THIRTY-FOUR YEARS AGO.

Paragraphs of News Taken from the Files of the Reporter of 1884.

April 9, 1884. There is an opening for a select school Hosterman, former teacher, we understand is likely to take charge of a school at Penn Hall.

Messrs. John Rishel, Harry Kreamer, and John Snyder are new additions to Centre Hall's population.

Winter.

Joseph Kalbfus, secretary of the State Game Commission, in a circular to sportsmen, makes an appeal for the feeding of the wild turkeys, pheasants and quail during the winter months when the natural food supply is cut off by reason of the snow and ice. If local sportsmen are really interested in game perpetuation, they will take some action sible, now that peace is assured, to cancel many requirements for reports and many of the details of the regulations, but the profit margins and would see Napoleon losing the battle of rules have been for the most part retained and will be enforced by re- Franklin and all the other signers of vocation of licenses and other appropriate penalties. It is expected that ing that they would be hanged rathit will be possible, from time to time, er than endure British oppression any to remove certain commodities from the license list, but this will be limited to commodities which do not seem likely to be subject to possibility of speculation and profiteering:

"Mr, Hoover has cabled that the world's food situation is still critical and can only be solved, up to the next harvest, through the continued support of the American people and the burden will become more specific as soon as the problems of organization and transportation can be solved. "Mr. Hoover, therefore," continued Mr. Heinz, "instructs us to continue our activities in response to the demand of the world's need, and for this reason the Food Administration in Pennsylvania will be continued actual' signing of peace, ununtil tho less abandoned by order of the President before that time."

ROOM FOR MORE DEMOCRACY

Writer of Opinion That Parents Govern Too Much by Mandate or by Exhortation.

The typical parent is not democratic in the treatment of his children., He likes to govern by mandate or exhortation. He dogmatically asserts arises, and insists that he knows more than his children, and he has no respect for their "notions," One can listen to a parent telling his thirteenyear-old boy what kind of a cap he must wear and how and when he must wear it, though the boy says "the boys will snicker" at him, and he does not want to be "the goat" of the crowd. But the parent will listen to no argument; he says he knows better than the boy what the latter ought to do, and he does not care what the boys

Much of the conflict between parents and children is due-to the fact that the former do not recognize the right of the latter to express opinever. One can hear such a parent your opinions are wanted, I will ask

A parent who is a bully never can get an insight into his children's parent .-- M. V. O'Shea in The Mother's Just Suppose Those Things.

Light travels at the rate of 186,000 miles per second. As everyone knows, we are now looking at some stars with lights that left them centuries ago.

Suppose that you could be shot into space at a velocity greater than that of light. And suppose that you were that you could see everything that happened on this earth. A time would come when history would unfold itself before your astonished eyes. You Waterloo; you would see Benjamin the Declaration of Independence vowlonger; you would see the surrender at Yorktown, the battle of New Orleans and the naval fight off Santiago; you would see the death of Julius Caesar. and then Mark Antony making love to Cleopatra on the Nile. If you like, you could juggle yourself back and forth so that you could see the same event over and over again and make a special study of it .- Popular Science Monthly.

State College Graduate Invents Valuable Ordnance.

In recognition of the achievements as an inventor of valuable ordnance equipment for the army, Lieutenant Colonel Wallace L. Clay, a graduate of the Pennsylvania State College of the class of 1909, has been promoted to his present rank from a first lieutenant in one year. He is now chief of the Frankfort arsenel laboratories in Philadelphia, where he is in charge of all experimental work for the United States Army Ordnance Department.

Colonel Clay perfected the armor-piercing tracer bullet, as well as the incendi ary bullet, both of which gave the Allied forces marked advantage of their adversaries in the war. The efficiency of these types of missiles is said to have been far superior to anything of that nature developed by the Germans. Entente airmen found them of invaluable service in driving the Hun aviators from the skies.

Government ordnance experts have hailed with acclaim Colonels Clay's invention of a three-inch illuminating shell. They assert that this shell when exploded will illuminate an area of ten square miles.

Colonel Clay, who is only thirty-one years old, was graduated from the State College in the electrical course.
