LIKE PIRATE DAYS OF OLD

Men Who Were Shanghaled From Norfolk, Va., Seek Satisfaction From Authorities.

The days of the oyster pirates and old wind jammers were recalled when Walter McGirth, son of a North Carolina farmer, and Ebert Cocran, son of a former Pittsburg banker, told how they had been changhaled at the point of a pistol and forced to work their way as seamen to Hamburg when they thought that they were going to ship of Pitteburg, are visiting Mr. Stuart's to Boston, says the Philadelphia Times: The immigration authorities are hand-Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Houtz, of ling the case and a deputy United Centre Furnace, spent Sunday at the States marshal, accompanied by the two men, is on the way to Norfolk to arrest the agent who shipped them. The two young men met last November in Norfolk, Va. Both were out of employment and sought work about the docks. They were met, according to their story, by an alleged crew shipping agent, who offered to book them on the steamer Dortmund of the Hamburg-American line, which was lying at the docks. The young men were told that the ship was bound for Boston. They accompanied the agent to an office. They say that they met a Swede on the way and he consented to go along. The three were asked to sign shipping papers, but the Swede refused to sign until he had read them. This angered the agent, who is alleged to have drawn a revolver and knocked the Swede unconscious

The young men say that they were given about $3 worth of clothing and put aboard the ship. Then they earned that they were bound for Hamburg instead of Boston, but were forced to work. When the steamer eached the other side of the Atlantic the young men went to Consul General Skinner at Hamburg and lodged their complaint. Mr. Skinner sent them back to this country to make their complaint to the immigration authorities.

SUICIDES, MALE AND FEMALE

Three German Men to One Woman Kill Themselves, According to Prussian Statistics.

If Prussian statistics give any idea of the relative proportion, then women nust be much fonder of life than men, or more than three men commit suiide for every woman who takes her wn life.

According to the Berlin correspondnt of the Lancet, the number of suiides in Prussia showed a slight derease during the year 1911, when 21 cases were registered for each 100,000 of the population, as compared with 22 in 1910. The actual number of persons who took their own lives was 8, 422, of whom 6,394 were men and 2,028 were women

The relatively highest proportion of suicides—namely, 35 for each 100,000 -occurred in the province of Bran-

The tendency to commit suicide increases with the age, the proportion per 100,000 at various age periods beng as follows: Between fifteen and twenty-five years, 26; betweeen thirty and forty years, 23; between sixty and seventy years, 52; between seventf and eighty years, 61, and over eighty years, 63. About 25 per cent, of suicides are said to be caused by insanity. In 879 cases bodily suffering, in 609 cases alcoholic excess, in 942 cases sorrow and in 604 cases remorse were the causes assigned. In 1.786 cases the cause was absolutely unknown.

The smallest number of suicides happened on Fridays and Sundays, and the highest number on Mondays and Tuesdays.

Initial Bluff.

"I didn't know you had so many initials," said one man to another who had been lucky enough to secure an interview with the capitalists. "I nearly dropped over when you told the boy that J. K. H. Allen wished to see the boss. What do they all stand for?" "Nothing," said the man of many initials. "J. for John is the only one I have any right to. The rest are added just for effect. It was on their strength that I got in to see you.

Advancement in Argentina. Argentina is about to put through a number of large engineering schemes. The municipality of Bahia Blanca is asking for estimates for a drainage scheme to cost $1,500,000. A new water supply and sewerage scheme is to be undertaken in the capital, which will cost over $20,000,000. An important electric light and power plant Mr. and Mrs. M. E. IS COLDEST INHABITED TOWN

Verkhoyansk, Siberia, Has a Maximum Winter Temperature 85 Degrees Below Zero.

Verkhoyansk, a good-sized city in northeastern Siberia, boasts the distinction of being the coldest inhabited city on the globe. It is in north altitude 67 degrees on the arctic plane, and scarcely more than 150 feet above the sea level. Its annual temperature is three above zero, and in winter the maximum is 85 below zero. The Russian government owns the town, and it interested in having an administrative center where clever and industrious Yokuts, fur-trading Jews of Siberia, carry on their operations. All the inhabitants of Verkhoyansk, with the exception of a few officials and Russian traders, are Yokuts.

The Yokuts are such ambitious and aggressive people that they do not seem to mind the fact that the rivers freeze to the bottom and that small trees have been known to snap and split from the biting force of the cold.

Still many Russians even seem to prefer it to warmer posts. Its atmoshere is always clear and the air still, and there are no blizzards or snowstorms. Then the Siberian dress adds considerably to the enjoyment of the arctic city. It consists of two suits of fur, an outer and an inner, and a huge hood to pull over the face so that there is just enough space to see and breathe through.

The summer is hotter than might be reasonably expected the average temperature being 59 above zero in July. The earth is green and vegetation thrives, but the surface of the ground is scarcely thawed.

ANIMAL AND FLOWER RESERVE

Kangaroo Island for a Preservation of Australian Species of Wild Life.

Kangaroo island, which is situated some six hours' steaming from Adelaide, the capital of South Australia, is regarded as an ideal place in which to preserve permanently animal and botanical species distinctive of the Australian contient. At present 175 square miles on the island are utilized as a fauna and flora reserve and it is now suggested that the area should be considerably increased. Certain islands in various lakes have been set apart as bird sanctuaries, close seasons for different kinds of birds are proclaimed and in various other ways efforts are made to prevent the destruction of the native fauna and flora. Recently the attention of the South Australian commission of crown lands was drawn to the desirableness of protecting the opossum, which he had ascertained is now being destroyed in large numbers for the sake of its skin, for which there is a great market. To prevent the wholesale destruc tion of the marsupial and also to give power to the state government to protect other native animals from time to time as occasion may require, the commission has directed that a bill shall be prepared for introduction into parliament at an early date to provide for the protection of wild animals .- London Standard.

When Rothschild Died.

The general and widespread evidences of sorrow occasioned by the death of Mr. Morgan are everywhere apparent. They find some form of expression not only among the eminent and the wealthy, but to some extent among the poor and the lowly as well. It is always so. The taking-off of distinguished people who have creditably served their day and generation affects us all, more or less, in one way or another. When Baron Nathan de Rothschild, the head of the great banking house of that name, died in Vienna there was mourning everywhere. On the day of the funeral a great man happened to meet a litde, ragged urchin in the street whose eyes were filled with tears.

"Why are you sad, little boy?" asked the great man. "Oh, sir, it is because Rothschild is dead," answered the boy. "But he was not a relative of yours," added the great man. "Ah, no! Therefore I weep," said the boy.

When Mr. Bryan was on the ocean trip which resulted in his boat going ashore near Cuba, he made the acquaintance of an English scientist who told him some fascinating stories about the difficulties of discovering unknown islands in the sea. The scientist mentioned one island which was always reported in a different place, and his theory was that the island did not move, but that it had some peculiar magnetic quality which affected the ship's instruments and resulted in erroneous records.

"It's astonishing," the learned man remarked, "that an island as large as that can be utterly lost in seas as much traversed as those." "How large is it?" asked Mr.

Bryan. "About two miles across," "Well, I don't call that so remarkable," Bryan said, with a slight smile. The fact is, I myself have lost areas a great deal larger than that."-Pop-
