"My kidneys were so weak that the least cold I caught would affect them and start my back aching until I could hardly endure the misery," says Mrs. D. C. Ross, 723 Fulton St., Brooklyn, N. Y. "In the morning when I first got up, my back was so lame, I could hardly bend over and any move sent darts of pain through my kidneys. It was hard for me to walk up stairs or stoop, and to move while lying down sent darts of pain through me."

MRS. ROSS

"The kidney secretions were scanty and distressing and the water remained in my system, making my feet and hands swell. There were dark circles under my eyes and I became so dizzy I could hardly see. I had rheumatic pains in my knees and it was all I could do to get around. For years I was in that shape and I wore plasters and used all kinds of medicine to no avail until I tried Doan's Kidney Pills. They rid me of the trouble and strengthened my back and kidneys. When I have taken Doan's since, they have always benefited me."

PEANUTS VALUABLE AS FEED FOR LIVE STOCK IN MOST SECTIONS OF THE SOUTH

FIELD OF PEANUTS GROWN FOR FORAGE IN TEXAS.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The peanut is one of the more important crops grown in the South for feeding to hogs, thousands of acres being grown for that purpose. Few, if any, crops will produce more pounds of pork on an acre of land or produce it at a lower cost per pound. A good crop of peanuts will produce at least 400 pounds of pork per acre, and if the hay is harvested before turning the hogs into the patch it will practically pay the cost of growing. In addition to the profit on the pork, the crop-producing capacity of the soil will be materially increased, due to the addition of humus and nitrogen. This is very important, as much of the land in the peanut growing sections is deficient in both. By making successive plantings of peanuts at intervals of 15 to 30 days it is possible in most sections of the South to have peanuts available for the hogs from midsummer until the end of November. In pasturing hogs on peanuts it is best to confine them to small areas by using portable fences, rather than to let them have the run of the whole field.

Plant Between Corn Rows.

In some sections of the Southern states the peanut is planted between the rows of corn, either at the time the corn is planted or at the last cultivation. After the corn is harvested the cattle are turned in to eat the fodder and peanut tops. Hogs are then turned in to eat the peanuts. In this way the stubble and roots of the peanuts supply humus, and most of the nitrogen is left in the soil.

Shells for Feed.

Peanut shells, which accumulate in large quantities at cleaning and shelling factories, are sometimes ground with low-grade peanuts and sold for feed. The shells, however, have practically no feeding value, as they consist largely of crude fiber.

All peanut feeds should be sold on the basis of their protein, fat, and carbohydrate content rather than on the ton basis. For example, 750 pounds of meal made from shelled peanuts has practically the same feeding value as 1,250 pounds of meal made from unshelled nuts. These amounts represent the meal left as a by-product from peanut oil manufactured from a ton of farmers' stock Spanish peanuts. Dealers selling peanut meal should show on the label whether it is made from shelled or unshelled nuts; in fact, this is required by law in some states.

LOOK FOR INSECT TROUBLES INCREASE NUMBER OF SILOS

Inspect Crops Often and Report Outbreaks of Pests With Which You Are Not Familiar.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Watch the grain crops carefully for the earliest indications of insect outbreaks. Make a daily survey of the fields during the most active growing season, if possible.

If an outbreak of any insect foe is discovered, apply remedies promptly. If in doubt as to the identity of the pest, promptly send a specimen, enclosed in a tight tin box, to your county agricultural agent, state experiment station, or nearest federal entomological field station, accompanied by a request for information regarding it.

Keep on hand at least a small supply of the standard insecticide preparations, such as paris green, lime, and arsenate of lead. Very often the delay caused by the fact that these preparations are not immediately available is fatal to the crop attacked.

Report serious outbreaks of insects to one of the authorities mentioned above. Federal entomological field stations charged with the investigation of cereal and forage insects are located at the following places:

- Arizona—Tempe
- California—Martinez
- Indiana—West La Fayette
- Iowa—Sioux City
- Kansas—Wilmington
- Maryland—Hagersville
- Missouri—Charleston
- Ohio—Wakeman
- Oregon—Forest Grove
- Pennsylvania—Carrington
- South Carolina—Columbia

Catarrhal Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Catarrhal Deafness, and that is by a constitutional remedy. HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE acts through the Blood on the Mucous Surfaces of the System. Catarrhal Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing may be destroyed forever. Many cases of Deafness are caused by Catarrh, which is an inflamed condition of the Mucous Surfaces.

ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS for any case of Catarrhal Deafness that cannot be cured by HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE.

"I understand your hired man has been drafted."

"Yes," replied Farmer Cobbins. "But I'm just a bit dubious about the kind of soldier he's going to make."

"He's not cowardly, I hope?"

"It ain't that. I was thinkin' that if he doesn't show any more 'get up an' get' in handlin' a bayonet than he does when he's got a pitchfork in his hands, he'll never make a German soldier yid, 'Kamerad'!"

Soft, Clear Skins.

"Yes; I killed three, one with my bayonet, which broke; one with the butt of my rifle and one with this trench knife."

"Did they kill any of your men in the close in-fight?"

"No, they can't fight unless they're all together and have machine guns and grenades."—A Serbian Sergeant to Don Martin.
