Not a Flattering Portrait.
While the minister was making a call the little girl of the house was busy with pencil and paper.
"What are you doing?" he asked, when her mother had left the room for a moment.
"I'm making your picture," said the child.
The minister sat very still, and she worked very earnestly. Then she stopped and compared her work with the original and shook her head.
"I don't like it much," she said.
"That's a great deal like you. I guess I'll put a tail to it and call it a dog."

BLOUSE IN VOGUE

Popular Garment Back in Favor and in Many Colors.

Large Black Knotted Cravat Adds Parisian Effect and Embroideries Are Attractive.

It is not a very long time since a woman was never without a dozen chemise blouses, whether she was traveling or living in the city. These articles were indispensable to the tailored costume, says Vogue. There was infinite variety in their many forms, and, besides those of thin white materials, there were also a few blouses all inlaid with lace and embroidery, very like soft veils of lace.

Then the mode changed. The lingerie blouse was replaced by the longer of the chemise frock showing beneath the long coats matching the costume.

But now the tailored suit is no longer in disrepute; it is returning with victory. Unimpeachably correct, it gives a woman that alluring trimness which is joyfully received after the caprices of elaborate elegance. And it is even whispered in the air that it will be the man's tailor who will be given preference in the execution of this new costume; it is possible.

How could blouses fall to take on new life with this occurrence? They come in dozens, hastening into our wardrobes. Prepared to accompany our summer costumes, they have a charming modernism, and they brighten the somber blue of serge or the monotony of khaki shantung like bouquets of different flowers. There will be white blouses, too, but they will be such as are inspired by the blouses of Van Dyck or by those of the peasants in the country districts of France. And with almost all these blouses is worn a large black knotted cravat.

At Paquin's the hues and embroideries of these blouses are of sensational originality—a series that makes one wonder what this new order will lead to. Veritable tone-scales, delicate or vivid according to the type of the wearer, will achieve effects not hitherto seen in sharp contrast to the white blouse that was of an invariable monotony.

The braid that borders this colored linen is always of cotton, fearing neither soap nor water, even though it be black. One of the refinements of the season is to repeat in the lining of the jacket the same design or colors of the blouse.

BE PRETTY IN YOUR KITCHEN

This morning dress of blue chambray piped in white linen is simply made and very inexpensive. But, isn't it a big improvement over the old gingham apron?

THE MANY SHADES OF BROWN

Color is a Prime Favorite in Paris—Stencil Embroidery Touched Up With Floss Silks.

In Paris le d'ormier cri is brown in all shades—red brown, nut brown, pale golden brown, that is a strong light seems almost yellow. A very uncommon dress, the creation of a famous Paris "Maison," was made of mouse brown crepon, with a plaited skirt and a long straight tunic which was cut up at the sides and which showed on the hem a most effective stencil design done in black and invisible blue paint. There was a narrow ribbon contour in invisible blue and thin blue silk tassels finished off the under seams of the short sleeves. This dress could easily be achieved in cotton crepon.

For instance, for a comparatively small sum of money, Stencil embroidery—for the stamped designs are nearly always touched up here and there with floss silks—is easily done and it is immensely attractive; any color may be stamped on, and, of course, any silks and even tiny beads may be introduced.

AIRY GOWN OF PEACHBLOOM

An adorable little frock of peach-bloom shade in taffeta and chiffon, with airy ruffles. Hat is a lovely creation of horsehair braid, tulle crown and brim edge, spray of glycerinated ostrich and a bright blue velvet ribbon.

CLOTHING FOR THE KIDDIES

Cotton Wash Dresses Are Favored in Preference to Linen, Which is Expensive This Year.

For children's wash dresses cotton ramic, chambray, gingham, cross-bar batiste, voile, dotted swiss and organdie are all to be found, and there are some linens, but linens are expensive this year. At the best they are an expensive fabric for a child, because the little frocks and smocks and suits "muss up" so quickly.

Ribbons play a peculiarly interesting part in a child's wardrobe at all times, for there is never anything more distinctive in her costume than the hair ribbon she wears.

This season ribbons are used as an embellishment for dresses, as a trimming, as an accessory of dress and not only are little hats trimmed exclusively with ribbons, but many swaggar hats are made entirely of ribbons.

Very tailored effects in little dresses are trimmed only with pipings and cuffs, and an exclusively made-to-order appearance is produced in certain simple ready-to-wear dresses by good taste touches of smocking, hemstitching and embroidery.

Wool embroidery on silk is a very effective trimming, both for dresses and hats.

Valenciennes lace is, of course, just coming into popular favor again and so is much in evidence on little girls' clothes. Fillet lace is also seen, and here and there one finds baby Irish crochet that, like valenciennes, is, like the clock pendulum, swinging the other way, coming back from obscurity and disuse.

USE FOR DISCARDED BLOUSES

Crepe de Chine and Georgette Garments May Easily Be Converted Into Camisoles.

When the crepe de chine and georgette blouses have outlived their original usefulness they are not always ready for the refuse heap, says one practical girl who always finds other purposes to which they are adapted. Quite often she converts them into camisoles, sometimes so skillfully that she can make two out of a single blouse. By opening the sleeves and using broad insertion of shadow lace or ribbon, ribbon shoulder straps and a row of beading at the top, she so completely transforms the material that one would never realize that it had been of previous service. Odd scraps can be utilized as linings for dainty hats, as coverings for dress shields which are to be worn under other sheer blouses, or to mend or strengthen a part of the blouse which shows wear, as often occurs in the back at the belt line.

MODES OF THE MOMENT

Many little children appear charming in pure yellow frocks. Sweaters have adopted the fillet openwork design in silk or wool.

A knitted sweater dress with a knitted hat is correct for tennis. The more elaborate evening gown is often deeply fringed with jet. Narrow patent leather belts hold in the front fullness of the cape.

Cretonne Garden Apron.

All enveloping aprons made of flowered cretonne are shown for girls of six to ten years for garden or play wear. They are very well worth while, protecting the dress and giving it a longer lease of life. These are often accompanied by matching sunbonnets or hats, and occasionally by bags as well, although the bag is rather unnecessary.

LEECH AS WEATHER PROPHET HAVE TO PURCHASE BRIDES

Those Familiar With Small Creature's Habits Can Foretell Changes That Are at Hand.

An excellent weather prophet can be made by placing a leech in a glass jar of water.

If the weather is to continue fine the leech lies motionless at the bottom of the jar, and rolled together in a spiral form. If it is to rain, either before or after noon, it will be found to have crept up to the top of its lodging, where it will remain till the weather is settled.

If we are to have wind, the poor prisoner gallops through his limpid habitation with amazing swiftness, and seldom rests till it begins to blow hard.

If a remarkable storm of thunder and rain is to succeed, the leech, for some days before, lodges almost continually without water, and gives itself up to violent throes and convulsive-like motions. In frost, as in clear summer weather, it lies constantly at the bottom; and in snow, as in rainy weather, it pitches its dwelling on the very mouth of the jar.

Age Counts.

Two very dirty little youngsters were standing in front of the Monument betting the other day. Finally one of them said: "I bet you a nickel I'm dirtier than you are."

The other little fellow, whose bets on his prowess had been large and vigorously made, was confused for a few minutes. Finally he admitted: "Well, you ought to be. You're older than I am, aren't you?"—Indianapolis News.

Just Opposite.

"Is that man surreptitious in his methods?"

"No sirup in his methods. He's in the wholesale pickle business."

Some people who save up for a rainy day blow it in as soon as it gets foggy.

Santali Indian Bridegroom Must Lay Up Money Before He Can Aspire to a Wife.

The Santali Indians must literally purchase their brides. They pay a sum of money to the girl's parents—usually about 100 dupces—and, in addition, they present the mother and the female relatives with new saris or shawls.

Should the bridegroom choose a widow for his wife, she will only cost half the sum mentioned. The reason why the Santali Indians hold widows in less regard than unmarried females is because they assert that in the next world man and wife are reunited, hence a widow who marries again is only "lent" to her second husband. When a young man courts a girl who does not favor his suit, he adopts an eccentric way to cure her stubbornness. After having dipped his finger in red paint, he goes in search of the lady and imprints his mark on her forehead. Then he may claim her as his wife.
