts?

Certainly not.

War Savings Stamps are for every one. No one, be he a millionaire or be he the humblest laborer, can say truthfully that he is not interested in W. S. S. and the saving program that they stand for.

There are, indeed, few men and women in the land unable to save and economize more than they do now. If they want to be listed among the patriotic people of the land they must save and economize more than they do now. The winning of the war with the least possible sacrifice demands this, for there are not enough labor and material for the Government's war needs and for the use of the spendthrifts.

Out those useless expenditures. All of us have them. Remember that our boys in the Army and Navy do not expect luxuries and do not grumble even if they do not get all the comforts that they are supposed to get.

On or before June 28 show the children that you, too, are enlisted in the War Saving Army.

See that your War Savings Stamps are registered immediately upon being purchased. The stamps can be registered at the Centre Hall post office.

DEATHS.

William A. Catherman, for years the village blacksmith at Linden Hall, passed away at his home last Thursday night, death being due to uremic poisoning. He was a good citizen and had a host of friends who mourn his early demise. His age was forty-nine years, eight months and eleven days. His wife, two sons—Earl and Roy—and one daughter—Mrs. John Gross—survive; also three brothers and two sisters.

Funeral services were held Sunday morning at ten o'clock at his late home, after which the remains were taken to Boalsburg and interment made in the Union cemetery.

Word was received on Monday by Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Camp, of Tyrone, that their son, William K., had died at the Mercy hospital, Centerville, Iowa, of typhoid fever after an illness of ten days. William Camp was born at Centre Hall, about thirty-seven years ago, and went with his parents, while he was a young man, to Tyrone where he attended the public schools and grew up to manhood. He was engaged in the retail candy business in the state of Iowa and was enjoying prosperity when stricken down. Surviving to mourn his death, besides his parents, are two brothers, Harry and Wallace, of Tyrone, and one sister Miss Lulu, also of that place. The body was shipped to the parental home in Tyrone and burial made in the Grand View cemetery.

Local Girls Organize Y. W. C. A.

Centre Hall has a Young Woman's Christian Association Club, which was recently organized, and Miss Lola Ulrich, who has had considerable experience in the work, has been chosen leader. The officers of the club are: Miss Lena Emerick, president; Miss Jennie Thomas, vice president; Miss Hazel Emery, secretary, and Miss Ethel Rowe, treasurer. The club will meet the second and fourth Tuesday evenings of the month at the homes of the members. They expect to get busy on Red Cross work soon.

17,000 More Men to Leave During July.

Approximately 17,000 more Pennsylvania men for the military service will be sent to camps for training during the month of July. Notice was received at Harrisburg this week from Washington for the sending of 8,000 men to Camp Wadsworth on July 5 while on July 22 11,700 men will go to Camp Lee. This is the largest number sent to any one camp since the draft system has been in effect.

ART OF ANCIENT CRETANS

It Was Very Different From That of Early Egyptian Times, Says Writer in Century.

"There could hardly be a stronger contrast than that between the contemporaneous arts of Crete and Egypt, for it is a contrast in fundamental as well as in superficial qualities. Cretan art is not monumental; it is an art of small things—of things so often small in idea as well as in material scale, that genre is the term that best describes them. Again, in its most characteristic phases, Cretan art is not conventionalized, but is singularly untrammeled, naturalistic. And its spirit, its aims, its themes, are not grave and religious, but secular and animated, writes Mrs. Schuyler Van Rensselaer in the Century.

"In Crete there were no great temples, but closely built towns and widely extended, tall palaces of innumerable rooms, passages, and courts. There were no great stone colonnades or sculptured walls. The few stoneworks that remain, with indications that there were many more of wood, are poor and plain in form. Generally the walls were plastered and painted, and often the paintings with human figures were very small in scale. In no material did the Cretans attempt large works of sculpture in the round, nor, despite their naturalistic tendencies, did they practice that art of portraiture wherein Egypt excelled. On the other hand, we marvel at their skill when we look at their small figures and reliefs, sometimes of stone, more often of ivory, metal, or pottery, at their engraved gems, and their inlays, exquisitely wrought with crystal, ivory, colored paste, and the precious metals. We know from Mycenae what the Egean goldsmith could do, and there is proof that he did as well in the mother island at a much earlier time. In decorated pottery the Cretan did much better than the Egyptian, and almost the only things that he seems to have cared to make impressive by reason of their size are his jars of pottery and stone."

PECAN ONLY NUT CULTIVATED

But the Black Walnut Offers Wonderful Opportunities Almost Anywhere in Northern States.

The pecan is about the only indigenous American nut that has been extensively cultivated; although the members of the Northern Nut Growers' association are studying the black walnut, the shagbark hickory, the butternut and the hazelnut with a view to promoting their cultivation. The common black walnut is an especially good example of a valuable tree badly neglected. Throughout the north and middle Atlantic states and well inland it grows with the greatest ease and bears heavy crops of nuts. The tree itself is also of the greatest value and of fairly rapid growth for a hardwood. An orchard of black walnut seedlings would begin to bear nuts in 10 or 12 years, and in time would become a very valuable bit of timber. There are few better trees to plant; yet they seldom are planted.

New and Useful Metal.

In locating bits of metal, French surgeons use an electro-vibrator, but this sets up oscillations in ordinary surgical instruments as well as in the fragment sought, and non-metallic instruments have been found necessary. Bergon and Guillaume report that iron-nickel alloys as a material offer difficulties of manufacture. A more suitable metal has been found in so-called "baros," which has been used for weights of precision, and is 90 percent nickel, the remainder consisting of chromium, manganese, and a little copper. It works like mild steel, is practically unoxidizable, and is not affected by magnetic vibrations.

Asked and Answered.

"Give woman the credit she deserves," howled the suffragette speaker, "and where would man be?"
"If she was to get all the credit she deserves," answered the man in the gallery, who was evidently married, "he would be in the poorhouse."

Woman, Lovely Woman.

Him—Mrs. Powderly has a lovely complexion, hasn't she?
Her—Yes, indeed! She ought to be grateful to her husband.
Him—Why so?
Her—He buys her everything she wants.

Extremist.

"Mrs. X is a great stickler for form and ceremony, I understand."
"Mercy, yes! Why, that woman would insist upon dressing up to entertain an idea."
