A Bad Excuse.

In the good old days of long ago a king said to his jester: "Fool, give me an illustration of the truth of the old adage, "A bad excuse is worse than no excuse,' and be quick about it."

The jester at once placed his arms round the king and kissed him most affectionately.

The king waxed exceedingly wrath. "How dare you take such liberty, you insolent varlet!" he exclaimed.

"I beg your majesty's pardon," replied the jester. "I thought it was the queen."-London Chronicle.

RURAL RAT CLUB

Appeal to Civic Pride Will Often Bring Excellent Results in Cleaning Up Premises-Leader

Is of Importance.

(Prepared by the United States Depart-ment of Agriculture.) In any rural community badly infested with rats, it is a good plan for farmers to form rat clubs and offer prizes for destroying the rodents. The younger members of the community as tures of the work has been to dewell as adults should be allowed to compete and the prizes should be awarded periodically, as once a month. A first, second, and third prize are suggested for those who bring in the greatest number of rat talls. Specific rules governing the contests should be made at the start, and instruction as to the proper methods of trapping or otherwise killing rats should be a part of the program for each meeting of the club. Prizes may be provided by private donation or even by assessment of members. The plan gives better satisfaction than a system of straight rewards, because it arouses more enthusiasm and costs less. A rat and sparrow club in England in three seasons secured the destruction of 16,000 rats and 28,000 sparrows by an expenditure of less than $30 in prize money. Had ordinary bounties been paid, the same work would have cost $1,000 or $1,200. Co-operation Needed.

In the matter of rat infestation, small towns are intermediate between farm and city. They show a marked increase of rodents in winter and a decrease when spring opens. Yet the outlying parts of a village are peculiarly subject to losses of poultry during the summer. Pigeon lofts, also, in small towns are subject to raids by from 1908 to 1916, inclusive. Earlirats, and the toll of eggs and young squabs is often heavy. to destroy the rodents will usually be more readily obtained. Often the small town has a civic club which could take up rat work whenever its importance is presented. It requires only an intelligent and persistent leader to set the machinery for rat repression in motion. The leader should provide for the instruction of the community as to the best methods of trapping, sanitation, rat-proofing buildings, and other measures needed to discourage the rodent. An appeal to civic pride will often bring excellent results in cleaning up premises and in replacing wooden walks or porches, dilapidated buildings, or other harbors for rats.
