FARM TERMS NOT IN DICTIONARIES

Great Many in Common Use in Agricultural Discussions Not Yet Recognized.

MOVEMENT TO STANDARDIZE

Department of Agriculture Plans to Secure Uniform National Usage of Terms Indispensable in Agricultural Work.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
A great many terms in common use in agricultural discussions have never found a place in the dictionaries. So widely used and important a term as "vitamin" has not yet found its way into the principal unabridged dictionaries. For the public, therefore, there exists no approved spelling, no approved pronunciation, and no approved definition of the name of a thing that is vital to all living things.

Terms Not Recognized.
There are scores of terms, indispensable in agricultural writing or speaking, that have not been recognized by the lexicographers, and there are quite as many new usages of established words. "Blood line," a term commonly used in discussions of breeding, is not in the dictionaries. Nobody knows whether it is one word, two words, or a hyphenated word. "Overrun," a term widely used to express the thing that is practically the determining factor of profits in creamery establishments, is unknown to the dictionaries. "Standardbred," "trap nest," and any number of other commonly used terms, understood well enough by agriculturists, remain undefined for the accurate information of the general public.

To Standardize Terms.
The United States department of agriculture, through the joint efforts of the bureau of animal industry and the division of publications, has begun a movement to standardize the use of such terms, and about 20 of them are on the griddle now. Three points of view are taken—that of the field man who knows the common usage of the term, that of the scientist who has the view point of the specialist, and the point of view that looks merely to the use of good English. Each word is submitted to the various classes of persons interested, together with the proposed usage and the authority or lack of authority for it. From the suggestions received in reply, the finally approved usage will be determined.

The first agricultural term to be acted upon in the manner described was "corn belt." That was considered more appropriate than "corn-belt" or "cornbelt."
Although the principal purpose is to establish approved usage for department of agriculture publications, lists of terms evolved will be furnished later to dictionary editors with the view of obtaining uniform national usage. The co-operation of agricultural experts and editors is invited.

ALFALFA IS FERTILITY AID

Where Crop Can Be Grown Successfully It Exceeds All Other Hay Crops in Yield.

Thirty years ago alfalfa was quite a stranger in Wisconsin, but its introduction and dissemination have gone on at a rapid pace until about 60,000 acres of this great forage are now grown in the state.

"Alfalfa growing is popular in Wisconsin," declares R. A. Moore and L. F. Graber in a free bulletin just issued by the experiment station at Madison. "Where alfalfa can be grown successfully, it exceeds all other hay crops in yield to the acre, feeding value, drought resistance, soil enrichment, and weed eradication."
Trials conducted on the Wisconsin experiment station farm at Madison show that alfalfa gives yields practically double that of clover hay and three times as much as timothy. An acre of alfalfa produced in a single season three times as much protein as an acre of clover and nine times as much as an acre of timothy.

COVER BROKEN WINDOW PANE

Glass Should Be Replaced Without Unnecessary Delay—Muslin or Paper is Good.

When a window glass becomes broken in the poultry house it should be replaced or covered without a day's delay. By so means should the aperture be left over night.
It is but the work of a few minutes to tack over the hole a thick piece of muslin or other white cloth. This will keep out the wind and let in some light. If muslin is not handy, paper can be used. This is, of course, only a makeshift until one can get the glass needed.

RAISING STOCK WITH CROPS

When All Things Are Considered There is Nothing More Dependable on Any Farm.

Live stock is not always profitable; neither is exclusive crop growing. Men cannot always be sure anything will be profitable. But when all things are considered what is surer and safer than live stock with crops?

BETTER POTATO SEED TO INCREASE YIELDS

Progress of Work in Developing Improved Stocks.

Department of Agriculture Co-operating With Experiment Stations in Practically All of Important Producing States.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
Seed stocks of Irish potatoes commonly available to growers contain many mixtures, not infrequently diseased, and as a rule not as productive as they should be. The chief of the bureau of plant industry, United States department of agriculture, makes this statement in reporting on the progress of work in developing improved seed stocks. It is a recognized fact, he says, that the yield of potatoes in this country is far below that secured in some other countries, and the difference is commonly attributed to the use of relatively inferior seed stocks. Seed-improvement work is being carried on by the department in co-operation with agricultural experiment stations in practically all of the important potato-producing states. The best seed stock of the leading varieties in different regions is being grown in the various states. During the progress of the season the various plants are inspected several times for the purpose of eliminating diseased plants and those which are not true to name or to type. At harvest time carefully studied selections are made for the purpose of obtaining the best strains of the different varieties. These potatoes in turn will be used for seed purposes with a view to developing stocks that are true to name, true to type, free from disease communicable through the seed, and that possess high-yielding proclivities.

MANURING IN COLD WEATHER

Particularly Advisable to Make Application in Winter, Says Purdue University.

The Purdue university extension department particularly advises application of manure in winter when it contains a great amount of straw and undecomposed matter. The loss of plant food because of the leaching of the manure will be offset by the advantages of winter application. As far as possible coarser manures should be applied to the heavier clay soils, since these will respond in fertility and will be made more mellow and porous.

SUPERIOR RATION FOR STOCK

Young Animals Will Make Splendid Growth on Corn Silage and Clover or Alfalfa.

Young stock, from the time it is weaned, will make a splendid growth on corn silage and clover or alfalfa hay without any grain. This ration is not only a cheap one, but is within the reach of most every farmer.

USE AMERICAN CAN MACHINES.

An American government official recently visited the can-making plant of a large Japanese cannery and found that most of the machines were of American make. They were operated by men who received a daily wage of about 80 cents. Women and girls also are employed in some of the branches of the industry and receive approximately 28 cents a day. The boxes in which the cans are packed are 20 inches long and 14 inches in height, and cost 30 cents each. The manager of this factory stated that the American tin plate which they are using is much superior to any other for this purpose.—New York Times.

ADAM EVIDENTLY A GENIUS

Had Assuredly Done Wonders With the Primitive Tools He Had to Work With.

It was just before Christmas and the prepossessing young woman was investigating the furniture in one of the big stores. She wanted something new, and the clerk assured her the newest furniture was that which embodied the early period styles.

So she was initiated into the mysteries of Sheraton, Jacobean, Louis XIV, and other styles and had about picked out the piece which suited her fancy when they came upon another group.

"And this, madam, is of the Adam period," explained the clerk.

"Good gracious," exclaimed the woman, "how did he ever manage, without hammers and saws?"

NEEDFIRE OLD FOLK CUSTOM

Part of the Ritual of Purification That Has Survived in Scotland Until Recently.

In folk custom, needfire is fire kindled by friction of two sticks of wood or of a rope on a wooden stake to ward off demons of disease. Among the many customs and beliefs connected with fire one of the most important is that of ritual purification. The new fire is supposed to regenerate, as fire sacrifice is designed to sustain, the invisible beings. Needfire is a practice, usually, of shepherd peoples to ward off disease from the flocks. In historic times the sparks for kindling the needfire were obtained by twirling a wooden peg around a wooden post. As in the case of new fire, the needfire was almost always accompanied with the extinguishing of the fires of the locality, and the neighbors also rekindled their fires from it as in the new fire ceremony. In practice, the people passed, or the herds were driven through or between the flames of the needfire, for purification. The needfire custom survived in the highlands of Scotland until recent date, and probably traces of this superstition still exist in parts of Europe.

TIRED OF HIS LITTLE SPREE

"Runaway" Canary Glad to Be Back in the Comfort and Safety of His Home.

Mrs. Robert Tomlinson of Martinsville has a canary that answers to the name of Woody, relates the Indianapolis News. Last fall the bird escaped from the cage and flew away. Immediately the whole town was asked to keep its figurative eye on Woody. He was reported here and there, feeding with the town sparrows. Mrs. T. would call up and say that she had seen him, but by the time his owner came he was gone.

For a whole month Woody cavorted around with the pests of the neighborhood. Then dark, rainy days began to dawn. Still Woody stayed with the sparrows. A neighbor called up from the other side of the town one day and said that Woody was sitting around in her trees, the very picture of despair. There is little doubt that he was thinking of his warm cage at home. So his owner hied herself over to the spot and hung his cage in one of the trees. Then she went in to gossip. The rain continued to fall and presently Woody hopped into his cage, and the tragedy was over, for that night he had his regular warm spot in the dining room.
