YANKEE JOKER "MADE GOOD"

Not for Reasons of His Own He Didn't Stop to See the Effect He Made on Pollus.

One of the "double-v" units numbers in its ranks a practical joker who generally scores a bull's-eye because he never "pulls" the same thing twice. Despite his long sojourn in France he still succeeds in putting something over on the pollus at regular intervals. For some months he had spread the report that inhabitants of certain portions of America's western plains had horns.

And the first unit of horned specimens that comes over, I will show them to you," he promised. When weeks and months passed without a redemption of the promise, the French began to doubt the Yankee's word.

Then one day he announced to a group of French friends that a detachment of Americans had arrived, most of whom had horns. He led them to a spot where a concert was being given by one of the regimental brass bands. "Most of 'em have horns," he said as he broke away to a flying start.—From the Spiker, France.

Monroe Plank Saved—Amendment Preserving Doctrine Adopted After Dramatic Speech By Wilson—Opponents Silenced.

Paris.—The discussion of the Monroe Doctrine amendment by the League of Nations Commission is described by those present as having been of a dramatic character, concluding with a speech by President Wilson deprecating the opposition which had been expressed and upholding the doctrine as one of the great bulwarks against absolutism. The debate came late in the session, after other subjects had been passed upon.

The British attitude had been in doubt until the last, but Lord Robert Cecil turned the scales by announcing that he saw no objection to the amendment in the form presented by the President. M. Larnaude, of the French delegation, followed Lord Roberts with objections to inserting the Monroe Doctrine.

The Chinese also offered objection to the amendment on the ground that its language was so extended that it might validate certain principles and claims affecting Chinese affairs.

The President paid the closest attention to the opposition to the amendment, and jotted down notes for a reply. In his speech the President spoke with great earnestness and with some evidence of feeling. He declared that the Monroe Doctrine was enunciated to combat the Holy Alliance and to hold back the threat of absolutism which was then menacing Europe and seeking to spread its absolute power to the Western Hemisphere. It served its purpose in keeping this absolute power from the Western world.

One of its great purposes, he said, was to maintain territorial and political integrity, and, having served its great purpose in the Western world, it was now being brought to the lands which had felt the hand of absolutism and militarism. It was a source of surprise and discouragement, the President said, to hear opposition expressed to such a doctrine and such a purpose.

The President's speech closed the discussion. There was no vote, and when there were no further remarks the Chairman of the meeting said the amendment would be considered adopted.

"I always prefer playing big cities or playing one-night stands," remarked Mr. Stormington Barnes. "What's the difference?" "I like to have people stay through the show. In a one-night stand everybody has a home to go to. In a big city a lot of people would rather sit in the theater than go back to the hotel."

Pre-War Days.

It is altogether a good sign that we seem to be making so great a catchword of "pre-war?" says London Daily News. Whenever it is desired to say that anything is going on well or comfortably, or easily, if an entertainment is brilliant or a sale successful, it is described at once as "quite up to pre-war standard."

And yet are we not suppose to have entered on a new ideal in which post-war will be a much greater thing than pre-war?

Re-enforced concrete poles are used for a 22,000-volt power line six miles long at Brentwood, Cal., supplying a load of about 2,800 horse power.
