Harry Bair, a former Millheim boy, visited relatives at Madisonburg last week. Mr. Bair is in Uncle Sam's service, having been invalided home from France, landing in New York on New Year's day, and he was granted a short furlough. His lower jaw was shattered in a battle and he also sustained several minor wounds.

In reading the school reports for the fourth month, in this issue, note the outstanding feature of the grammar grade report. It is found in the last sentence and has reference to a boy who has not missed a day of school in seven years. We have just a slight suspicion that this boy was in school when others were out, on the excuse of some "ache" or other. Such good records don't just happen.

Cleveland Brungart had the misfortune to break his right arm, above the wrist, on Monday afternoon, while cranking L. L. Smith's Ford bus preparatory to making the trip from the post office to the railroad station. He did not realize the accident had occurred until he reached the depot, when the pain became so great that he had to be taken home. Dr. H. H. Longwell reduced the fracture.

Centre county has a financial genius in William Wood, who resides in Rush township. He is overseer of the poor of that township and has served as such for eight years. When he became poor overseer the township was $3,000 in debt and the millage for the poor fund was 10 mills. Since then the indebtedness has been all paid off, a poor farm home purchased and paid for, as well as a $600 team, and the poor district has $1400 invested in Liberty bonds. And now the millage for poor purposes is down to five.

State Agricultural Notes.

It is estimated that the farmers of Pennsylvania own and operate about 7,800 automobile trucks.

But five counties in the State, Lawrence, Pike, Potter, Snyder and Wayne, report an increase in horses over a year ago.

More fall pigs have been kept on the farms during the fall season and there is every promise of a larger increase in the swine industry of the state during the present year.

Fruit buds are reported in splendid condition from nearly all sections of the State, but they are advanced to such an extent that severe weather may do considerable damage.

Potter county farmers, as well as many other dairying communities are giving attention to increasing the quality rather than the quantity of their milk cows.

A Perry county correspondent of the Department of Agriculture says: "Buttonwood trees shed their brown bark this fall and muskrats built their nests late and not so high, indicating a mild winter."

FOR SALE—House and lot on Hoffer street, Frame house, seven rooms; outbuildings; well located. Sale will be made on reasonable terms. Possession first of April. For further information inquire of MRS. BELLA WHITEMAN, Centre Hall, Pa.

BUDDHISTS HOLD SPOT HOLY

Famous Pagoda, Built by Hermit, Has Long Been Visited by Throngs of Pious Pilgrims.

Sightseeing in Burma is apt to be one pagoda after another, and at that the tourist misses most of them. One that he usually does not see unless he is especially energetic, or has an insatiable taste for pagodas, is the Kyaik-hto-yo pagoda, one of the most holy spots in Burma in the eyes of the Buddhist Burmese.

The Burmese say that the builder of this pagoda was a hermit, a theory which seems probable enough, for it is built on the top of a steep hill in a location which could appeal only to one of solitary inclination. Even the crest of the hill must have been too close to the world for the holy man, for he located his shrine on a huge boulder, which may have been steady enough in his day, but which now seems ready at any time to slip off into the valley several thousand feet below.

Assured by the Burmese guide that the rock has rested at this critical angle for many centuries, the visitor, already breathless from the reckless ascent of a Burmese hill, climbs a swaying bamboo ladder to view better the old pagoda. The great rock, with its shrine forming a tiny pointed cap, seems even more unsteady from here, but the guide feels no uneasiness. He is confident that somewhere below the pagoda is a lock of Buddha's hair, and this alone stays the boulder from its fall.

In the early spring pilgrims from all over Burma journey to this forsaken spot to place flowers on the rock and offer their prayers and gifts. Jewels and other offerings are tossed with an invocation to Buddha into the chasm below the rock. As they leave, they place lighted candles outside the shrine and, as they cross the plain in the evening they can still see tiny points of flame marking the sacred spot for other pilgrims who may follow them.—Chicago News.

HAD NOT FULLY UNDERSTOOD

But Officer Realized That Henceforth Young Austrian in His Command Was an American.

The Second Indiana artillery is responsible for this story: In one of its companies there is a young Austrian, who loves America with a greater intensity than he hates the despotism "back home." He was one of the first men from his home town to enlist in that regiment.

A superior officer had come to inspect the company. He gave directions as to the way he was to be saluted, etc. "Now, we'll try you out and see if you've got all my directions," he ended. "We'll begin by calling the roll.

"As your names are called advance two steps, salute your superior officer and answer 'Here.'"

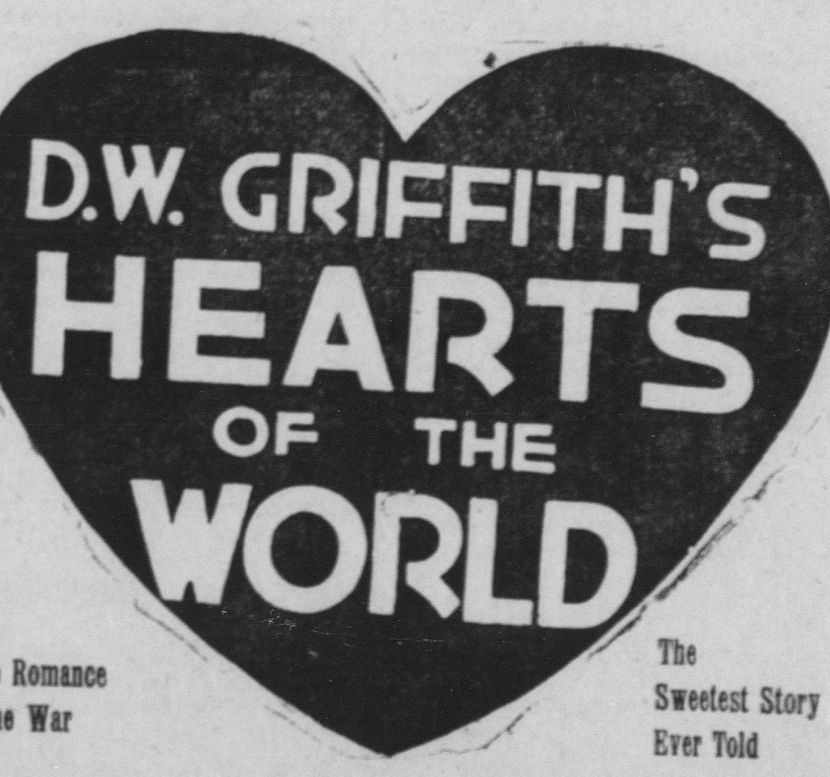

The clerk took up the list of names and began calling. And lo, the Austrian's name, like "Abou Ben Adhem's," led all the rest. For a few minutes the young fellow stood hesitating, because he had not understood much of what the officer had said.

Encouragingly the officer started to raise his hand. A broad smile of relief spread over the Austrian's face. A few rapid steps—he was across the road, seized his superior officer's hand and gave it a hearty American shake.

Amid roars of laughter the officer ruefully examined his crushed fingers. "He's an American now, all right," he said sagely.
