INDIANS USE A GRABHOOK

Have Unique Outfit Which They Use in Fishing for Salmon—Poles Are Twenty Feet Long.

The Indians fish for salmon with a "grab-hook," a large iron hook fastened to a pole by a loose cord three or four feet long. A hole at the blunt end of the hook that slips over the tip of the pole keeps it in place until the fish is hooked. Then the hook is pulled off the pole and the cord gives the fisherman a chance to play his fish if necessary before dragging it ashore, says the Southern Workman.

The hooks are made by the blacksmith, but the poles, about 20 feet in length, the Indians make themselves of red fir. Taking a rough piece of dry wood of the required length, they patiently work at it with drawshave and knife until it is the right size and tapering to suit the workman. Then it is usually hardened in the coals before putting on the cord, which they braid themselves. If a pole breaks, as often happens, the broken parts are lashed together with string, pitch is smeared over and melted by being rubbed with a hot stone, which makes the pole as strong as before. The Indians generally fish from the bank or from platforms built over the water. They thrust the long pole out across the river as far as they can and let the current carry it down and into the bank, trusting to chance and a quick jerk to hook the fish if they feel one in the water.

DRUG STORES USE MANY EGGS

Furnish Medium Through Which Poultryman Can Dispose of Produce and Obtain Valuable Advertising.

"The farmer is missing a market for his eggs by overlooking the drug store," says the Farm and Fireside.

"The drug store represents a splendid chance to work up a direct to the consumer trade. One New England poultryman started supplying the leading drug store in a city of 20,000. His farm, carrying several hundred layers, was in an adjoining town on a car line. He produced infertile eggs.

Through the publicity the drug store gave him, opportunities by the score came to him to sell direct. Now a large portion of his production the year round is sold at retail prices. Numerous customers come to his farm to buy eggs for invalids.

"In the spring he does a large business in eggs by the case for water-glassing, obtaining for his infertile eggs a premium of 3 to 5 cents a dozen. Institutions are good customers. He caters to this trade, believing there is going to be a tremendous increase in the use of water-glass.

"A drug store is one of the best customers a poultry keeper can have," declared this man. "Besides yielding an additional profit, this trade makes a reputation for you quicker than a large amount of self-inspired paid advertising."

WEEKLY WAR NEWS DIGEST.

Workers have been so much aroused by the conditions revealed that they request information regarding follow-up work. Many of the families are described as being pitifully poor. One mother had a new baby wasting away for want of milk. The mother was told to drink one quart of milk a day herself and to give one quart a day to each of her six children. Milk is 16 cents a quart, and the family income $15 a week. The women writing to the Children's Bureau said they did not know how to solve the problem.

The Children's Bureau has been compelled to reply to such reports that Federal appropriations are available only for the families of men actually in the military or naval service.

FIRMS ARE PENALIZED FOR VIOLATIONS OF FOOD SAVING RULES

Scores of firms throughout the United States have been penalized for violation of rules of the Food Administration. In some cases licenses to operate have been suspended; in others, contribution to the Y. M. C. A., Red Cross, and other organizations have been accepted in lieu of suspension of license.

Among the more numerous violations are sales of flour without substitutes; refusal to accept delivery of foodstuffs previously ordered; operating without licenses; excess sales of sugar; carrying more than a normal 30 days' supply of sugar; failure to use the proper amount of flour substitutes in bread making; and profiteering.

Incomplete returns from 25 States show that nearly 3,400,000 women have registered for war work under the Woman's Committee of the Council of National Defense.

The 12-cylinder Liberty motor, according to a statement by the War Department, weighs 825 pounds and develops 450 horsepower, or a weight of 1.8 pounds per horsepower. The gasoline consumption is approximately 0.46 pounds per horsepower hour.

There is no discrimination of any kind between soldiers who are not citizens of the United States and the native born or naturalized citizens in the American Army, excepting that the former can not hold commissions. In all other respects—care, attention, privileges, etc.—they are all on the same footing.

The Food Administration is making a careful survey of the national ice situation in order that it may be prepared to meet any sudden shortages in particular communities. The destruction of ice plants by fire, breakdown of machinery, or the exigency of the weather may at any time cause a serious shortage.

Next to the aggregate number of subscribers, perhaps the most striking feature of the third Liberty loan was the support given it by the farming and rural populations of the country, according to a statement by the Treasury Department. Not only did the farmers purchase liberally of the bonds but the rural communities as a rule were more prompt in completing their quotas of the loan than the larger cities. More than 20,000 communities in the United States subscribed or oversubscribed their quotas, many of them on the first day of the campaign. The majority of these were not cities, but country districts.

Buy for Victory

IF you buy intelligently it naturally follows that you save, and saving is going to help win this war.

However, intelligent buying doesn't mean getting a cheap article because of the low price. On the other hand it doesn't mean buying the highest priced article you can find.

It means striking a happy medium; paying just enough to get real quality.

That's what you do when you buy clothes of us. They're made of the best all-wool fabrics by Hart Schaffner and Marx; they're priced right and they're real quality.

You get the long wear and style that go with real quality and consequently you buy less. That's how you save.
