

A STATEMENT FROM PRESIDENT WILSON.

"My fellow-countrymen: The Congressional elections are at hand. They occur in the most critical period our country has ever faced, or is likely to face in our time. If you have approved of my leadership and wish me to continue to be your unembarrassed spokesman in affairs at home and abroad, I earnestly beg that you will express yourselves unmistakably to that effect by returning a Democratic majority to both the Senate and House of Representatives.

"I am your servant and will accept your judgement without cavil, but my power to administer the great trust assigned me by the constitution, would be seriously impaired should your judgement be adverse, and I must frankly tell you so, because so many critical issues depend upon your verdict. No scruple of taste must, in grim times like these, be allowed to stand in the way of speaking the plain truth.

"I have no thought of suggesting that any political party is paramount to matters of patriotism. I feel too deeply the sacrifices which have been made in this war by all our citizens, irrespective of party affiliations, to harbor such an idea. I mean only that the difficulties and delicacies of our present task are of a sort that makes it imperatively necessary that the nation should give its undivided support to the Government under an unified leadership, and that a Republican Congress would divide the leadership.

"The leaders of the minority in the present Congress have unquestionably been pro-war, but they have been anti-administration. At almost every turn since we entered the war, they have sought to take the choice of policy, and the conduct of the war, out of my hands and put it under the control of instrumentalities of their own choosing.

"This is no time, either for divided council, or for divided leadership. Unity of command is as necessary now in civil action, as it is upon the field of battle. If the control of the House and the Senate should be taken away from the party now in power, an opposing majority could assume control of legislation and oblige all action to be taken amidst contest and obstruction.

"The return of a Republican majority to either house of Congress, would moreover be interpretative, on the other side of the water, as a repudiation of my leadership. Spokesmen of the Republican party are urging you to elect a Republican Congress in order to back up and support the President but even if they should, in this, impose upon some credulous voters on this side of the water, they would impose on no one on the other side. It is as well understood, there as here, that the Republican leaders desire not so much to support the President as to control him.

"The people of the Allied countries with whom we are associated against Germany are quite familiar with the significance of election. They would find it very difficult to believe that the voters of the United States had chosen to support their President by electing to the Congress a majority controlled by those who are not in fact, in sympathy with the attitude and action of the administration.

"I need not tell you, my fellow-countrymen, that I am asking your support not for my own sake or for the sake of a political party, but for the sake of the nation itself in order that its inward unity of purpose may be evident to all the world. In ordinary times I would not feel at liberty to make such an appeal to you. In ordinary times divided councils can be endured without permanent hurt to the country. But these are not ordinary times.

"If in these critical days it is your wish to sustain me with undivided minds, I beg that you will say so in a way which it will not be possible to misunderstand, either here at home or among our associates on the other side of the sea. I submit my difficulties and my hopes to you."

LOCAL AND PERSONAL.

Dr. H. H. Longwell is inoculating many persons to ward off the flu.

Cleveland D. Mitterling took ten head of young cattle to Milroy, on Tuesday.

Millheim now has electric light, the current having been turned on this week.

Death of Mrs. Welsh.

Mrs. Nancy Jane Welsh, mother of Mrs. J. H. Lohr, of Rutledge, formerly a resident of this town, died of valvular heart disease at the home of her daughter, on Friday, October 18th, after an illness of two weeks. Funeral services were held at Rutledge on Thursday evening, and at Centre Hall, at the home of her niece, Mrs. Lucy Henney, on Saturday morning at ten o'clock. Rev. Williams in charge. Interment was made at Centre Hall.

The pastor of the deceased, being unable to conduct the services himself, sent the following article which he requested to be read:

"During my illness I lay in the evening watching through the window a brilliant sunset. We had just heard of the death of Grandmother Welsh. The sun had gone below the rim of the landscape and high in the skies were mountains of flaky clouds. They were being painted in varied rosy tints by the sun rays. The color was not so solid as to prevent seeing as through a gauze the blue of the vaulted sky beyond. But I said, 'clouds are needed for the perfect sunset. The glory of the sunlight shines brightest against clouds'."

Quickly the life and character of our saintly and just sister came to mind, thought of all anew in relation to this entrancing sunset scene. We found it rather difficult to consider sobs or tears as we thought of the parting hours and years of her life—day lighted up by the glory of the presence of her Lord. Clouds there were for long and weary years but they were the background for the blaze of the Christ-light. He was the light of her world. She did comprehend the light which shone in her darkness of trials and pain. The light is better understood by some in the world than by the world. It is the triumph and indication of His and our gospel.

Since her going we have written to a distant friend. We were telling of the prevailing gloom and tragical incident to this dread epidemic. In contrast we told of Grandmother's Christian victory. The words told of her remarkable "self". Then we wrote, "there are bits of God about us now and again. There are not many to a town but every place has a few unsung, little advertised (by self or by others), modest, noble, near-perfect souls who hear God, know God and in much measure express God."

God is most expressed in the unselfishness of human service. Peaceful and happy is the life which is in this wise a channel of God-life, a conveyor of His likeness. All this is truthfully said of Grandmother Welsh. The wealth and welfare of others became her unceasing delight. This habit began and reigned in her home but did not remain there. We all know her as the centre of sunshine. That was the most she had to give but it was infinitely more than gold. You do not give yourself until you are happy. She had the motive to give herself to all she knew, barring none. What a victory.

She has won her inheritance. It is more than a prize. It is a life. Life hidden in God, completes perfect, eternal. Call her back? Rather listen to her call, the call of her Redeemer and Deliverer and Joy. Honor her? We shall endeavor, with the spirit's aid, to honor her by walking so close to Christ as she succeeded and delighted in doing.

The Wilson administration enacted more legislation preventative of panics than all the Republican administrations since the beginning of the war. Panics! Panics! A relic of the great Republican national machine. Vote for Tobias, who will support Wilson, whose financial policies have never been questioned by men of brains in the Republican party.

An army Y. M. C. A. hut soon will be built on the Pennsylvania State College campus as an addition to the military barracks and mess halls that already have been provided. The national council of the Y. M. C. A. has authorized funds for the hut and has contributed toward its maintenance. A secretary has been appointed to conduct the hut, and he is using the college Y. M. C. A. rooms until the new quarters are ready.
