PARTISANSHIP GONE MAD.

Never in the history of any American Congress has there been such an instance of partisanship gone mad as in the act of the Republican majority on the House Ways and Means Committee excluding minority members from the conference at which the soldier bonus bill was drafted. No Democrat on the committee was permitted to even know what was in the bill until it was reported out, when, with the O. K. of the "steering committee", it was ordered put through the House as a strictly Republican measure.

How different the attitude of the Democrats when they were in the war and consulted and advised with the Republican minority about all war measures.

Democrats and Republicans alike fought and won the war, and Democrats and Republicans alike have a right to a voice in adjusting compensation for the men who faced the foe and wrought the victory.

A Quiet Election.

The primary election in Centre Hall passed off quietly, both parties polling about fifty per cent of the registered vote. Democrats polled fifty-one votes and the Republicans twenty-nine, for a total of 80, all that were cast.

Sixteen Democrats preferred Harvey, Republican, for the general assembly, rather than Naginey, and gave him a complimentary vote by writing his name on the ballot. The Republicans stood by Beaver rather than by Harvey, who fell three votes behind. This was the one office which concerned the local politicians most, and many Republicans were approached to see that they made no "mistake" in marking for the "right man."

The count for the more important offices were as follows:

Beaver Leads Harvey.

With forty-eight districts in Centre county heard from at noon, Wednesday, when the Reporter went to press, Beaver was leading Harvey for the nomination for general assembly, by several hundred votes. The final returns will likely show very little change from these figures.

Theodore Davis Boal and Harry Scott are leading in the race for delegates to the Republican National Convention.

More Than Half Goes for Profits.

More than half the price the consumer pays for a pair of shoes is absorbed by profits, according to W. Jett Lauck, former secretary of the war labor board, in a survey of profiteering in the boot and shoe industry, made public at Washington this week.

Lauck places the blame for profiteering in shoes on the packer, tanner, manufacturer, wholesaler and retailer, with the heaviest guilt on the leather producers.

Examination for Scholarship.

Examination for the M. Elizabeth Olewine scholarship will be held at The Pennsylvania State College on Thursday, June 17, 1920. These scholarships are worth $100 per year and are open to any girl graduate of a Centre County High School.

Save Wheat by United Drive Against Barberry.

Thousands of dollars loss in this year's wheat crop can be saved by a little quick action on the part of those who suffered loss from rust in previous years. Right now, in the middle of May, the spores of the black stem rust are moving from the stubble to barberry leaves where they multiply by millions. In a few weeks they will have migrated to the new wheat crop and start their deadly work. Plant disease specialists at State College advise that the removal and destruction of all barberry bushes in vicinities that have been attacked in previous years by rust, should take place at once to insure this year's crops. Cooperation is necessary in all communities for it will help little for one farmer to spend a day at this work if his neighbor allows a growth of the harmful bush to remain standing. The undesirable species of barberry has a saw-tooth edged leaf. The smooth-edged leaf, or Japanese barberry, is harmless in this respect.

Would it not be a good plan for suffering communities to declare a "Barberry Destruction Day" during the next week, and save what labor conditions have already made a reduced crop?

Lock Haven's population, according to the recent Census, is 8,557, an increase of 785 in ten years.

On last Friday Robert Bierly loaded his Ford truck with live calves and shoots and started across the mountain north of this place, bound for Lock Haven. When half way up the mountain he pulled his truck to the side of the road and left it stand while he went to see Wallace Debler on business. When he returned to his car he was astonished to find that the critter had, during his absence, backed down over the steep bank along side of the road and was lying on its side with its live freight.

Bob at once came back to town and got six men to go along and set old Henry on its pins again.

Counterfeit Stamp Has Mumps.

The Treasury Department is issuing a warning to Postmasters and to thrifty persons hereabouts to be on their guard against buying counterfeit War Savings Stamps. Fraudulent blue stamps of the 1919 Series have been made by counterfeiters and being sold to the unwary.

"But the frauds can be easily detected," the Secret-Service men say. "Ben Franklin's picture appears on the stamp, and in the counterfeit stamps, Old Ben seems to have the mumps in his left jaw. Indeed, there is a pronounced swelling. Then under the portrait the lower of the two left dots is comparatively indistinct, and the vertical opening between the lines in the lower part of the numeral '2' in the date '1924' is closed. The principal feature of the fraud, however, is the swollen cheek.

"It should be remembered that the counterfeit is only of the 1919 series, and like the original, is blue. Blue War Savings Stamps can no longer be bought from post offices or other authorized agencies. Only the 1920 stamps, which are red, now being sold by agencies.

"Everyone who bought 1919 stamps last year may feel perfectly safe," the Treasury Department says, "because the counterfeit was not made until after the first of this year. The blue stamps had then been withdrawn from sale by the authorized agencies, and the red 1920 stamp was being sold. Don't buy any 1919 stamps, and keep a look out for the man with the mumps. If you see one let your Postmaster know."

Sugar Retailers Allowed 2c. Per Lb. Profit.

Telegrams were sent by the department of justice last week to all United States attorneys reiterating the department's policy of holding the margin of profit on sugar sales to one cent for wholesalers, and two cents for retailers.

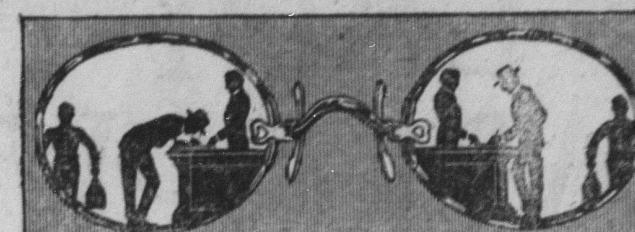

This margin of profit was fixed by the sugar equalization board more than a year ago, but Assistant Attorney General Garvan said misunderstandings had arisen among fair price committees as to its application at the present time. To clear up the tangle district attorneys were instructed to enforce their ruling rigidly with respect to the margin of profit and to prosecute firms and individuals taking more than that amount per pound.
