WM. GARIS HOME FROM FRANCE.

Back from Verdun and Argonne Sector Where Fighting Was Fiercest.—Was In the Railroad Artillery.

William Garis, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Bryon W. Garis is home from France, having landed on the shores of the U. S. A. on January 3rd, and after receiving an honorable discharge came to his home in Centre Hall, arriving here Saturday. He is the first local boy who has faced the fire of the Huns to get back home.

William left Centre Hall May 11th of last year for Columbus, Ohio, barracks and later was transferred to Fort Hancock, New Jersey. He left for England on August 13th, and arrived overseas August 28th. He had been trained in the heavy artillery and immediately upon his arrival in Europe was rushed through to the Verdun sector to replace units of the railroad artillery which had been completely wiped out by the enemy.

He held the position of second man on the breech of a mooster gun known as a 32, which shoots a 13-inch shell and having a range of twelve miles. There are two guns to a battery and they are mounted on railroad tracks and can be quickly moved in the event of the enemy locating them. William had the pictures of the big gun with him and they served to convince his many admiring friends that he was right where the big noise was made. William's several months of hard fighting were all spent in the Verdun sector and the Argonne region. He witnessed suffering and death and at one time an immense shell burst not far from him and a piece of flying shrapnel completely severed the arm of a comrade standing close to him. William himself, during all his service, escaped without so much as a scratch. His closest call came when a huge enemy shell struck a few yards ahead of him and the concussion lifted him off his feet and violently deposited him on the earth eight feet away. He says he felt himself over when he "came to" but found he was unhurt.

Regarding his experience, he said that he would not have missed it for the world, but that he would not care to repeat the operation.

Killed on Railroad Wednesday Morning.

A man by the name of Bell was struck and instantly killed Wednesday morning of this week by the west-bound passenger train, on the local branch, at a point two miles below Vicksburg, which is near Millinburg. The train was an hour behind schedule and was running with great speed when it struck the two-horse wagon in which the man was riding. The wagon was completely demolished, but the horses escaped serious injury. Among the first to reach the unfortunate man was Cleveland Mitterling, of Centre Hall, who was on the train. He discovered the man lying along the track and all signs of life had already gone. He was apparently on his way to do a day's butchering, for target gun and butcher knives were found in the wrecked wagon. He was aged about forty-five years. The body was taken on the train to Millinburg.

3 Children Burned to Death in Home at Yeagertown.

Caught like rats in a trap the three little children of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Hurl of Yeagertown were burned to a crisp Tuesday morning. The house was entirely consumed by the flames that snuffed out the three little lives. The victims of the tragic occurrence were: Sara Hurl, aged six years; Irene Hurl, aged four years; Robert Hurl, aged two years.

When the one story bungalow building caved in the horrified throng of spectators, that had been forced to stand helplessly by watching the flames run their course and with the agonized cries of the doomed tots' ringing in their ears, saw the three charred bodies lying just inside the front door where they had gathered and fruitlessly pounded in their frenzied struggles to escape the inferno that raged within.

The mother of the children on leaving home in the morning to do some shopping in Lewistown, locked the three babes in the house and going to her neighbor, Mrs. Wagner, handed her the key. A half hour later, or 8 o'clock, Mrs. Wagner thought she would slip over and see how the kiddies were getting along. She was startled to see the four room cottage in flames and losing her presence of mind futilely tried to force in the door. She recklessly risked her own life in trying to save the children.

THE DEATH RECORD.

SEGNER.—Michael Segner, an aged resident of Boalsburg, passed away at his home Wednesday of last week, aged seventy-five years, nine months and ten days. He suffered from a complication of diseases and for the past two years was in feeble health. A family of three sons and six daughters survive. Funeral services were held on Saturday morning by Rev. Charles T. Aikens, D. D., of Selmsgrove, and burial made at Boalsburg.

RIPKA.—Last week the death of Morris Ripka was briefly noted in these columns. His father, George H. Ripka, of Milroy, received a telegram from the War Department on January 6th, stating that his son had died October 25th, with bronchial pneumonia. Private Ripka was a selected man and left Milroy November 2nd for Camp Mead. From there he was transferred to Camp Merritt, N. J., subsequently sailed for France. He belonged to Co. B, 30th Engineers, and later was transferred to Co. B, First Gas Regiment, 1st Bat.

He was the first boy from Milroy to give his life for his country. Among his associates he was held in high esteem. His age was twenty-three years, three months and twenty-nine days. His father survives, as do these sisters and brother: Cora E., Myra and Lloyd, of Milroy, and Mrs. Morris Long, of Spring Mills. The deceased was a member of the Shrader Methodist church.

Found Dead in Home.

Miss Annie Fox, aged fifty-four years, and living alone at her home two miles from Boalsburg, was found dead on Tuesday morning of last week by an aunt and other neighbors who became solicitous when no signs of life were seen about the premises. A door was broken open and the woman was found against a chair, in a semi-sitting posture. She had been dead since the evening previous. For several days she had been complaining to neighbors and it was believed that she suffered with influenza. She was buried at Boalsburg on Tuesday of last week, Rev. Barber of the Presbyterian church officiating.
