Losses to the winter wheat crop from Hessian fly have been rather wide causes a loss of forty million bushels of Different agencies contributed to the downfall of the splendid prospects for a mammoth wheat crop in Pennsylvania fly was a factor. This pest was prevalent and damaged the wheat in different parts of the State and particularly in Berks and Chester counties.

The Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture suggests that growers of winter wheat should take concerted action in order to avoid losses to the 1920 crop by the Hessian fly. There is no remedy for this pest when once it takes possession of a crop of wheat. Injury can be prevented solely by keeping the fly out of the wheat,

Experts of the U. S. Department of Agriculture says the following methods

Do not sow wheat on stubble if possible to avoid doing so.

Plow under all infested stubble and ruined wheat where practicable soon after harvest, especially where this does not interfere with the growing of clover and forage grasses.

Destroy all volunteer wheat by harowing, disking, plowing, or otherwise. Plow all land to be sown to winter wheat as early and deeply as existing conditions permit and prepare a thoroughly pulverized and compacted seed

Conserve moisture against a period of drought at seeding time.

Use the best seed procurable. Keep the soil in good tilth and, most mportant of all, sow winter wheat during the fly-free period as advised by local farm advisors or State experiment

Community action in these measures is absolutely essential to complete
