No Building in Centre County is Permissible Now Without a Permit.

There appears to be a misunderstanding in regard to building operation under the new order of the United States government. It will be necessary hereafter to receive the approval of the Building Director of the Pennsylvania Council of National Defense for every new operation, and it will be necessary to receive the approval of the Building Director for all repairs costing more than $2500.

Heretofore it appeared to be understood that new operations costing less than $2500, might be undertaken without the approval of the Building Director. This is not the case, since there must be approval for every new operation.

The procedure to be followed by all persons, firms or corporations desiring to engage in building construction or repair work hereafter, will be as follows: They must apply, with a full statement of the facts, under oath, to the local Director of the State Council of Defense, E. J. Gehret, who will investigate the necessity of the proposed construction and make a recommendation with a summary of the facts, to State Director Coleman. If Mr. Coleman decides in favor of the construction his recommendation, with a full statement of the facts will be sent to the non-War Construction Section, Priorities Division, of the War Industries Board, which will then take appropriate action in the matter of a permit. In no case will a permit be granted by the War Industries Board without application having first been made to the Pennsylvania Council of National Defense through

E. J. GEHRET,
Director for Centre County.

Girls in the Munition Factory.

It takes grit to work in the munition factories in France. A Y. W. C. A. Secretary has just sent in a letter written from a typical "Compound". She tells of the conditions under which girls work over guns and heavy engines of warfare "Over There" near the firing line. "B—is a mile from the end of the tramway. It is a desolate, bleak, dreary spot filled with munition workers most of whom are refugees. B—is a place where there are no trees, no streams and no green grass. It seems to be just a place spotted out on the surface of the earth for hard work. When the sun shines there is nothing to break the glare of its rays and when it rains the mud is ankle deep.

The girls who work here have come direct from the devastated fields and villages which were once their homes. What little clothing they have saved is brought with them in paper boxes. They live 20 in a room with curtains as the only partitions. Their work demands long hours and they are lonely and homesick in a strange place. With them always is that whirl of great shells and the turning off of the intricate parts of torpedoes. There is always the memory of what these girls have lost—seen—their home laid waste, by the Germans.

Above all things these girls crave sympathy. They are homesick and miserable and lonely. It is a difficult situation particularly in a country where there are many Arabs, Chinese, and other nationalities and it is just as this point where the Blue Triangle Huts have been welcomed by these tired little French Girls. They have welcomed the Blue Triangle and all it stands for with pathetic eagerness.

The cheering and homelike comfort of the Y. W. C. A. foyers has been the only bit of home life many of them have seen for a year or more. After hours in the factories they crowd in the foyers and pack themselves around the reading and writing tables or mess around with the wash tubs and iron to their hearts content, or play automatic piano.

Reports from France show there is a tremendous need for recreation of all kinds for these girls. It has been impossible to house the girls from the first in any sort of comfortable way. An example of crowded living conditions has just been explained in one letter which tells of an old factory which had been used in the emergency as a shelter for the girls. It was necessary for fifty-two beds to be crowded close together in groups of eight with only curtains of muslin as a partition between the groups. The wash room accommodations included a sort of trough of zinc and a number of faucets, this trough has to be used by all the girls whenever they wanted to wash their clothing.

All that the Y. W. C. A. can do for the girls who have to face these conditions as their bit toward winning the war is being done. Whatever hardships men in the trenches face these girls are quite brazen enough to face. Personal discomfort they know as a soldier knows it. The girl who makes the shell must sacrifice herself just as surely as the man who fires the shell. France knows that these girls are every bit as good soldiers as the man holding her first line trenches. They are honored as she honors her gallant men.

Deferred Classification is Asked for Teachers.

The state board of education has asked the military authorities to have male teachers given deferred classifications under the draft because of what is termed "the serious education situation arising in the state through the drafting of teachers and school executives into war service". It is claimed they are not only needed now because of the shortage of teachers, but will be required to help better conditions arising after the war.

The board is also preparing bills to be presented to the next legislature calling for a $20,000,000 minimum appropriation for the common schools and the arrangements to permit a twenty-five per cent. increase in the salaries of teachers as well as allowances for the teachers' retirement fund and for schools consolidated.

Agricultural School To Continue at State College.

Although the War Department's educational committee ignored agricultural subjects in its prescribed curriculum for colleges having the student's army training corps, it is expected by the Pennsylvania State College authorities that a supplementary order will be issued providing for such instruction. Dr. Edwin E. Sparks, the college president, said an adjustment would be made so that only practical farming courses will be taught.

Virtually all of the 1100 freshmen that were admitted to the State College last week are planning to study engineering or chemistry, consequently it has been rumored that the agricultural school would not reopen. Since it has been announced that a further Government order will permit of restricted education in agriculture, the State College school contemplates a busy fall term.

Most of the other college courses will be carried on as usual for those students who do not volunteer for enlistment in the training corps, or who may be disqualified because of physical defects.

The Central Railroad Passes Out.

Saturday, at midnight, marked the death of the Central Railroad of Pennsylvania, operating between Mill Hall and Bellefonte. It had never been a paying venture and when its discontinuance was first discussed an effort was made to check it, but the necessary funds were not forthcoming. The loss of the railroad will work a hardship on the farmers who used the road for making and receiving shipments.

Thanks, Friends!

The way many of the Reporter subscribers responded to our request to pay up arrears, last week, in order that we might make a creditable showing in our report to the U. S. government on November 1st, was most gratifying to the publishers. Our sincere thanks go out to all who responded so quickly, and those who have not taken any action in the matter, we would again urge to make their remittance some time this month. Please do not delay it beyond the month of October.

Liberty is sweeter than dollars. Attention, fix Bonds! Charge! You can hoard Liberty Bonds. His father urges you to buy. You can't afford not to buy!

MAKING DOLLARS INTO MUNITIONS

By T. J. Mulvey.

That's your individual role in this war—to make your dollar into war munitions. Every Liberty Bond you buy means more munitions, and more munitions mean more effectiveness for our men.

And those munitions—how they are needed! Hundreds of thousands, yes, millions of shell shot into the entrenchments and against the massed hordes of the Hun in even a brief offensive! How can we turn them out fast enough unless we make our dollars do the work!

Pile up the dollars, then! Lend them by the hundreds, by the thousands, for Liberty Bonds! The faster, the more generously we turn our dollars into munitions, the sooner we shall end the war, wipe out the blot of Prussian despotism, and bring triumphant our boys back home!

Bridge the ocean with BONDS. Poorer than YOU have bought! They need MORE grenades. The Hun's butcher wounded! Show that you're back of them!

HE IS DRIVING THEM BACK

Cantigny, Chateau Thierry, Soissons, Voormezele—these and scores of other names will live forever as monuments to American initiative and bravery! The vaunted Teuton will be like chaff before the wind when Pershing and his boys have struck their full stride! The Hun's derided "lightning-trained Yankee army"—yet our lightning is striking them blind with astonishment, rage, despair!

He is driving them back—and back they shall go to Berlin! Pile up the support, pile up the bullets, fill the cartridge belts, fill the sky with airplanes, and the fields with tanks, to show our boys that you, too, are THERE with the American punch! Buy ENOUGH Bonds to earn yourself a share in the Victory they are going to win.

Buy Bonds on Installments and buy them with cash. No man has done enough who has not done his very MOST!
